IWA Convention 'Fun' Hasn't Started Yet

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

VANCOUVER — Along about 3:30 p.m. Monday someone uttered some angry words about the cost of bushworkers' boots.

And while such a subject might get a low mark on your average entertainment poll, it sort of saved the day for Bill Botkin.

After five hours of listening, he knew at last that he was at the annual Western Canada regional convention of the International Woodworkers of America.

"I had thought I was at a convention of the Conservative party," the 62-year-old Portland-based secretary-treasurer of the IWA told delegates.

This is probably the most unusual rating ever given the first day of an IWA convention, considering that the union has long been known for its fine art of political blood-letting.

But that's the kind of day the first day of the five-day session was — nothing more controversial than a suggestion from the floor that a picture of a boot in an IWA publication should have included the regional officers "on the toe of that boot."

However, veterans of the union's in-fighting warn that no one should be lulled into a feeling of security by the "sweetness and light" atmosphere of the first day.

"Just don't go to sleep," one Victoria delegate said in an interview. "The fun hasn't started."

The "fun" could be an attempt later to actually put regional president Jack Moore and his officers on the toe of the boot. No one has produced an opposition slate at this stage, but there has been talk again — as there always is when elections roll around every two years — of sweeping Moore and his men out of office.

Danes Back Market

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Danes dispelled fears of a major hitch in Common Market expansion Monday by voting nearly 2 to 1 in favor of joining the European Economic Community.

Not all opponents of market membership took the defeat calmly. Bands of young demonstrators roamed the streets in Copenhagen and burned flags on the steps of parliament.

Anonymous telephone bomb threats were made against the premier's home and Copenhagen's radio and television centres. No bombs were found.

Sigurd Oemann, whose Socialist People's party spearheaded the anti-EEC campaign, said Denmark faced "increased political polarization" because of the vote.

The final tally was 1,950,000 for and 1,124,000 against, or a margin of 57 per cent of the total electorate to 32.9. The voter turnout of 89.9 per cent was an all-time record for this small Scandinavian nation.

Danish farmers voted solidly, as expected, for the Common Market, which will help their exports. Anti-market forces did not gain a majority even in their supposed stronghold, metropolitan Copenhagen.

The firm surge toward the EEC proved groundless the predictions that Denmark's poll would be affected by the narrow referendum victory for market opponents last week in Norway.

Premier Jens Otto Krag's government, which negotiated Denmark's entry into the market, preached economic hardship, stern austerity policies and devaluation of the kroner if the ~~vote went~~ against joining. The Danish referendum was binding, whereas last week's Norwegian vote was advisory, with the final decision to be made by parliament.

Voting day was the eighth day of a suspension of currency trading, decreed to protect the kroner after the Norwegian vote.

In an unprecedented move, police guarded polling stations, parliament and Copenhagen's radio and television centres.

When the voting trend became evident Monday night, the Danish National Bank announced that currency trading will resume this morning.

Heath Told: Resign

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI) — The chairman of the opposition Labor Party Monday demanded that Prime Minister Edward Heath dissolve Parliament and order a general election or popular referendum to determine whether Britain will join the Common Market Jan. 1 as scheduled.

Anthony Wedgwood Benn, addressing the open session of the party's convention here, said the terms of Britain's entry into the European Economic Community negotiated by Heath were unacceptable to his party and demanded that the people have the chance to express their feelings in a plebiscite.

"We will not accept Heath's terms of entry or the legislation he has driven through Parliament, which would strip the people of this country of their basic rights without their consent," Wedgwood Benn said.

"We must demand a general election and dissolution of Parliament before midnight Dec. 31," he declared.

UIC Deficit More Than Half Billion

MONTREAL (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission deficit is about $544 million, Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey said Monday.

Mackasey said in an interview he intends to defend the government's handling of unemployment insurance as a major part of the Liberals' campaign for re-election Oct. 30.

"I put a bit of a ban on information from the department because reporters won't take an objective look at the whole question of unemployment insurance. I would rather have the whole thing explained properly," he said.

He told a reporter he did not know the deficit "to the exact dollar" but he offered a file headed Costs To Date which, he said would give "an idea of how much the deficit is."

The section outlines that the plan paid out $1,164 million for the first seven months of the year — $544 million over the same period last year.

"It is also the approximate amount we are in the red," Mackasey said.

That Time of Year

Many people you meet these days are coughing and wheezing, snorting and sneezing, running at the eyes and using facial tissue by the ream.

But there is no epidemic of flu according to Dr. A. A. Larsen, director of epidemiology for the B.C. health branch, and Victoria area senior health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Whitbread's office finds out what is going on from reports of school nurses in the area on the absentee rate and the cause of it.

Latest reports show that there are numbers of children away with colds but there is no known 'flu' epidemic.

It's just that time of year again.

$95 Million

Barrett Attacks Surplus

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

B.C. will have an anticipated surplus of $95 million for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1973 and Premier Dave Barrett had some harsh words about it Monday.

"The money is there and the fact that the previous government didn't spend it is proof enough why it should have been thrown out of office," Barrett said in an interview after cabinet met Monday afternoon.

"Tell me why is it that the pensioners in this province have had to suffer while the government played tiddlywinks to get a surplus?" the premier asked newsmen.

The surplus was "taxes collected from the ordinary people of B.C. which has not been spent on the ordinary people of B.C."

Barrett said before cabinet that the surplus was expected to be $70 million but after the meeting he said there would be about $25 million more.

The confusion arose because the cost to the province of promised NDP pension boosts — about $25 million — had been deducted from the total surplus of about $95 million. Federal help is expected for the scheme which has a total cost of about $40 million.

The money left in the treasury by the former Social Credit government is about the same as in recent years. In 1971, it was $98 million and in 1970, about $95 million.

Barrett described the surplus estimate as a "very conservative" figure but said it would pay for the pension increases for about 100,000 people in B.C. and education spending reform announced earlier by Education Minister Eileen Dailly.

On the pension boost to $200 a month, the premier said he hoped the first cheques would be received by pensioners before Christmas.

And he was adamant that his government would not be an "order-in-council — ruler" and said the pension increases would be discussed in the Legislature sitting called for Oct. 17.

If people wanted to vote against the pension increase they could.

Before he vacated the premier's office after 20 years, W. A. C. Bennett said revenue was increasing at a rate of 15 per cent over the previous year.

Barrett, who is also finance minister in the NDP government, was told by deputy finance minister Gerald Bryson Monday that the revenue would probably even out at

Secret Agent Killed

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrilla gunmen killed a British secret agent from ambush Monday and gunned down a man in a Belfast club, raising Northern Ireland's death toll to 590 in three years of sectarian violence.

The British army said the unidentified agent was killed by three gunmen of the Irish Republican Army who poured automatic rifle fire into the delivery truck he was driving in a Roman Catholic sector of Belfast. A woman agent in the truck was unhurt.

A spokesman said it was the first death among about 50 plain-clothes operators working in critical sectors of the city.

Police said the second killing was done by three armed men who walked into a club in the Falls area, a Catholic district. They lined the people against a wall, fired several shots, and "as a result a man died," a police spokesman said.

The shootings followed a weekend in which at least seven persons lost their lives and more than 45 were injured.

Transit Train Crashes

FREMONT, Calif. (UPI) A sleek new Bay Area Rapid Transit district train Monday smashed into a sand barrier at 30 miles an hour, then dropped nosedown to a parking lot below, after failing to stop at the end of the line.

Five persons were hurt none seriously in the first accident on the $1.4 billion transit system which went into partial operation three weeks ago.

The first car of the two-car train plowed through the sand embankment at the end of track, then plunged through a chain link fence and plowed its nose into an asphalt parking lot 10 feet below.

The $300,000 car ended up at a 20 degree angle, with its front end in the lot and the back end at track level. The second car remained on the track when the vehicles uncoupled.

The train attendant and four of six passengers in the first car suffered minor injuries. The seven passengers in the second car were unhurt.

Russia's Treasures in Jeopardy

By MURRY SEEGER
Colonist-Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — The doors creak open and bang shut. Snow, mud and water collect in the entrance halls. Alternating hot, cold, dry, damp air wafts through the corridors and galleries.

Thousands of individuals, school children, workers on their days off, country people visiting the big city and foreign tourists — tramp across the old wooden parquet floors.

The Russians call it an "excursion explosion" — a rapidly rising flood of visitors to museums, churches, palaces and galleries, most of which date from the pre-revolutionary era of royalty and state religion.

Now, 50 years after Lenin declared "art belongs to the people," the Russian people are taking great interest in the nation's cultural treasures.

But the museums, galleries, palaces and churches are not ready for the crowds.

In one museum, the Hermitage in Leningrad, it's simply a matter of too many feet. About three million persons a year pass through it, with 180,000 in June alone. The museum has only 4,000 slippers to be put over street shoes to save the lacquered floors. "The most important question for us is the footwear of visitors," complained Boris Piotrovsky, director.

In their hard drive to become the world's largest economic and military power, the Soviet leaders have invested little to preserve and protect their country's cultural heritage.

The combined forces of age and overuse have put some of the nation's greatest treasures in jeopardy.

One Leningrader, for instance, said earlier this year that to halt the deterioration of the Hermitage and Winter Palace, the country's most famous art collection and museum, "radical measures are urgently needed."

N. I. Mokhov, deputy minister of culture, admitted that government officials have "repeatedly discussed" the issues of protecting the collections and buildings, improving displays and public service.

as a level-headed leader of the 42,000 IWA members in Western Canada, has been accused by presidents of some of the big coast locals of providing ineffective leadership.

His chief rival, Vancouver local president Syd Thompson, hasn't indicated a readiness to run against him. And Duncan local president Weldon Jubenville, prominent in the enemy forces over the years, has made such a noticeable switch to the Moore camp that there is talk of him ending up as secretary-treasurer of the regional executive.

Jubenville is still on speaking terms with his old sidekicks, Thompson and Victoria local president Murray Drew, but that's about all. They changed camps last spring over the issue of the dissident fallers.

Thompson and Drew, on the coast negotiating committee with Jubenville, sympathized with fallers who conducted a wildcat strike and rejected the day-rate negotiated for them. Jubenville opposed the fallers, saying he was thinking of the good of the union as a whole.

Some of Jubenville's enemies claim he took the stand he did simply to put himself in a position for a job with the regional office. Those close to Jubenville say he acted strictly on principle.

At any rate, Jubenville is said to stand a good chance to get on the regional officers' slate as a candidate for the job of secretary-treasurer, held now by Fred Fieber.

Fieber is close to retirement and there has been some suggestion he won't stand again.

While harsh words were at a minimum when the convention opened in the Hotel Georgia, probably some of the strongest talk came from two American visitors — Botkin and Leonard Palmer of Portland, who is president of an IWA regional district covering eight western states, including Alaska and others on the coast.

Both men went after the top man in North American labor, AFL-CIO president George Meany, attacking him for his refusal to take sides in the U.S. presidential race and for his acceptance of the price-wage freeze.

"I regret that the labor movement is sitting on its behind in the United States," Palmer told the 180 delegates. He blamed "dear old George Meany who should have retired 15 years ago" and accused him of having a "do-nothing attitude."

This brought cheers from his Canadian listeners.

Botkin said in an interview that the IWA in the U.S. has tried three times to have the AFL-CIO impose a retirement age of 65 for its officers, but has failed.

"It has been rejected by an executive council where the average age is about 70," he said. Meany is in his 70's.

The IWA was the first international union in the U.S. to pledge support to George McGovern in his quest for the presidency, despite the AFL-CIO stand against taking sides this time.

Palmer told delegates woodworkers in the western states might "take a holiday" if the U.S. pay board hasn't acted by Oct. 13 on terms of a new contract negotiated last June.

Under the price and wage freeze system, the board has to approve settlements.

"We negotiated a settlement June 30 and have not had a dime added to our paycheques to date," he said.

On opening the convention, Moore called for unity, citing the unauthorized walkout of the fallers in the spring and summer as a danger to a union known for its democratic ways. Had similar action been taken by some other groups it would have closed the forest industry throughout the coast region, he said.

He also welcomed the election in B.C. of an NDP government, but warned delegates not to think this meant labor's troubles had all been solved.

"We can't sit back and say Barrett (Premier Dave Barrett) is goint to take care of us," he said, "Because Barrett isn't."

He had no doubt the NDP would eliminate "repressive" labor legislation, but beyond that it would be up to the unions to work hard for economic progress of their members.

Barrett is scheduled to address the convention Thursday. Federal Labor Minister Martin O'Connell is to speak today.

Circulation Is Poor

By G.C. THOSTESON, MD

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do you have any information on leg ulcers from bad veins? I had varicose veins stripped about 15 years ago, and had one bad ulcer. The ulcer healed, but Now I am having trouble again with the same spot.

I am 51 and wonder what would be the best thing to do, before I go to several docfors and have them tell me, "Oh, stay off your feet," That's what the last one told me two years ago. We don't have a lot of money. Mrs. J.N.

The biggest single cause of unhealing leg ulcers is poor circulation, and of all the causes of poor circulation, the most frequent is varicose veins.

Why? Because nature cannot perform its healing functions without adequate circulation. When you had your varicose veins stripped (removed), your circulation improved and your ulcer healed. But that was years ago.

Recurrence of the ulcer now can involve any of several factors. One is the recurrence of superficial varicose veins (i.e., close to the surface). Removal of these veins may be as helpful as removal of the others was — but the condition of veins deeper in the leg may be involved. Your doctor would have to determine that.

Another possibility is that the ulcer area is vulnerable to the slightest injury. Organisms are known to lurk in such areas at times, and with a minor bump the skin can be broken, with another infected ulcer resulting.

Properly fitted support hose is an important help. In some cases pressure dressings are useful, one of these being a fitted thing called a Unna boot.

Hit-or-miss use of various salves and ointments is usually fruitless and a waste of time and money — but specific ointments, such as those containing an antibiotic or an enzyme may be necessary. It requires good medical judgment to know which to prescribe, however.

about 11 per cent higher for the full fiscal year.

Chief departments which would run over the budget estimates to a total of $65 million were also disclosed by the premier.

Main offender was highways with a surplus of $35 million.

Barrett explained that governments always spend more on highways in election years.

"It's known as yellow fever on the highway as every truck and bulldozer they can muster is out on the road.

"It gets so bad that they put paving on top of paving, which happened this year," he said.

Other over-the-budget estimates include:

- Hospital insurance, $6 million;
- Rehabilitation, $15 million;
- Elderly citizens grants, $2.5 million (not in the budget);
- Special warrants, $5 million;
- Attorney-general, $1 or $2 million; and
- Harbors boards, $1.5 million.

Barrett explained that education costs would increase by about $20 million a year under a loosening of the purse strings by the NDP government.

The NDP plans to eliminate a government-imposed limit on teacher's salary increases of 6.5 per cent in one year without a referendum, and raise to 110 per cent from 108 per cent the amount school boards will be allowed to spend over and above the basic education program.

The effect on the coffers would not be felt this year but in 1973-74 according to Barrett.

On other matters, Barrett said the government would make no decision on what to do with the area once destined to hold a 55-storey government building in Vancouver.

Although no official decision has been made to scrap the project, the NDP promised it would in the election campaign and Barrett said it was "obvious" what the decision would be.

The reason for the delay in announcing plans for the downtown block of land was the civic election in Vancouver, Barrett said.

It was reasonable to presume a new administration would take over the city of Vancouver — the mayor and four aldermen are not seeking re-election — and "we should deal with them," the premier said.

Meanwhile, Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall told reporters before cabinet Monday that he expected to be able to name members of the civil service bargaining committee Wednesday.

He said he had a list of 10 now and would thin it down to five or six after checks were made on availibility of people involved.

sights or raising admission prices which are now about 30 kopeks (36 cents) for the most popular galleries.

The total number of museum visitors has risen from 65 million to 100 million in five years and is expected to reach 200 million by 1980.

For many years, some of the most valuable collections of the Hermitage and the Kremlin have been closed to all except special foreign visitors and privileged Russians.

The museaum issue puts the government in a difficult position. If it raises admission prices, it will reverse a policy of making culture readily available to the people.

But if it does nothing more to preserve its treasures, the government will be criticized internationally and internally for allowing them to deteriorate further.

The best collections were inherited from the Czarist era. The Soviet government has added little that is worthwhile artistically to them.

"If we want the masterpieces of art to live through the centuries . . . we cannot allow the Hermitage to become a place of mass recreation and put too much hope on restoration," said I. A. Gorin, director of the all-union scientific laboratory for conserving museum and artistic values.

The Kremlin is probably the best maintained of all the cultural sights with its glorious old churches and rich museums.

Stalin, who is responsible for decades of neglect of the historic treasures, once asked to have the 16th-Century church built by Ivan the Terrible torn down to make the mamoth square even larger.

The architect to whom he gave the order reportedly threatened to commit suicide on the square in protest and the project was dropped.

Remember the Fleetwood check list when you shop for Color TV.

There are only eight things worth looking for (and paying extra for) in Color TV. Most manufacturers put most of them in their high-priced models—and they put some of them in their low-priced models. But no-one has so many of them in models priced as low as ours. And that's something you can easily check for yourself.

PICTURE QUALITY FEATURES:

1. A "Natural Color" Picture Tube. (Some picture tubes produce very bright, overly dramatic colors. But Fleetwood's SuperColor and TruColor Picture Tubes are both designed to make colors softer, more natural. In the long run, you'll be much happier with color like that.)
2. Automatic Picture Tuning. (We call it Total Picture Lok. It's a simple push-bar that controls and balances Color, Tint, Contrast, Brightness and Fine Tuning—automatically finds the best picture your set is capable of receiving on each channel. If you buy a set with this very worthwhile feature, you won't need the next three features. They're already included.)
3. Automatic Color Tuning. (It combines the functions of Automatic Tint Control and Automatic Fine Tuning—which between them determine the quality of the Color you get on each channel. We call it Total Color Lok. And if it's on the set you choose, you won't need the next two features.)
4. Automatic Tint Control. (We call it Tint Lok. What it does is automatically adjust color values. So if a series of greenish faces suddenly appear on your screen, you can just switch to Automatic Tint Control instead of trying to make the adjustment manually).
5. Automatic Fine Tuning. (It works like a push-button radio. You tune each station just once and your TV set "remembers" for itself after that. We call our AFT control Color Lok.)

RELIABILITY FEATURES:

6. A Solid State Chassis. (That's usually taken to mean a chassis that's at least 90% solid state. Transistors replace old-fashioned vacuum tubes in a solid state chassis—and transistors run cooler and thus eliminate overheating problems.)
7. Plug-in Transistors. (Because they're easier, faster and cheaper to replace than the solder-in kind. Fleetwood is the only manufacturer to use plug-in transistors right throughout the circuitry).
8. A Solid State Voltage Booster. (It boosts house current up to the high voltages needed to operate Color TV. You'll still find bulky and relatively unreliable voltage "cages" in some sets. They take up a lot of space and give off a lot of heat. Avoid them.)

LONDON (Reuter) — Mankind's knowledge of human evolution has been immensely enriched by the African discoveries of Dr. Louis Leakey, internationally famed anthropologist and archeologist who died here Sunday at the age of 69.

Leakey claimed to have discovered remains of the oldest known ancestor of man, dating back 20 million years and linking man with the ape.

A British citizen born in Kenya, where he spent most of his life, Leakey was spurred in his work throughout four decades by the belief that the earliest origins of

Barbed Wire Hangs Up 'Wild West' Stampede

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces tried to stampede a herd of water buffalo through a South Vietnamese military camp on the upper coast at dusk Monday, but the animals refused to charge through the barbed wire perimeter, military sources said today.

Picket Line Patrolled

MACKENZIE (CP) — RCMP Monday began regular patrols of a picket line set up by striking Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada after reports that two cars crossing the picket line were stoned.

Carl Axelsen, an employee of H. A. Simons International Ltd., engineering consultants to strike-bound B.C. Forest Products Ltd., said pickets hammered on the roof of his car and threw rocks at it.

"There were two cars stopped in the road," he said. "I went around them and rocks were thrown at my car. Pebbles were thrown at the windshield, nicking it.

"They (pickets) hammered on the roof and trunk and dented the car when they threw a big rock."

P. V. Frith, works products manager for BCFP, said the canopty window on another man's truck was broken by a rock thrown when he drove through the picket line.

An RCMP spokesman said police had decided to make regular patrols of the line "to make sure there is no harassment."

About 300 members of the PPWC last week struck the BCFP stud mill and sawmill located in an industrial park. The walkout erupted over a contract dispute.

At one point, a total of about 600 men, including employees of other firms located in the industrial park, were off the job. But all but BCFP operations returned to normal by the end of the week after the other firms agreed that no materials would be supplied to the company.

About 350 members of the International Woodworkers of America employed at a Finlay Forest Industries sawmill in the park have not been affected by the dispute.

Meantime, all but about 25 of the 150 construction trade unionists building a new BCFP pulp mill at the site Monday ignored the BCFP picket line. Only a small number of construction workers actually had to cross the line to get to their jobs since most are housed within the industrial park.

However, president Jim Kinnaird of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council said the men would not cross the picket lines today.

Kinnaird, who met with PPWC officials Monday to discuss the Mackenzie situation, said the building trades members had crossed the picket lines on the instructions of their officers who believed the construction site was not involved in the dispute. Mackenzie is north of Prince George.

East Berlin At Any Time

BERLIN, Germany (UPI) — West Berliners may visit East Berlin at any time starting Tuesday, the West Berlin senate announced Monday.

According to an agreement worked out between West Berlin and the East German government, residents of the western half of the city can get special visit cards at any one of five West Berlin offices, a senate spokesman said.

Suit Pressed Against B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A suit against the provincial attorney-general, challenging a recent amendment to the British Columbia Social Assistance Act, will go ahead, a spokesman for the Vancouver Community Legal Assistance Society said Monday.

David Mossop said the suit, on behalf of four children who are claiming they and their mother have been denied welfare by the government, is expected to be heard in late November or December.

"We think it's an important issue and should be tried in court," Mossop said.

The writ was filed before the Aug. 30 provincial election and there was some question as to whether or not to proceed with it after the Social Credit government was defeated by the New Democratic Party.

Mossop said he hopes the change in government will make a difference but said the client has decided to go ahead with legal action anyway.

The children, Deanna Turner, 3, Laura, 7, Melanie, 8, Stephen, 4, and Mary Turner, their mother, claim that a recent amendment to the social assistance act giving the rehabilitation minister "absolute discretion in welfare matters" is ultra vires, or beyond the government's authority.

Victorian Tells Convention:

Freeways Skirting Needs of Majority

WINNIPEG (CP) — The freeway system of highways often skirts around the actual transportation needs of most of the people, a convention was told Monday.

Norman Worsley, a traffic consultant with a Victoria firm, said studies have shown that a high percentage of highway traffic is short-distance local travel.

"There is much less traffic going from one major centre to another than most people would judge."

But the emphasis on freeways, with towns passed by, meant that "most small communities are being short-changed."

Worsley, speaking to the Roads and Transportation Association of Canada, said many communities want tourists to come downtown.

He said freeways often generate traffic, with a result that businesses build up around the bypasses and the original purpose is thwarted.

Instead of freeways, which become clogged with people who go out of their way to use them, a grid system of arterial routes should be developed.

Worsley said in an interview the American freeway system is a poor model for Canada to follow, and has accelerated the depletion of small town population.

"The American interstate freeway system is based on the wrong premise. They have ripped the countryside apart."

Another speaker told the convention that when the United States government offered to pay about 90 per cent of costs of building freeways, some cities were in effect forced to build them.

Tom Genties, special assistant to Saskatchewan's highways minister, said the effect of this was to distract attention from local transit problems that might have been a better long-term investment.

Leakey Enriched Evolution Theory

LONDON (Reuter) — Mankind's knowledge of human evolution has been immensely enriched by the African discoveries of Dr. Louis Leakey, internationally famed anthropologist and archeologist who died here Sunday at the age of 69.

Leakey claimed to have discovered remains of the oldest known ancestor of man, dating back 20 million years and linking man with the ape.

A British citizen born in Kenya, where he spent most of his life, Leakey was spurred in his work throughout four decades by the belief that the earliest origins of man lie in Africa rather than Asia.

Though not everyone accepts all his conclusions, scientific circles throughout the world have shown intense interest in the series of discoveries made in East Africa from 1959 onward by Leakey, his second wife Mary and two of his sons.

The slim scientist had travelled widely in Europe and North America explaining the significance of the discoveries.

Evasive Action

MYSTERY CONTINUES TO SURROUND the case of the acid-eaten Canadian destroyer Restigouche — known affectionately and otherwise by men in the so-called sea element of the armed services as "Rusty-guts." There is something very much worse than rust in the ship's interior. An inquiry which followed the discovery of extensive corrosion in her propulsion system disclosed that damage was due to the hydrochloric acid used in the cleaning of her boilers.

Last Friday the defence department explained with masterful obscurity that "the probable source of damage was the carryover of acid on completion of the chemical cleaning of the boilers." Presumably an excess amount of acid was used, possibly too strong a solution, and probably it was not eliminated before the boilers were fired, and consequently circulated through the main engines.

Men who served in what used to be the Royal Canadian Navy will recall that stokers involved in a boilerclean used stiff-wire brushes and elbow-power with a steam blow-through to follow.

No doubt the newer, sophisticated method is quicker and easier but it seems to entail considerable risk.

In a refit contract costing better than $12 million that sort of risk is not warranted.

There are other puzzling things about the Restigouche case. The defence department, making use of the jargon that so often makes government announcements unintelligible, says it will be "cost-effective" to repair the ship. It is necessary to speculate as to the meaning and assume that the department believes it will be economically feasible to let another contract to the same Halifax Shipyard Ltd. involved in the last fiasco. Because that is where Restigouche is going to have her damaged parts restored, either "refurbished" or "replaced."

How, it might be asked, is it possible for the departmental experts to assure everyone that the restoration will indeed be "cost-effective" when they are unable to estimate the figure?

Until the most careful examination has been made of all components of the ship's steam system they do not even know what can be saved — "refurbished" is the department's word — and what must be replaced.

"The inquiry was unable to define accurately the full extent of damage and reported that this can only be known when all involved equipment and systems have been opened and examined," says the department.

To the tax-paying layman it might have seemed simpler and more practical to make that detailed examination before letting a contract.

It might have been thought, too, that the public is entitled to know something about the contract with Halifax Shipyards Ltd. Once again it is necessary to make an assumption; the contract must be an open-ended thing because the company can hardly be in a better position than the departmental experts to make a good estimate of costs.

Somewhere along the line the suggestion appears to have been dropped — although the Canadian Press wire service does not attritube it to anyone — that the cost of labor on this job will be less than $600,000. But nobody knows yet what work is entailed or what man-hours. And nobody should be surprised if the final bill runs to a couple of million — or more.

Finally, the inquiry failed to ascertain who was responsible for what must be a lamentable piece of miscalculation or carelessness or simple incompetence — or even sabotage. Or, if it did, the department of defence does not consider that to be of public interest.

This newspaper thinks it is. It would like to know, among other things, the identity of the man or men responsible for this latest foul-up in a naval contract, so closely following the Bonaventure scandal and the mistaken millions poured into the Bras d'Or hydrofoil contract. It would like to know what disciplinary action is contemplated, whether there is any chance of recovery of some or all of the $12 million already spent on the Restigouche refit, and why the same shipyard that bungled the job gets another chance at a profitable contract.

Back to Transit Talks

THE GREATER VANCOUVER Regional District has approved resuming negotiations with the provincial government on a regional takeover of the B.C. Hydro bus system, which is a logical sequel to the election of a new government with new principles and policies. And Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer for his part, besides announcing that a "beefing up" of the bus services in Vancouver and Victoria will be a short-range aim of the government, has said that he will be open to discussions with local and regional governments and that it might be feasible to make the regional districts the owners of the bus systems.

The Social Credit government, it may be recalled, at the last session of the legislature offered regional takeover terms less favorable than those previously understood to be available. It had been believed that the government was willing to turn over Hydro's systems to the regions with annual subsidies equal to the losses sustained by Hydro in its final year of operating the buses, plus one-half of any additional losses in the future. But the less attractive terms were that the government would pay only one-half of the operating deficits of any future municipal or regional rapid transit systems —a much greater load on the local taxpayers than starting from nothing with full subsidization of Hydro's final-year losses.

The New Democrats' pre-election pledge was to "develop an extensive public transit system in our major cities in conjunction with citizen and local community groups, with the provincial government assuming the major financial responsibility." This policy was not attached to any timetable, and the Barrett government has in mind so many changes that no one can expect it to rush ahead with all of them. But it appears from Mr. Lorimer's statements that the government has no burning desire to unload the money-losing buses from Hydro and land them on the backs of the local governments; rather that it wants to improve the services while planning, in conjunction with the regions, how the long-term transit needs of the two urban areas can best be met.

It is true that Greater Vancouver's traffic problems lend much more urgency to finding public-transportation solutions than is felt in Greater Victoria. But the resumption of talks between the Vancouver regional district and the government should nevertheless be the signal for the Capital Regional District to renew its active interest in the future of its transportation system, for it is impossible to believe that the government will consider one type of financial and operational relationship with Vancouver and another with Victoria. If Victoria does not enter into negotiations at this time, at least it should seek to keep itself fully informed on the progress of mainland discussion and planning.

City Fireman-Power Held Inadequate

THE head of the Firemen's Union in Victoria, in a public statement recently, when comparing Victoria with Vancouver, stated that the largest number of men that could be mustered at any one time to fight a major fire in this city was 20. This is sufficient to provide only a minimum complement for five fire trucks.

Anyone who uses Yates Street regularly will know that there are more than five trucks in the main fire hall, not to mention the other two halls in the city which have a truck apiece in them. This means that expensive fire equipment is sitting idle and unused because there is insufficient manpower for them. Not only is this a dangerous situation, but it is uneconomical.

Whilst I acknowledge that there is a reciprocal arrangement with other surrounding fire departments, the assistance they could give in the case of a major conflagration is only very minimal because they have to protect their own areas.

It seems to me that the citizens of Victoria should be very alarmed at this situation, and should demand immediately that the city council ensure that enough personnel are available to man properly every piece of equipment around the clock, because one never knows when they will be needed.

How much longer are the citizens and council of Victoria going to be so apathetic about the protection of lives and property in this city?

I can only assume that the unmanned pieces of equipment are there for show purposes only, because they certainly cannot be used without the necessary men to man them. It certainly is nice to know at least that we can afford to keep expensive fire trucks around as museum pieces.

Let us raise our voices immediately, and get something done about this alarming situation.

HAROLD MORTON,

City Hall

Is there a sharpshooter at City Hall bristling at a digestible target? Or indigestible? Is anyone's aim sufficiently accurate to challenge the validity of, "If you can't say anything good about a person or issue — don't say anthing bad?"

Peter Pollen makes a commendable statement in his tangle with the city police union: "Morale is not built on money, but on dedication to the community." Because he lashes out at monopolistic industry infers favor to competition. Yet, the mayor states, "How long can we allow people to ignore the community's wishes." Does Peter Pollen exclude certain people for the community? If so, why?

I wasn't aware a community doesn't embrace everyone. Or that it comprises lots of minority groups with different shades of opinion, and a compromise accommodates a large segment.

I suggest we shoot with more sparkle to animate culture. And eliminate the worst virtues. Uncultured "coke" has no place in respectable society. Hamburgers can be eaten. But not in public. Hot dogs must be expelled. Anything artistic can't possibly be common. Because popularity is so indecent.

Power anywhere tends to corrupt. And I don't exclude local government.

Regarding your report in the Colonist about the man carrying a rifle in Centennial Square during Mr. Stanfield's visit and how the police could do nothing about it.

When I came to B.C. in 1947 I had a rifle and a shotgun. I went to the RCMP to have them registered and was astonished to be told these arms are not required to be registered.

In Britain all arms have always been registered and no one other than the army and the police is allowed to have a pistol. No one is allowed to register a rifle or shotgun, unless he can prove that he actually requires it and uses it for hunting game.

When will Canada wake up to the danger threatening us all which is now fully evident. The complacent answer "it can't happen here" is criminal.

Stanfield Sets Hot Campaign Pace But Trudeau Won't Be Hurried

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

ALTHOUGH it might change before the race is run, seldom has there been such a contrast between the way a prime minister and an opposition leader pace themselves in an election campaign.

Conservative leader Stanfield, streaking through time-zone after time zone as he jets from province to province, often spanning half the country in a day, is hitting a man-killing pace.

Out of bed, frequently, at five in the morning, and to bed again not until long after midnight.

Prime Minister Trudeau is flying the same type of jet but covering only a fraction of the country, getting back to Ottawa a couple of times a week for a rest, and usually, when out campaigning in short three or four-day bursts, taking it rather leisurely.

His schedule calls for a quite decent seven in the morning start and his campaigning day usually ends before nine at night with the final notation "to bed."

Now how come this difference in pace, so swift for the man who Liberals say reminds them of a tortoise, and so pokey for a man the Conservatives have always considered a hare?

★ ★ ★

Well, the prime minister has made no secret of heartily disliking the fatiguing grind of campaigning.

Stanfield probably doesn't really care, either, for this exercise in exhaustion, but hasn't said so.

But the prime minister has the advantage of being able to duck the worst of it — the up-before-dawn and post-midnight strain — by claiming he has to take time out to keep shop here in Ottawa and "run the country."

So far it seems to be working out for him, and probably will as long as he thinks he can safely ignore the ground being covered — and perhaps gained — by Stanfield's crazy-quilting of the country by jet-hopping.

He had hoped, before his last campaign in the 1965 election to make a let's-take-it-easy-and-use-our-heads deal with Conservative leader John Diefenbaker on campaigning.

After four elections — two losers and two winners — Pearson was ready to slow down the campaigning so as not to approach election day in a near-state of physical and nervous collapse.

But Dief said no, the race was on and the pace, after a pause-that-failed by Pearson, hot as ever.

In that pause Pearson announced that instead of chasing wildly all over the country he would spend some time in Ottawa working as prime minister instead of sweating it out across the land as Liberal election leader.

He gave that up when he saw how quickly the hard-campaigning Dief was closing what had started out as a big lead, and took off in hot pursuit.

Dief loved campaigning — as any man loves anything at which he excells — and when he was prime minister through three elections "kept shop" by long distance phone and a relay of government messengers between Ottawa and wherever the campaign train or plane happened to be.

It was government-by-remote-control for the eight weeks of the campaign, and while it likely drove the senior civil service back in Ottawa mad, Dief liked it and made it work.

He'd leap from his plane or train and head for the nearest phone — often a conveniently handy pay station — to call Ottawa and check what matters awaited a prime minister's final decision.

Prime Minister Trudeau isn't trying that yet.

But if Stanfield shows increasing strength, Trudeau may have to give up his leisurely pace and resort himself to "hot line" government for the balance of the campaign.

I Beg to Differ

Fingers Not for Chewing

By FRANK LOWE

SOME dedicated hockey fans are now glumly predicting that after the excitement and suspense dished up by the Canada-Russia series, NHL hockey will never be as appealing again.

And all I can say to that is, thank heaven.

I mean, how many Hockey Nights in Canada could the average viewer take if that kind of hockey became regular fare?

I don't know about you, but neither my nervous system nor my body is up to a sustained diet of this rich calibre.

This occurred to me as my little family huddled with me to watch that crucial match in far-away Moscow.

My wife, I should explain at the start, had $5 riding on Russia.

She did not pick Russia because of sentiment, I hasten to add. She picked Russia because just before the series started I stated that Canada would win.

My wife, who is convinced that I know nothing about everything, immediately saw a chance to make an easy fiver, and plumped for the Soviets.

Anyway, there we were for that big game. Russia scored, and my wife whacked me across the back. As I slid, semi-conscious, towards the floor, she picked me up and danced me around the room.

The only thing that gal loves more than a $5 bill is a $10 bill.

After I took some liquid pain killer, I limped back to my seat in front of the set. Time wore on, and on, and on. Twang, twang, twang went my nerves.

It was tough, bruising hockey on that Moscow ice. But it was child's play compared to what was going on in my home.

Each time a Canadian jolted a Soviet my wife would mutter, "dirty," and jolt me. When a Soviet creamed a Canadian player and I mentioned the fact she muttered something about self-defence.

Then, as you know, it happened. Three quick goals by the Canadians.

I got up and did a victory dance. My wife said, "Sit down, you old fool, before you put out your back again."

Somehow I had the delusion that after this it would be clear sailing. I could let those knots in my stomach dissolve and stop pretending I was Harry Sinden.

But, as you will recall, it was far from settled. The Soviets plunked home a second goal, my wife plunked me again, and then the real horror began.

There were my Canadians, sitting on a thin one-goal lead. Also, there were my Canadians, by ones and twos, sitting on the penalty bench.

Harry Sinden could at least pace up and down behind his bench. But if I tried any pacing my wife threatened to throw me out of the game — I mean room — as I was spoiling her concentration.

Her concentration on that $5, which she was sure would belong to her at any moment.

Then Ken Dryden made a big save. My wife booed Ken Dryden. I was shocked.

"Usually you cheer Ken Dryden," I reminded her.

"Usually I am betting on Ken Dryden," she snarled, not being one to allow her mind to stray from the main point of the game.

Then, just before I had permanently forgotten how to breathe, it was over. Canada had won.

All I can say is that I wouldn't want to go through this kind of thing every Saturday night.

If each and every NHL encounter featured this kind of hockey, I would be a prime candidate for a padded cell before December rolled around.

So I say bring on your Pittsburgh Penguins and your Atlanta Flames. I need the rest.

After all, these two index fingers of mine are for typing. Not for chewing.

What is President Bhutto of Pakistan up to? Is he backing out of the Simla pact which was supposed to usher in a durable peace in the subcontinent? The Indians are baffled by the president's volte face on Bangladesh.

At Simla Bhutto clearly indicated that he would recognise Bangladesh in August. But he has failed to keep his word and blocked Dacca's entry to the United Nations with the help of China.

Now Bhutto says Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, prime minister of Bangladesh, would have to meet him before he recognises. In an interview with the editor of a Bombay weekly he said that the sheikh must go through the formality of talks and that — even if the talks fail he would recognise Bangladesh.

Sheikh Mujib has reiterated that he would have no talks with Bhutto before recognition.

Yeti

There are restaurants named for him, as well as travel agencies and even Royal Nepal Airlines' new Boeing 727 jetliner.

Because of his religious importance, the governments of Tibet, Bhutan and Nepal have special laws protecting him.

Who is she?

The Yeti — Sherpa for "all-devouring creature" — or as we know him, the Abominable Snowman.

His legend has cast its shadow for hundreds of years over mountainous central Asia from Mongolia to the Caucasus.

A drawing of the hairy, ape-like creature appeared in an 18th-Century book of illustrations of Tibetan fauna published in Peking.

Chinese writers claim that before the revolution these creatures were hunted like animals and even tamed and kept as slaves.

On the other side of the Sino-Soviet split, however, Russian explorers dismiss the Yeti as a charming fairy tale.

In fact, except for the much-photographed mysterious giant footprints in the snow, virtually no reliable evidence of the creatures' existence has been found.

It was only a question of time before modern man would gather all his technological devices to determine once and for all whether the Yeti exists.

And now it appears that time has arrived.

Under the co-direction of Jeffery A. McNeely, 28, a University of California at Los Angeles zoology graduate and former keeper at the Los Angeles Zoo, an expedition is being assembled in Katmandu that will explore the Yeti's most likely habitat.

The five-man team will spend about 12 months, beginning in October, doing a thorough ecological survey of the Arun Valley in northeastern Nepal, a practically virgin area, which because of its remoteness has been undistur-

Is He Backing Out of Pact?

Bhutto's Volte Face Surprises Indians

By K. K. DUGGAL from New Delhi

What is President Bhutto of Pakistan up to? Is he backing out of the Simla pact which was supposed to usher in a durable peace in the subcontinent? The Indians are baffled by the president's volte face on Bangladesh.

At Simla Bhutto clearly indicated that he would recognise Bangladesh in August. But he has failed to keep his word and blocked Dacca's entry to the United Nations with the help of China.

Now Bhutto says Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, prime minister of Bangladesh, would have to meet him before he recognises. In an interview with the editor of a Bombay weekly he said that the sheikh must go through the formality of talks and that — even if the talks fail he would recognise Bangladesh.

Sheikh Mujib has reiterated that he would have no talks with Bhutto before recognition.

The Indians suspect that Bhutto is hedging on recognition at the istance of Peking which is willing to oblige him with its veto as long as Pakistan plays its game.

Thanks to Bhutto's frequent shifts, troop withdrawals from areas occupied by India and Pakistan during the December war have been twice put off. Under the Simla agreement the troops of either country were to withdraw to the international border by September 3, 30 days after ratification of the agreement. A new deadline of September 15 has also expired.

Suspicion is growing that Pakistan is dragging its feet on the delineation of the line of control in Jammu and Kashmir although Indian spokesmen have taken the line that delineation is an ardous, time-consuming process. New Delhi is keen to work out the line in the Simla spirit so as to give no pretext to Pakistan to abrogate the pact.

India has decided to give Bhutto a last chance to prove his bona fides. Bhutto has not yet exhausted New Delhi's patience. He has repeatedly stated that he wants durale peace in the subcontinent and stands by bilateralism enshrined in the Simla agreement. And New Delhi wants to pin him down on this.

New Delhi has brushed aside mounting public disillusionment with Bhutto reflected in the press in the hope that the Pakistan president will eventually come round to appreciating the advantages of detente.

It believes Bhutto's shifting stands on Bangladesh, the trial of war criminals and repatriation of prisoners show domestic strains. It appreciates that Bhutto is the only Pakistani leader who can thwart a military takeover and has a good chance of giving his country a democratic set-up.

It is no secret that Bhutto has trouble at home. The army is ever watchful for a chance to overthrow the civilian president and revive the military dictatorship which held power for over a decade.

Talk of a return by Field Marshal Ayub Khan to active politics shows that pro-military elements are still active. Bhutto has been busy denouncing Ayub Khan as the man responsible for the bifurcation of Pakistan.

Some of Bhutto's own party, the Pakistan People's Party, have called the Simla agreement as a "sell-out" to India.

Sind, Bhutto's home state, has recently had bloody language riots. Punjab, the sword-arm of Pakistan from where most of the army comes, is bitter about the Simla deal. The 90,000 prisoners of war are not yet home. The Punjabis are furious that Bhutto has done little to get them back.

The Punjabis hate the Sindhis. Their animosity is traditional. A Punjabi proverb says: "If you see a snake and Sindhi, kill the Sindhi first." Bhutto is a Sindhi.

Meanwhile, some Indian politicians are ready to attack Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi for having been taken for a ride by Bhutto. The rightwing parties have already accused her of losing at the conference table what the defence forces gained on the battlefield. Mrs. Gandhi, they say, should not have agreed to return a large chunk of conquered territory to Pakistan without settling Kashmir.

The Jana Sangh, which called the Simla pact a "sell-out", is making capital out of Pakistan's dilatory tactics. It projects Bhutto as the proverbial chameleon who changes colours too fast.

It says India was foolish to repose trust in a man who once talked of a thousand years of war. It points out that Bhutto sill talks about implementing UN resolutions on the POWs and the pull-out of Indian troops from Bangladesh, despite Sheikh Mujibur Rahman's repeated declarations that not a single Indian soldier is left in his country.

Yeti Persists for Hundreds of Years

By WILLIAM DRUMMOND
from Katmandu, Nepal

There are restaurants named for him, as well as travel agencies and even Royal Nepal Airlines' new Boeing 727 jetliner.

Because of his religious importance, the governments of Tibet, Bhutan and Nepal have special laws protecting him.

Who is she?

The Yeti — Sherpa for "all-devouring creature" — or as we know him, the Abominable Snowman.

His legend has cast its shadow for hundreds of years over mountainous central Asia from Mongolia to the Caucasus.

A drawing of the hairy, ape-like creature appeared in an 18th-Century book of illustrations of Tibetan fauna published in Peking.

Chinese writers claim that before the revolution these creatures were hunted like animals and even tamed and kept as slaves.

On the other side of the Sino-Soviet split, however, Russian explorers dismiss the Yeti as a charming fairy tale.

In fact, except for the much-photographed mysterious giant footprints in the snow, virtually no reliable evidence of the creatures' existence has been found.

It was only a question of time before modern man would gather all his technological devices to determine once and for all whether the Yeti exists.

And now it appears that time has arrived.

Under the co-direction of Jeffery A. McNeely, 28, a University of California at Los Angeles zoology graduate and former keeper at the Los Angeles Zoo, an expedition is being assembled in Katmandu that will explore the Yeti's most likely habitat.

The five-man team will spend about 12 months, beginning in October, doing a thorough ecological survey of the Arun Valley in northeastern Nepal, a practically virgin area, which because of its remoteness has been undisturbed by mountaineers or settlers.

The valley lies between two massive mountains, Everest and Kanchenjunga, at elevations of 8,000 to 14,000 feet.

It is a densely grown jungle of bamboo, cedar, hemlock, spruce and rhododendrons.

The expedition's prospectus points out: The Arun Valley is said by Sherpas to be the habitat of several large mammals unknown to science, including the famous Yeti.

The group will have a much better chance, said Lt. Col. James Roberts, a former British army officer with long experience exploring the Himalayas. For one thing, they will be in the country for more than a year, sitting and quietly watching.

He also cited these reasons:

- The other expeditions were ecological blitzkriegs that went into the countryside with dozens of people making noise and scaring away the animals.
- There are many things to be explained about this beast, and a small party is the best way to get to the bottom of it.
- Furthermore, none of the other Yeti-finding attempts was in possession of the new paraphernalia that the present venture has.

These gadgets include night vision devices, apparatus for remote photography, chemical lures, radio tracking equipment and even dart guns for shooting anesthetics to temporarily paralyze any animal subject.

The last serious attempt to search for the Yeti was Sir Edmund Hillary's expedition in 1960.

It ended with success. Hillary managed to take back for analysis what was reputed by Sherpas to be the skull of a Yeti.

The examination determined that it belonged to a bear.

Hillary's disappointing experience made a nonbeliever of him, but his method of looking for the creature, as Col. Roberts pointed out, was destined for failure.

Since the restriction was lifted, there have been four exploration parties primarily seeking the Yeti, including Hillary's. But most explorations have been undertaken by adventurers and not scientists.

McNeely will have no shortage of scientific talent on his expedition, made up mainly of former Peace Corps personnel from Bangkok.

The remaining members of the party are Dr. Douglas Burns, a 37-year-old psychiatrist and reptile expert; Dr. Howard B. Emery, 35, a physician, and James Foster, a Harvard botanist.

The $40,000 needed to pay for the project is being supplied by a Bangkok-based group called the Association for the Conservation of Wildlife.

The first photographs of the alleged Yeti footprints were taken in 1951 by British explorer Eric Shipton.

These tracks, spotted many times since, have been explained by skeptics as animal tracks enlarged by the melting effect of the sun.

Again, the mysterious footprints were left behind.

There is no shortage of testimonials from the Sherpas about sightings of the Yeti.

Hunters have reported seeing the hairy beast rush down a hill with fangs bared and hands raised for the attack.

There is no problem determining sex of the Yeti, say the Sherpas, because the female has pendulous breasts.

The male is described as relatively shy, while the female is said to be the more aggressive.

"GIVE US THIS DAY, OUR DAILY BREAD" . . . as we pause next Monday to give thanks my bread become a daily reminder of the many blessings that are ours.

Bread has always seemed to be a part of the Thanksgiving tradition, as it is a mainstay in our day-to-day living. Just as the celebration for grapes that make wine, or the storing of meat or fish in the larder, so is the larder, so is the reaping of the grain for bread associated with harvest time, a time of thanksgiving. Bread serves as the symbol of all foods, and man's dependence upon the land, the sun, the rain, the seasons and the Creator. Woodward's joins with the rest of Canada and many countries of the world in observing the 'Day of Bread' on Tuesday, Oct. 3.

Train Coming---in Two Weeks

New Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway depot on Esquimalt Road near Catherine has now been scheduled to open Oct. 16. First train was to depart from new station last Sunday, but work wasn't completed in time. New depot was built by city of Victoria at cost of $40,000, but to offset expenditure, railway firm gave Victoria old site at 50 per cent of market value. City needed old site to improve Johnson Street Bridge approach. New structure will house ticket office and waiting room for E and N Dayliner passenger service and company's dispatch and signal operations.

BUSINESS TOPICS

Miners Made It

By GEORGE GIBSON
Colonist Business Editor

If the mining enterprises on Vancouver Island didn't do so well in 1971 compared to the previous year, the employees didn't do too badly.

The Price Waterhouse and Co. report for 1971, recently published, shows that the industry employed 1,246 persons directly and through contractors, a 29-per-cent increase over the 1970 employment level. Wages and salaries for that group rose to a total of $12 million, a 37-per-cent leap from the previous year.

Wages and benefits in the mining industry in B.C. in 1971 increased by $876 to an average of $10,986 per employee.

Sales revenue from mining products on the Island declined from $17.5 million to $15.7 million.

Capital expenditure more than doubled to $64.8 million, compared to $29.8 million in 1970. The big factor here, of course, was the completion and run-in of the 36,000-ton Utah International copper project near Port Hardy.

The report, however, forsees nothing of that magnitude in the near future.

Approval by the Pollution Control Board is all that is required before Cominco can reopen its H.B. lead-zinc mine near Salmo.

Cominco has announced a $750,000 program of rehabilitating its H. B. concentrator and if the tailings pond gets the okay, production is expected to resume in the first quarter of 1973.

Cominco operated the mine from 1955 to 1966 when it was closed because of depressed zinc prices. Improvement in that situation the past few months has prompted the move.

The mine will employ 100 workers who will process an expected 1,000 tons per day, about the same production effort made before the mine shut down.

Henry Eng opens his third major grocery store in the area Thursday. It's located on Goldstream, near Jacklin, and is designed to serve the Langford area population of 10,000.

Eng said Monday that the 20,000-square-foot store, which will have six checkout stands and about 30 employees, will have an initial stock of $200,000 worth of goods. The building's cost is $250,000.

Eng's other enterprises are on Cloverdale in Saanich and on Songhees Road. His wholesaling business also operates from the Songhees location.

Lyall Dagg, head of Crown Zellerbach's paper products' operations for the past four years, has been appointed general manager of the company's Interior wood supply and products division, based in Kelowna.

Dagg, 43, a well-known curler, moves into Kelowna as CZ starts a $25 million modernization and consolidation of its manufacturing facilities in the Okanagan.

Clairtone Banned

TORONTO (CP) — Once-vaunted Clairtone Sound Corp. has failed to file required financial information so its shares have been banned from trading in Ontario.

Clairtone's shares were removed from the Toronto Stock Exchange in January. Now the Ontario Securities Commission has ruled they cannot be traded over-the-counter.

Clairtone, now under the wing of Industrial Estates Ltd., an agency of the Nova Scotia government, ceased to operate in the normal sense in mid-1970.

The $4 million plant opened at Stellarton, N.S., in 1966 to make television sets is closed except for a parts and service department.

Clairtone suffered losses of about $20 million when it failed to live up to early promises.

Coal

Brameda Interest Shrinks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Brameda Resources Ltd. of Vancouver Monday announced it has sold a 5 per cent interest in the Sukunka Valley coal property near Chetwynd, to Mikas Oil Co. for $1 million.

The deal was made under the Sukunka coking coal development contract between the two companies.

Mikas is a subsidiary of Brascan Ltd. Another Brascan subsidiary, Coalition Mining Ltd., earlier earned a 7½ per cent working interest in the property upon the expenditure of $1.5 million on exploration and development.

Brameda's interest now is 87½ per cent, Monday's announcement said.

Brameda said Mikas has the right to purchase an additional 47½ per cent interest from Brameda for $9.65 million, provided that it commits to arrange all financing to production on a debt basis by Jan. 31, 1973.

Brameda's interest in the project would then be 48 per cent.

Potential output from the Sukunka deposit has been estimated at 2 million long tons annually, increasing to 3.5 million tons after five years. Production could begin in 1975.

Former B.C. Premier Bennett Aug. 2 announced plans for a multi-million dollar development of the Sukunka deposit which would involve an estimated $250 million contract for transportation of coal by the provincially-owned B.C. Railway to Squamish. No formal announcement on the project has been made by the New Democratic Party government elected Aug. 30.

Northwest Flying

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Northwest Airlines and its 1,619 striking pilots reached a new contract agreement Monday, ending a 95-day-old strike which crippled the airline's service across the eastern, midwestern and northwestern parts of the United States and western Canada.

A spokesman for Northwest, seventh largest U.S. trunk air carrier, said the airline hopes to resume service to North Dakota, Montana, and Winnipeg, within two to three days, and at least partial service to all other points served by Northwest within five to seven days.

The spokesman said he could not predict when full normal service will be resumed, because all Northwest pilots must pass tests and requalify and it is uncertain how long this will take.

U.S. Tax Find

'Shocking' Evasions Bared by Computer

ATLANTA (UPI) — U.S. Internal Revenue Commissioner Johnnie Walters said Monday the IRS' new computerized audit program has turned up "shocking" attempts by some big corporations to evade taxes.

"It is unbelievable that large publicly held corporations engage in such schemes," Walters said in a blunt speech before the Tax Excutives Institute. "Yet they do.

"This is flouting of the law — deliberate, willful attempts to avoid and evade taxes with full knowledge of both what should be done and the result of what is done."

He said the IRS would seek presecution of corporate tax evaders now that its new system allows it to audit some 1,600 corporate giants in detail.

"We now look at records that were untouched before," he said. "We're raising issues never before raised. Some are alarming — in fact, shocking."

Walters said in one case, a company understated income by amortizing a nonexistent patent. Another, knowing that reserves for self-insurance are not tax deductible, "set up an intricate scheme to mislead the revenue agents."

Chinese Considering Canadian Sulphur

CALGARY (CP) — A Chinese petroleum mission will consider purchasing Canadian sulphur after it returns to the mainland, the mission chairman said Monday.

Tank Ke, vice-minister of fuel and chemical industries, said his conutry is short of the chemical and is aware of Canada's over-supply.

But active consideration of purchases would not be made until the end of the mission.

The vice-minister and 16 others are on a coast-to-coast tour of oil and gas facilities arrived in Alberta Friday after visiting offshore rigs in the east.

Tang also raised the possibility of equipment purchases.

China has three major oil fields and the vice-minister indicated some production zones were within permafrost areas.

Asked if he is interested in Canadian technology concerning permafrost construction, he said his country is developing its own and has been "very successful."

Mandarin Cheered

MONTREAL (CP) — Alcan products manager Creighton Cross received a standing ovation when he made his sales pitch in Mandarin during the recent Canadian trade caravan to China. Cross, who studied Chinese at the London School of Economics and recently took a refresher course at Toronto's York University, said the federal government told him he may have been the only Canadian to give a presentation in Mandarin.

Why Aren't You A Good Talker?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports a simple technique of everyday conversation which can pay you real dividends in social and business advancement and works like magic to give you poise, self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by what they say and how they say it. Whether in business, at social functions, or even in casual conversations with new acquaintences there are ways to make a good impression every time you talk.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday conversation, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Conversation," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your name, address and zip code to: Conversation, 555 E. Lange St., Dept. 630-42, Mundelein, Ill. 60060. A postcard will do.

Johnson and Snead Power Giants Win

From AP

New York Giants escaped the ranks of the winless Monday in the National Football League as a hard-running back and veteran quarterback came up big.

Ron Johnson scored all four touchdowns for the Giants, three on passes from Norm Snead, as New York powered its way to a 27-12 decision over Philadelphia Eagles.

Johnson, who finished with five receptions for 60 yards, caught scoring passes of 16, 15 and 13 yards as well as carrying the ball 128 yards on 37 carries. The second of his four touchdowns was on a five-yard plunge.

Snead, traded by the Eagles two years ago at the insistance of owner Leonard Tose who described him as a loser, connected on 12 of 19 passes for 164 yards and became the seventh player in NFL history to pass the 25,000-yard mark in yards gained passing.

The 12 Sunday games produced four startling upsets, a fifth victory that was on the unexpected side and a surprising tie. They also produced defeats for Chicago Bears and New Orleans Saints, who now have only the Eagles as company in the winless category.

Sunday's blockbusters were the defeats suffered by New York Jets, Dallas Cowboys, Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Rams. Of lesser surprise but still unexpected was the 27-6 trimming handed Cincinnati Bengals by Cleveland Browns and the 17-17 tie between San Diego Chargers and the forward Oakland Raiders.

The highlights:

- Green Bay Packers, making three interceptions and two fumble recoveries to help out the running of John Brockington, ended a Dallas win streak at 12 games with a 16-13 decision. Packers completed only four passes for 44 yards but got their touchdown after a fumble recovery and their last two field goals after interceptions by Al Matthews. Rookie Chester Marcol supplied all of Packers' last-half points with 48, 26 and 22-yard field goals;
- Josh Ashton, an NFL rookie who spent part of last season in Canada with B.C. Lions, scored two touchdowns and co-starred with quarterback Jim Plunkett to lead New England Patriots past the Redskins, 24-23. Curt Knight kicked a fourth-quarter field goal but Redskins elected to accept a penalty and first down instead of the tying points, then could do no better than a safety as Knight missed on attempts of 27 and 50 yards;
- Cid Edwards, former St. Louis Cardinal making his first start for the Chargers, ran for 96 yards and caught six passes for 100 yards, at Oakland. George Blanda, who tied the score for Oakland earlier in the fourth quarter with a 40-yard field goal, missed from 37 yards with about a minute left. Raiders took a 14-0 lead in the first quarter but the improved Chargers came back to take the lead;
- Atlanta Falcons turned a bruising ground game into a 31-3 rout of the Rams, who operated for most of the game without sore-armed Roman Gabriel. Dave Hampton set a team rushing record with his 161 yards from 29 carries while Art Malone battered his way for 103 yards in 18 carries;
- Quarterback Greg Landry ran for three touchdowns, from 10, six and 13 yards, and passed for one in the 38-24 victory Detroit Lions marked up over Chicago Bears;
- Miami Dolphins became the only unbeaten team in either conference by sneaking past Minnesota Vikings, 16-14, when Bob Griese and Jim Mandich combined on a three-yard scoring pass with 88 seconds remaining. Garo Yepremian provided the other Miami points with the convert and 38, 42 and 51-yard field goals.

Canadiens Rally To Nip Rangers

Chuck Lefley's second goal climaxed a four-goal rally in the final period Monday and gave Montreal Canadiens a 6-5 victory over New York Rangers in a National Hockey League exhibition game at Madison Square Gardens.

Lefley's goal came with 3:09 remaining in the third period, capping the comeback for Canadiens, who were down, 0-4, at one point. Rangers led 2-0 after the first period on goals by Vic Hadfield, making his second appearance since leaving Team Canada in Moscow, and Glen Sather. Peter Stemkowski scored twice in the second period before Lefley started the Montreal attack.

Two Youngsters Double Winners

Great displays of running and stamina were given at Elk Lake Sunday by Ulla Hansen of Victoria Mercuries and Tom Griffin of Arbutus Junior High School.

Both were competing in the annual Royal Canadian Legion cross-country meet and both won races in their own age groups and returned, after only an hour's rest, to win in an older division.

Miss Hansen took the bantam race for girls 13 and under, a distance of 1.2 miles, and then ran to victory in the 2.2-mile race for midget girls (15 and under).

Griffin won both the 2.6-mile midget event for boys 15 and under and the juvenile boys' (17 and under) 3.6-mile race.

Adrian Jones just beat Charlie Thorne in a thrilling duel between the two unattached runners over the six-mile open men's course.

Wendy Thompson, also unattached, outlasted Anne Langdale of Mercuries to win the 2.6-mile open women's race.

More than 200 competitors, ranging in age from eight to 42, from six clubs and 10 schools took part in the meet which was hosted by Invictus.

Mercuries and Colwood Elementary School each won three of the 11 team titles at stake.

Other winners were Ronnie Tuckey, Duncan (tyke boys, 9 and under); Marge McCormick, Happy Valley (tyke girls); Duncan McIntyre, Victoria Flying "Y" and James Ellis "Y" tie (peewee boys, 11 and under); Linda Kerrone, Duncan (peewee girls); Karl Rhynas "Y" (bantam boys, 13 and under); and Don Todd "Y" (masters, 35 and over).

Rousing Welcome for Team Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Some 80,000 Torontonians risked pneumonia in a steady downpour Sunday night to say thank you to Team Canada.

Assembled for hours in downtown Nathan Phillips Square before the team arrived, they blew horns, waved flags, chanted "We're No. 1" and jockeyed for position under the nearest umbrella until their heroes arrived.

When they came, the crowd roared its welcome to them, collectively and individually, with climactic outbursts for Phil Esposito and Paul Henderson for their key efforts in the eight-game series against the Soviet national team.

Earlier, Prime Minister Trudeau and Mayor Jean Drapeau headed a party of 10,000 who greeted the team at Montreal International Airport with equal warmth.

"Toronto is the best place I've ever been," said Brad Park, a native son who plays defence for New York Rangers.

"You fans are just unbelievable," said Henderson, who scored the winning goal in each of the three Canadian victories in Moscow.

Esposito, who had expressed resentment when Team Canada was booed as it suffered a 5-3 loss to the Russians in Vancouver, made his peace with the fans.

"You people have proved me wrong and have proved the rest of us wrong," he said. "I thank you very much for your support."

Each player in turn received his round of applause as he stepped forward to accept the city's official gold cuff links from Mayor William Dennison. Earlier, at the crowd's insistence, Henderson and Esposito had been hoisted on the shoulders of their teammates.

Tigers Charge to Top As Lolich Stops Sox

Detroit Tigers stormed past Boston Red Sox Monday to within one win of the American League East championship.

Tigers, on the six-hit pitching of Mickey Lolich, topped the Red Sox, 4-1, in the opener of a three-game series which will decide the decision title.

A win tonight or in Wednesday's finale will give Tigers the pennant and a berth in the league playoffs against Oakland Athletics, the West Division champions, starting Saturday.

Red Sox, who had held or shared first place since Sept. 19, will use Luis Tiant, winner of 11 of his last 12 starts, today against Woody Fryman, a major contributor to Tigers' success in the stretch drive.

Lolich was overpowering Monday in notching his 22nd victory. The big lefthander struck out 15 batters, stifling the Red Sox after they had tied the score at 1-1 in the third inning.

Aurelio Rodriguez supplied all of the Detroit runs after a first-inning homer by Al Kaline. Rodriguez slammed a home run and two run-scoring singles.

Tigers got an assist Sunday from Baltimore when Orioles, league winners the last three seasons, dumped the Red Sox, 2-1, while Detroit was winning, 5-1, over Milwaukee.

John Hiller, a Toronto-born pitcher who sat out last season because of a heart condition, was the Tiger hero Sunday. Hiller, two years to the day after his last major-league victory, pitched a five-hitter to beat the Brewers.

"It was a big thrill coming back to baseball," said Hiller, who has appeared in 24 games since returning from the voluntary retirement list on July 8 and had just finished his third starting assignment this season.

"But maybe it's a bigger thrill being in this race," he added.

Hitting help Sunday also came from Rodriguez, who cracked a three-run homer, and Kaline and Dick McAuliffe who also smashed home runs.

Boston was stopped Sunday by Mike Cuellar's eight-hit pitching and Bobby Grich's sixth-inning home run which broke a 1-1 deadlock.

Orioles gained sole possession of third place in the Eastern Division when the Brewers downed New York Yankees, 6-1, Monday night. Brewers snapped a 1-1 tie with three runs in the eighth inning and left-hander Ken Brett breezed home with a six-hit victory. Brett, who gave up Bobby Murcer's 32nd home run, was locked in a duel with 16-game winner Steve Kline until the outburst.

In the only other American League game Monday, pinch-hitter Buddy Bradford's grand-slam home run in the eighth inning led Chicago White Sox to a 6-4 triumph over Minnesota Twins. Bradford's clout, with two out, came off reliever Dave LaRoche, who had replaced starter Dick Woodson with runners on second and third bases and two out. LaRoche gave up a base on balls to Tony Muser before facing Bradford.

On Sunday, Cleveland Indians swept a doubleheader from the Yankees, 2-1 and 4-3. Gaylord Perry earned his 24th victory against 16 defeats in the opener, limiting the Yankees to four hits.

Wilber Wood also picked up his 24th win, outdueling Ken Bosman in Chicago White Sox' 1-0 win over Texas Rangers. Both pitchers had three-hitters but Wood made a first-inning run stand up for the triumph.

At Kansas City, Ken Holtzman got his 19th victory, scattering six hits while the Athletics scored four runs in the final three innings for a 4-2 decision over the Royals

Stoneman Pitches Second No-Hitter

The 28-year-old Montreal Expo righthander struck out nine batters but seven bases on balls kept him under pressure before he emerged with a 7-0 decision over New York Mets.

Stoneman's masterpiece, the first no-hitter in Montreal's Jarry Park, was saved twice by centrefielder Boots Day, who made fine running catches off Ed Kranepool in the sixth inning and Lute Barnes in the eighth.

Facing the heart of the Mets' batting order in the ninth inning, Stoneman got Kranepool on a fly ball to Day, Bill Sudakis, who escaped a strikeout when Tim McCarver dropped a foul tip on a 1-2 pitch, on a pop up to Ken Singleton at second base, and Dave Schneck on a swinging strike on a 3-2 pitch.

Mets came back to win the second game, 2-1, when Kranepool, after tripling, scored on Scheck's two-out single in the ninth inning.

It was the third no-hitter of the 1972 season, all in the National League. Chicago rookie Burt Hooton stopped Philadelphia on April 16 and Milt Pappas, also of the Cubs, did it against San Diego on Sept. 2.

Stoneman's first no-hitter came against Philadelphia on April 17, 1969 in his fifth major-league start.

In Monday's only other game, the Cubs, who clinched second place in the East Division with a 3-0 win over St. Louis Cards, used seven rookies in the starting lineup and edged Philadelphia, 4-3.

Also on Sunday, lefthander Don Gullett, who had hepatitis earlier this season, had a no-hitter going seven innings before giving up a pair of hits and got ninth-inning help from Clay Carroll as Cincinnati edged Los Angeles, 1-0.

It was the 36th save for Carroll, topping the previous major-league record set by his former roommate, Wayne Granger, in 1970, and equalled this season by Sparky Lyle of the New York Yankees.

Cougars Fill Goal Gap In Deal with Blades

Victoria Cougars came up with an experienced goaltender Monday just in time for their western Canada Junior Hockey League opener Thursday in New Westminster against the Bruins.

Sam Clegg, a 19-year-old who was an all-star two seasons ago with Kamloops Rockets of the British Columbia Junior Hockey League, has been obtained by the Cougars in a straight cash deal with Saskatoon Blades of the WCJHL.

Eric Bishop, general manager of the Cougars, said the deal was made with the Blades because the prairie club had two 19-year-old goalkeepers—Ed Humphreys, who played in 36 games last season and had a 3.62 goals-against average, and Clegg.

Clegg, described as a "fiery" competitor, was in the Calgary Centennials organization while in the BCJHL but was traded by the WCJHL club to Blades for forward Doug Horbul. Clegg suffered a knee injury and underwent surgery before the 1971-72 season and didn't get into a game until January. He played in eight games for Blades, allowing 31 goals.

The five-foot-10-inch, 175-pounder is driving from Saskatchewan and is expected to report to the Cougars this afternoon.

Cougars open their home schedule against Calgary Centennials at Memorial Arena on Saturday night and until one goalkeeper, 15-year-old Clegg's acquisition had only Dan Rogers.

Ron Bourcier, expected to be the club's first-string goalkeeper, was suspended Friday for a violation of curfew along with forward Bob Murdoch. Bishop said he has been on the telephone since but has not come up with any trades.

Cougars wrapped up their exhibition schedule with their sixth win against two losses, downing Chemainus Blues of the Vancouver Island Hockey League, 3-1, Sunday at Fuller Lake Arena. Pete Lemon, Don Dzaidyk and Al McLaren scored for Cougars while Doug Griff's power-play goal late in the third period accounted for Chemainus' scoring. Rogers turned in a strong performance in the Victoria nets.

Blades, meanwhile ran their exhibition win streak to six games, trimming Brandon Wheat Kings, 6-1, in a WCJHL game. Regina Pats, expected to be the power of the Eastern Division, defeated Edmonton Oil Kings, 4-2, Sunday after blanking the Kings, 2-0, Saturday.

In a Monday game, Flin Flon Bombers won their seventh straight, a 6-3 decision over the Jets in Winnipeg.

North Shore Cougars, the opponents for Victoria Dolphins next Monday, pulled the upset of the B.C. Junior Big Four Football League season Sunday in Vancouver.

Cougars defeated Vancouver Meralomas, 25-22, snapping the powerful Lomas' win streak against B.C. and Alberta competition which spanned almost four seasons at 35 games.

In the other game Sunday at Empire Stadium which closed out the regular schedule, Burnaby Spartans broke out of a seven-game winless slump by downing Vancouver Blue Bombers, 8-6.

Cougars and Dolphins finished in a second-place tie in the standings with four wins, two losses and a tie but Dolphins got the home-field advantage for Monday's game because the club's final league game was cancelled.

League officials decided last week to shorten the schedule when Cougars stated they didn't want to play Meralomas on a Friday and Dolphins on a Sunday. Dolphins, in second place alone at the time, were awarded second place and the sudden-death semi-final, for the right to tackle Meralomas, will be at Royal Athletic Park starting at 1:30 p.m. Monday.

PORTLAND, ORE. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth, leading money-winning among U.S. professional women golfers, blasted to a five-under-par 68 Sunday for a four-stroke victory in the $25,000 Portland Ladies Classic.

Miss Whitworth, winning her fifth tournament this year, carded six birdies in the final round, winding up with a 54-hole total of 212, seven under par.

Miss Whitworth trailed by four strokes after the opening round but rallied for a 65 Saturday that put her only two strokes off the pace set by Judy Rankin.

But it was about as close as a final could be as Morfitt edged John Frazler, formerly of Philadelphia, 18-17, in the fifth and deciding game.

Lomas Helps Blues To National Title

TORONTO (CP) — Westminster Blues of the Pacific Coast Soccer League blanked San Fili of Toronto, 3-0, Sunday to win the Canadian amateur soccer championship.

A crowd of more than 5000 watched the Blues become the second Coast League club to win the title in two years. Eintracht Vancouver, now in the B.C. Premier Soccer League, won last year.

Danny Lomas, on loan to the Blues from Victoria West United, Metro Gerela and Doug Wilson scored the goals.

Blues have been challenged by Toronto Croatia, the National Soccer League champions, to play for the Canadian open title but no match has been arranged yet. Croatia is a semi-professional team.

Victoria High Tyees cracked a first-place tie in the Victoria Senior High School Soccer League Monday by blasting Oak Bay Bays, 4-0.

Both teams struggled to control the ball with many bad bounces on the bumpy Oak Bay field and at half time Tyees led only 1-0 on Gary McLaren's goal.

Tyees settled down in the second half and, using their wings well, soon controlled the play. Steve Forslund, the team's other striker, scored all three second-half goals, the last one on a penalty.

It was the third shutout in the last four games for Danny Wilmshurst. He had to make several good saves in the first half, although on most of Oak Bay's best chances the ball was blasted wide of the net.

Claremont Spartans climbed out of a tie with Belmont and over Mount View when they scored two second-half goals to come from behind and beat the Braves, 3-2, at Belmont.

Dave Moscrop scored both goals to give Braves a 2-1 lead at half time but Spartans, who got a first-half goal from Darryl Schumaker, came back after the interval with goals by Mike Costello and Bob Lee. Lee's shot was deflected in by a defender.

At Reynolds, the home team surprised Mount View, 4-2. Reynolds led, 2-1, at half time on goals by Howie Kirk and Mark Stacey to Tom Hood's goal from Mount View. Bill Beischer and George Sheard added second-half goals for Reynolds while Kurt Robb replied for Mount View.

And in the remaining game, Mt. Douglas handed Esquimalt its sixth straight defeat with a 2-0 win at Esquimalt.

Allan Grey got the first goal on a solo break and Dave Plimlott scored the second on a clever three-way passing play. Both goals came in the first half.

Morfitt Pressed To Retain Title

But it was about as close as a final could be as Morfitt edged John Frazier, formerly of Philadelphia, 18-17, in the fifth and deciding game.

Pat Richardson won the "B" class title with a thrilling 3-2 victory over Mike Desaulniers in a battle between the two Vancouver 15-year-olds.

Drag Marks Shattered

WENDOVER, Utah (AP) — Rocket drag racer Pollution Packer, driven by Dave Anderson of Minneapolis, set 12 land-speed records Saturday and Sunday on the Bobbeville Salt Flats in western Utah.

Anderson, 34, drove to international and U.S. records in the standing quarter-mile, standing 500 metres and standing kilometre. He broke records in national and international unlimited category and set the first records ever in the national and international rocket-powered car class.

The hydrogen peroxide powered car had an average speed of 158.842 miles an hour in an elapsed time of 5.509 seconds for the standing quarter-mile and reached 173.918 m.p.h. in a 500-metre run. The time and speed were averaged from two runs from a standing start, once in each direction, as required for international records.

VANCOUVER — Victoria Regals made it seven matches in a rown without a defeat Sunday when they played to a 1-1 tie with Vancouver Columbus.

The draw left Regals with a 6-5 edge in goals after five games against the B.C. Premier Soccer League leaders. After a 0-0 tie, Victoria won, 3-2, Columbus won, 2-1, and then Regals won again, 1-0, in the four previous meetings.

Regals, who have two more away games, both against Eintracht Vancouver, play Columbus again in Victoria Oct. 21 in their last league match of the season.

Regals' goal, credited to Peter Brett, came 29 minutes into the game when Jim Bentley's corner kick was caught by Columbus goalkeeper Bill Grant. Brett shoulder-charged the goalkeeper and he stumbled into his net and dropped the ball.

Columbus got the equalizer 18 minutes into the second half on Victor Kodelja's free kick from 22 yards.

Before that, goalkeeper Graham Lee had made two great saves, one on a three-man break by the forwards and the other on a free kick by Kodelja.

The draw took Regals points to 22, 10 behind Columbus, who have already clinched first place, and two ahead of Croatia and Spartans, who are tied for third place.

School Harriers Repeat Outcome

Mt. Douglas and Claremont repeated last week's wins in the high school cross-country leagues race Monday.

Mt. Douglas took the girls' division and Claremont triumphed in the boys' section in the second of the eight-race series. Mt. Douglas scored 16 points in the reverse-scoring system, Claremont was second with 29 and Mount View and Belmont were third with 62 points. In the boys' standings, Claremont won with 37 points, Oak Bay 84 points for second place and Belmont took third spot with 90 points.

Kathy Sapsford of Mt. Douglas took the one-mile-plus girls' event in 5:56 minutes, beating Claremont's Jill McLeod by two seconds. Kathy Bertoia of Mt. Douglas came third.

Richard Kirkham turned in a time of 15:06 to take the boys' race over the three-mile-plus course. The Oak Bay runner beat runner-up Fraser Symes of Mt. Douglas by 52 seconds. Another Mt. Douglas competitor, Mike Long, was third.

Stamps, Ticats Improve Ratings

Calgary Stampeders are still a playoff threat and Hamilton Tiger-Cats continue to look like likely conference champions.

Both clubs improved their rating in Sunday's two Canadian Football League games, the Stampeders crushing Saskatchewan Roughriders, 31-14, and the Ticats bouncing past Ottawa Rough Riders, 25-20.

Results left Stampeders within four points of the third-place Saskatchewan Roughriders and moved Hamilton into a first-place tie, with Ottawa, in the Eastern Conference.

Tonight's game between Winnipeg and B.C. Lions will be broadcast on radio stations CJVI (900) and CKWX (1180) starting at 8 p.m.

Stampeders have a game in hand, but they also have to play four of their remaining games, two of them in three days on an eastern road trip, away from home. In addition to the games in Hamilton and Ottawa, the Stampeders are on the road for games against Edmonton Eskimos and B.C. Lions. The Lions and Toronto Argos have games in Calgary.

A healthy Jesse Mims played a big part in the Calgary triumph. The fleet halfback scored twice on 30-yard runs and collected a total of 125 yards for his 20 carries.

Fritz Seyferth, a newcomer who replaced Hugh McKinnis at fullback, was also prominent in the tough Calgary ground attack, adding 80 yards in 16 chances to pack the ball. Stampeders got only 52 yards in passing—five completions in 14 throws—but they banged away for 244 yards on the ground.

Saskatchewan played without defence-tackle Ed McQuarters and quarterback Ron Lancaster and had fullback George Reed playing with bruised ribs. Reed got only 25 yards in eight carries.

Bubba Wyche took over for Lancaster and kept his club in contention until midway through the fourth quarter. Three interceptions hurt him the most, setting up two touchdowns and one field goal.

In Ottawa, an impressive first-half made is comparatively easy for Ticats. Led by rookie-quarterback Chuck Ealey, they rolled up 234 yards to 75 for Ottawa and boomed into a 22-point lead before yielding a point.

Ottawa got a field goal late in the second quarter to start the second half at 3-22 but could do no better than exchange field goals in the third quarter and fell short with a last-quarter rally which produced two touchdowns.

The crushing blow for the losers came early in the second quarter when Ticats got 14 points within 33 seconds. The Hamilton club ended a march at 1:19 when Dave Buchanan blasted through the middle from four yards. Then Rick Cassata fumbled on the first play after the kickoff, Angelo Mosca booted the loose ball into the end zone and linebacker Bruce Smith fell on it for Hamilton's third touchdown.

Rugby First Here On Thursday

Fans will witness what is almost certainly a "first" in international rugby matches when Victoria Ebb Tide plays the Wak-Waks of Japan Thursday.

Instead of two halves, the game — of over-40 players which kicks off at 7:30 p.m. at Royal Athletic Park — will be played in three periods.

Victoria officials were a little baffled at first when the Japanese requested two 30-minute periods followed by a final 25-minute period. But there's a good reason.

Ebb Tide will be made up mostly of players who have not long turned 40 but the Wak-Waks are bringing a squad of 50 men of a much older average age.

There is, for instance, sprightly Tsukasa Shirasaki, who is five feet six inches and 110 pounds and is, at 70, the "old boy" of the side.

He will get a chance to impress the crowd, along with others like Kuzurisa Miyahara, 66, Ryozo Tanigaki, 67, and Hajime Nagai, 63, in the third period.

"The third period is for the oldsters," a Victoria Rugby Union official explained Thursday night. "But we will probably have to put our young oldsters back in against them — we just don't have enough older former players who are in as good a shape as the Japanese obviously are."

For the first two periods, there will be no substitutions during play, even for injuries, but there will be unlimited substitutions — including the whole team if necessary — at the breaks.

Premier Dave Barrett, a keen rugby man who still turns out occasionally for Ex-Brits in Vancouver, declined an invitation to play for the Ebb Tide but will officiate at the kickoff.

Barrett will play fullback for the B.C. over-40 Reps when they take on the Wak-Waks in Vancouver on Saturday.

Victoria's final trial match will be played Sunday at Shawnigan Lake Boys' School at 11 a.m. and the Ebb Tide team will be named following that.

Vikings Win Opener

University of Victoria Vikings, who don't really play in the league, won the opening game Sunday in the Victoria Intermediate Hockey League.

Vikings downed Ingraham Buckaroos, 5-3, at Juan de Fuca Arena. Vikings, competing in the Canada West University Athletic Association Hockey League this season, will play against the three teams in the Victoria league — Ingrahams, Stockers North Americans and James Bay Athletic Association — but the results only count for their opponents.

Ken Waet's third-period goal snapped a 1-1 deadlock and gave Stockers the victory. Laurie Huck gave Stockers the lead in the first period but Kelly Christianson tied it for James Bay early in the final period. Don Toffee in the James Bay nets mad 30 stops, compared to 12 for Stockers' Ken Olson.

Next Game: Wednesday — James Bay vs. Cowichan, 7:30 p.m., Royal Athletic Park.

Saanich Hornets' defence came up big Sunday and the leaders of the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League widened their margin to four points.

Hornets blanked Cowichan Timbermen, 22-0, in Duncan to lower their points-against total to less than a converted touchdown per game. Norm Baker converted touchdowns by Kerry Lacroix, Jeff Herold and Randy Kerr and quarterback Lawrie Garrett kicked a 40-yard single to complete the scoring.

NEW YORK (AP) — Key To The Mint pulled away from Riva Ridge in the stretch after duelling most of the way with the Kentucky Derby winner in the Belmont Park slop and won the $100,000-added Woodward Stakes Saturday.

Key To The Mint's stablemate, the tough three-year-old filly Summer Guest, finished second and Autobiography third as Riva Ridge faded to Fourth. However, after a steward's inquiry Summer Guest was placed third for the interference and Autobiography was moved to second.

Singer Edie's Ribs Hurt After Operatic Debut

SEATTLE (AP) — From pops to ops, "My ribs hurt," Edie Adams said Friday following her operatic debut in Offenbach's La Perichole.

For Miss Adams, 43-year-old stage and nightclub songstress turned diva, the generally favorable reviews were a mixed blessing. It hurt when she smiled.

"I feel like I've done 143 pushups," she said following her performance here. There were three performances left.

"Whatever they (the reviewers) say is right," she said, fingering a newspaper. "You just don't take your voice out of a pocket and compared yourself to Joan Sutherland."

The physical energy required of her opening night performance of the light, comic opera surprised her, Miss Adams said in an interview.

It's like the Olympics. By the third act of the two-hour set I was really holding on," she said.

The audience "came expecting a freak show, I think," she said. "And they found out I could sing a little. Now that I know that I can, I hope to do some more."

But her operatic career probably would be pre-empted by a possible television series now under negotiations and a seven-year contract to advertise cigars, she said.

"But I'm not doing it for a living," Miss Adams said. "Opera is so much bigger than life."

Alberta Censor May Be Cut

EDMONTON (CP) — Classification of films likely will it's become an over-riding replace censorship in Alberta, the chairman of a special legislative committee studying censorship said Monday.

Ernie Jamison, Progressive Conservative MLA for St. Albert, said more than 150 briefs have been received by the committee which will hold public hearings Oct. 11 and 12 in Edmonton and Calgary before making recommendations to the legislature.

Jamison said he thinks Alberta should follow Quebec's example of inviting critics and media representatives to view questionable films before a classification is made. He also expressed concern over the violence in films and on television.

He said research has shown a connection between violence in films and on television and the actions of some people.

Kids Missing Big Bird

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Big Bird, Oscar the Grouch and other inhabitants of television's Sesame Street have a lot of friends that miss them in the Barrie area.

A spokesman for station CKVR said the U.S. program was dropped in July because of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission ruling that allows the broadcast of only 40-percent foreign material.

Although cable television subscribers in Barrie can get the program, a number of people in rural areas can only get CKVR.

They are licence-renewal submissions by the Port Renfrew Community Association and the West Coast Community TV Association of Ucluelet for repeater stations in their area and by B. C. Television for a similar station in Courtenay.

New B.C. Travel Industry Aide 'Ideas Man'

Colby
. . . talented

Richard Colby was appointed acting deputy travel minister Monday and his boss wants him to be "an input man for ideas."

His boss, Travel Industry Minister Ernie Hall, announced the appointment which took Colby up the promotion ladder from the executive director position he has held in the department since 1967.

"Dick Colby has earned his promotion through his own enterprise and talents.

"He brings to the office a wealth of experience and knowledge of the entire travel industry.

"Under his guidance, tourism in B.C. can be expected to flourish and prosper," Hall said.

Colby replaces Ron Worley, who was fired soon after the New Democratic Party took office. Colby's salary will be $22,250.

In an informal interview after the announcement, a few of Colby's ideas began to trickle through.

For one thing, he said he was disturbed at the name of the Pacific Rim National Park on Vancouver Island's west coast and he would suggest the federal government be encouraged to change it to something with a "B.C. flavor."

In his opinion, the name could be Wickanninish after a bay in the park near Long Beach.

Another of his concerns was to even out the peak periods for tourism in B.C. by building up the traffic in what he termed "shoulder months" — the period before and after the peak summer activity.

Hall explained that Colby would be in the "acting" deputy minister capacity — a practice followed by the former Social Credit government.

During the Colby news conference, Hall also re-affirmed that his department would evaluate the role and operation of the three B.C. travel offices outside the province in San Francisco, Los Angeles and London.

"I don't think we'll close the offices. I like the idea of them and they will stay in some way or another," he said.

The minister also said an evaluation had been called for in methods of disseminating travel information because he believed present policies could be improved.

And Hall has called for other evaluations of current advertising by his department and contracts for creative work and filming.

On advertising, he said there was "likely to be some changes" but he quickly added that this was "no threat to any agency" now handling work from his department.

Colby, aged 60, is a native Victorian and has been working for the provincial government since 1929 when he began as a junior clerk in the public works department.

Other posts he has held include chief of the photographic branch of the B.C. Travel Bureau and later with the recreation and conservation department, and in 1961, director of the travel bureau.

PROVINCIAL COURT

Two assaults in defiance of a probation order to keep the peace cost a 44-year-old Victoria man a total of 45 days in jail Monday in Victoria Provincial Court.

The man, Ernest Perry of 2673 Blanshard, pleaded guilty before Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre to a Victoria charge containing two counts of common assault Sunday on his wife and one of breach of probation.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said Perry had been placed on probation last March 13 for one year following an assault on a social worker.

St. Jorre sentenced Perry to 30 days for the assaults and an extra 15 days for the breach of probation.

☐

Donna Eileen Kapty, 18, of 1518 MacRae, was fined $200 following her plea of guilty to a Victoria charge of theft involving less than $200 — the shoplifting Saturday from The Bay of four items worth a total of $20.47.

☐

Lila Collier, 40, of 40 Gorge West, was fined $150 after she pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of theft involving less than $200 — the shoplifting Saturday from The Bay of two items worth a total of $4.10.

☐

Edward Allan Smith, 17, of 885 Old Esquimalt, was fined $350 by St. Jorre after pleading guilty to a charge of impaired driving Saturday in Victoria.

☐

In traffic court, three persons were fined $350 each by Judge Harold Alder in separate cases of impaired driving.

They were Ronald Anderson, 25, of Vancouver, stopped Sunday in Victoria; Maurice Dupuis, 33, of 3428 Bethune, stopped Sept. 10 in Victoria, and Arne Klausen, 38, of 1031 Fenn, stopped July 12 in Saanich.

Third Court in New Year

Crime Backlog Will Remain

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist Reporter

The backlog of trials in the criminal court section of Victoria Provincial Court, now about 10 weeks long, will remain until some time early next year, The Colonist learned Monday.

Tenders for alterations and additions to the court building at 633 Fisgard were opened last week before Victoria city council but officials indicated a decision on the winner is not likely much before the end of this month.

That means work will probebly not start before early November and may not finish until last this year or early in 1973.

More than a year ago, senior Judge William Ostler said in Provincial Court a third room was needed to ease the backlogs in his criminal court section and the traffic division.

At that time, trials were being set six to eight weeks ahead; on Monday, one trial was set for 10 weeks ahead.

Ostler is known to feel a fair gap between not-guilty plea and trial would be about a month. This would give both prosecution and defence time to prepare their cases but would not keep the accused "hanging on" for weeks until his fate is decided.

Low bidder for the job was H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd. at $71,952. Others were Dalziel Construction Ltd. $72,464, Dura Construction Ltd. $75,860, W. Campbell Ltd. $77,246 and K. C. Johnson Construction Ltd. $79,159.

The city engineer's department is studying the bids and will send them to the public works committee Oct. 17 with a recommendation from the engineer. The committee's decision will go to council Oct. 26 unless a special meeting is set earlier.

The third courtroom will handle mostly criminal cases and its regular judge will be F. S. Green, now splitting his time as relief for Ostler and the family division judge.

The court building's general office will be rebuilt as a courtroom and the office staff area over the police vehicle will move to a newly-built compound just behind court.

Cost of some equipment for the new areas, not part of the contract, may add about $3,500 to the final total for the job. Sources say only one member will be added to the regular court staff.

If construction goes as officials expect now, the trial backlog may not be narrowed to the one-month gap from the present 10 weeks until about the middle of next year or later.

Birthday Boy Barrett Readies for Rugger

Earlier it was announced that the "200 pounds of fighting flesh" — Dave Barrett — would be playing fullback for Vancouver Old Stylers Rugby Club in a game set for Saturday in Vancouver.

The game at the Brocton Oval will be televised on Channel 10 with opening ceremonies at 1:45 p.m.

Opponents will be the Wak Wak Club of Japan and the premier said he had been warned about how wily the Japanese rugby players were.

Both the Old Stylers and Wak Wak's are composed of players over 40.

For the premier it will be his first international game since he played rugby for Ex-Britannia high school and on the St. Louis Missouri Saints.

Barrett conceded to newsmen before cabinet meeting that his training was "not going as well as I expected."

He said he was following his own form with interest but it was not like Muhammed Ali's.

In some circles, the premier is already being called the George Blanda of B.C. rugby but according to Barrett "I'm just happy I made it" into the team.

Saanich Reconsiders Improvement Plan

Saanich is reconsidering a proposal that would have involved property-owners paying for street improvements in their areas on a local improvement basis.

Ald. William Campbell, chairman of the municipality's public works committee, says costs of the scheme were too high and "people are taxed now about as high as they can afford to pay."

The proposal would have had property-owners paying between $500 and $750 per household over 10 years for the upgrading of about 20 of the most deteriorated of Saanich's streets.

The property-owner's share would have been about $10 a frontage foot, with the municipality paying the costs of drainage systems.

Campbell said alternatives are now being considered by Saanich's administration.

In the meantime, authorities in other municipal governments were surprised by Saanich's proposal to use local improvement initiatives to pay for road costs.

They say local improvement bylaws generally are used for projects where the beneficiaries are easily identified. In the case of streets, they say, the entire municipality benefits and therefore all residents should pay.

Luxury Patrol For Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Malaysia is buying 100 amphibious armoured Cadillacs for patrolling guerrilla-infested areas, defence officials reported. The cars are armor-plated, have bullet-proof tires and are equipped with machine-guns and grenade launchers.

Grits' 'Nepotism' Hit

Victoria Progressive Conservative candidate Allan McKinnon has accused the Trudeau government of the "worst kind of political patronage", and gives two examples.

In a press release prepared prior to meeting of party supporters Monday, McKinnon said the Trudeau regime showed political favoritism in choosing recipients of public funds.

First example given was "the purchase by the Canadian Development Corporation of 35 per cent of the shares of Venturetek International Ltd. The president of Venturetek is Jeremy Kendall, son of Douglas Kendall, a CDC director."

McKinnon said that CDC "thus circumvents the government's stricture that CDC not invest less than $1 million in any firm. Venturetek is itself an investment firm so CDC will now be able to invest without regard to the original government directions. It is this sort of thing which lowers the respect of Canadians for their government in no small way."

The statement adds: "Another example of the Trudeau government's nepotism, came to light with selection of a co-ordinator for the Ontario Opportunity for Youth program. The co-ordinator has a staff of 48, directs 6,726 OFY people and has a budget of $7.5 million. His name is Robert Andras. His father is federal Consumer Affairs Minister Robert Andras.

"Clearly, any government that cannot see the harm they are doing by such activities should be thrown out of office," the statement concludes.

Callers Flag City Hall

The big problem at Victoria city hall these days isn't a new highrise or the possibility of a tax hike, it's the flag that hasn't been flying at Beacon Hill Park for two weeks now.

"We are getting more calls from irate Victorians because of the missing flag than we got after the last mill rate increase," a city hall spokesman said Monday.

The flag hasn't been seen since vandals cut the halyard two weeks ago and there's no telling when it will fly again.

"The trouble is we can't get a steeplejack and we seem to have difficulty obtaining a new halyard," an official of the city's parks department said.

"We've got the flag and we hope to have it flying again sometime this week. The whole thing will cost the city about $200, what with steeplejack wages these days," he said.

Phil's Three Cars Shock

Gaglardi
. . . each city

Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi branded as "horrible" Monday his discovery that his predecessor Phil Gaglardi had three government cars for himself.

As he walked to cabinet meeting, Levi told newsmen his department had found that under the Social Credit regime, Gaglardi had government cars in Victoria, Vancouver and Kamloops.

"No minister needs three cars at his disposal," he said.

Levi first made the claim on a Vancouver hot-line show Monday morning and was asked about it by reporters in Victoria before the 3 p.m. cabinet meeting.

Groos Takes Lone Stand Against Cable Cost Boost

The only brief opposing Victoria Cablevision's request for a rate increase to subscribers will be presented to this week's hearing of the Canadian Radio and TV Commission in Edmonton by David Groos, Liberal MP for Victoria.

Groos said in an interview Monday he opposes the firm's request on the grounds that a rate increase wasn't justifiable.

He said he will deliver his brief in person, but declined to comment on specifics because of "Victoria Press Ltd.'s financial involvement in the cablevision company."

It wouldn't be right to release my brief to the press, considering that part of the cablevision firm's shares are owned by Victoria Press," Groos said.

Victoria, which has also voiced objections to the proposed rate increase, will not present a brief at the hearing, but will be represented by an Edmonton lawyer.

The lawyer will ask for an adjournment of the hearing so it can be held in Victoria.

A city official said efforts to obtain financial information about Victoria Cablevision's operations had been in vain. Without this information, the city had been unable to prepare an intelligent brief, he said.

The cable vison firm has applied for a rate increase to individual subscribers from $4.50 to $5 a month. The hearing is to begin Wednesday morning.

KARACHI (AP) — Islamabad, Rawalpindi and other cities in Pakistan were shaken by four earthquake tremors. The shocks lasted about 20 seconds but no casualties or damage were reported.

In true Avis tradition, we announce the end of the mileage charge.

As of Monday, October 2, we're abolishing the annoying, confusing, chaos of rent a car rates. Instead, Avis has one single daily rate with three important advantages.

1. You can drive all the miles you want with no mileage charge—no matter how far you go.

2. It's much easier to calculate how much you're going to spend—before you spend it. All you pay is the straightforward daily rate, plus the gas you use.

3. You enjoy traditional Avis we try harder service and, in most cases, real savings we invite you to discover.

How about the Avis 20% discount? Simple. It no longer applies because the new daily rates have all been adjusted to compensate.

Avis. A tradition you'll want to experience.

Car	Daily rate
Economy (Colt, etc.)	$12.00
Compact (Valiant, Duster, etc.)	$13.00
Intermediate (Satellite, Coronet, etc.)	$14.00
Full size (Fury III, Polara Custom, etc.)	$15.00

Avis no-mileage-charge rates available across Canada except in some smaller centres. Other models such as sports cars, convertibles, wagons, luxury cars, etc. available at higher daily rates—still no mileage charge.

DAVID GROOS — WORK AND WAGES

DAVID GROOS

When more than half a million Canadians are out of work in the summertime no one can claim there is no unemployment problem. But no one is trying to say that, least of all the Liberal Government. What we are saying is that at least we should be given some credit for creating over 800,000 new jobs for Canadians over the past four years. And it wasn't easy because you know we compete for exports (and exports mean jobs) in the cutthroat world market-place.

Our principal trading partner, the United States, trying to deal with its own unemployment problems has made it very tough for us to sell there. Amongst other things they devalued their currency by about ten per cent. This is great for those who go to the U.S. for a holiday and for those who buy U.S. goods but it makes it just that much harder for us to sell our products in the U.S. It also gives U.S. goods a ten per cent edge over Canadian goods in competition abroad.

However no one can deny that Canada has created those 800,000 jobs and we are trying our best to create more. I believe we are succeeding. We must succeed because we have the fastest growing work force in the world and statistics show it will continue this way for the next few years.

For those who are without work we have tried to cushion the effect on families. We have instituted incentive programs for industries, retraining programs, increased unemployment insurance coverage and financed work and skill-oriented programs for all age groups.

These are helping us over the hump and I think they are the sort of humane things modern society and the Canadian people want done.

We may not have achieved all we would like but we are trying.

Your vote will let us get on with the job. There is more to be done. We're having an informal meeting on Thursday, Oct. 5, at the Leonardo da Vinci Hall, 195 Bay St. Please drop in between 7:30 and 9:00 p.m. to discuss this or any other issue.

New federal regulations regarding fireworks are "a lot of paternalistic nonsense," Oak Bay council agreed Monday night.

So council decided to write to the federal government expressing agreement with the ban on the sale of firecrackers, but opposition to the regulations about other fireworks.

Ald. Brian Smith, who brought the matter before council, said the regulations will prevent him from using his own backyard for a fireworks display for his own children.

"This is the same government that seems to think that criminals in jail for serious crimes should be out on leave and parole and is not interested in protecting us in that area.

"Now it is going to protect us in this area of innocent fireworks," said Smith.

He predicted that the price of fireworks, which will be on sale only to people with certificates of competency, will double. "They already cost three times what they are worth," he said.

Ald. John Goult said the legislation smacks of Big Brother.

"I find it a little pathetic," he said.

Ald. Norman Pinlott felt that children deprived of fireworks are liable to get into trouble in other ways.

B.C. Fishermen Claim Ailing Industry Not Sick—Just Has 'Damn Bad Cold'

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Correspondent
(First of Three Parts)

The B.C. commercial fishing industry is not sick, it just has a "damn bad cold."

The quip came from Victorian Michael Gunn, who has given up a teaching career to chase the silver hordes of salmon along the Canadian west coast in his troller Virago.

It was one of many answers to claims that the fishing industry is ailing, forcing men to sell their boats and get back to dry land and a steady job.

The remark is significant because it sums up the feeling of many fishermen in Victoria and in other ports on Vancouver Island.

Yes, the industry is in a depression but just how far it is sinking and how fast is a matter of opinion.

If you talk to Doug Bell in Vancouver, who is manager of the federal government's fishing boat buy-back committee, there seems to be little doubt.

Fishing is a sick industry and Bell says there aren't too many in it who can survive without a winter job or going on unemployment insurance.

"There simply aren't enough fish to go round. This is still a pretty sick industry and it is a good time for anyone who is thinking of retiring to sell his boat," he said.

The results of the season so far haven't helped many fishermen pad their bank accounts, particularly those hounding salmon.

First of Three

Poundage dropped noticeably but because the demand was still there from the fish packers, prices rocketed to the highest in memory for some old salts.

A "disastrous season" for many became "so so" after the deals were worked out with the packers. For the energetic or plain lucky this season was the best but this was far from the feeling among the "hard core trollers fleet" at Victoria's Fishermen's Wharf in the past few days.

"Tuna were a lucky break for a lot of fishermen this season," he explained as he reflected on the days since the salmon season began April 15.

He told of a "peculiar" season in which winds played havoc with small fishing boats and "even the weather forecasts were only 50 per cent reliable."

Not all fishing boats can switch to tuna as easily as Townsend. Trolling speeds are much faster than for salmon, burning more gas, and distances are much greater.

More fishermen seemed to be casting their eyes toward the relatively new industry of landing black cod, crabs and abalone, according to Townsend and others.

One thing is clear. Fishermen admit there are too many boats competing for too few fish and this is where the buy-back scheme comes in.

Bell explains that the buy-back committee is attempting to reduce the B.C. fleet by freezing licences and its efforts are at the request of fishermen.

With fewer boats, fishermen might be able to bump up the percentage of those who earn more than $10,000 a year.

According to Homer Stevens, president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, only 6 per cent top $10,000 and he knows of no fishermen in the $50,000 a year bracket.

But some boat owners, known as highliners in the industry because they are the best, haul in cash around $60,000 gross for their efforts each season.

And some young fishermen, like Al Meadows 24, of 4960 Georgia Park Terrace, put in the hours and the effort and make more than $15,000 in their first season as a boat owner—but they are few.

To date 231 boats have been bought by the buy-back committee out of a total of 6,450 licensed vessels in the B.C. fleet.

The buy-back committee gives two free appraisals for fishermen interested in selling their boats and according to Bell the prices offered are right in the middle of the market.

Boats are sold at auctions and must be used outside the fishing industry in B.C. say the conditions of sale. Most are bought by United States interests.

Bell says his appraisers are good men who know the business and he counts more on experience than any academic degree.

There is no bargaining by the buy-back committee and Bell said this handicaps operations as bargaining is a big part of sales on the open market.

He claims the committee is trying not to become an inflationary factor as some of the buy-back critics charge and he adds he knows fishermen use the appraisals to set a base price and then try and sell their vessel on the open market.

The committee has a current budget of $2 million but its life is indefinite. No one knows how long it will take to reduce the salmon fleet to a workable size.

The cash for the committee comes directly from the fishermen in the form of 90 per cent of the salmon boat licences, which range from $100 to $200.

Bell says the effect of chopping the fleet by 231 boats has not been substantial but it has been noticeable as other fishermen find they have more room to move in.

Victoria Swells Fleet

Of the 6,500 licensed fishing boats in B.C. in 1971, 1,652 were based on Vancouver Island.

Victoria has the largest portion of the Island fleet with 412, followed by Nanaimo with 384, Ucluelet-Bamfield 248, Campbell River 180, Alert-Bay-Port Hardy 137, and Tofino 67.

By far the largest number of boats in the B.C. fleet operate from Lower Mainland ports — more than 50 per cent in 1971.

The biggest fishing fleet ouside the Lower Mainland is at Prince Rupert where about 750 boats are based.

In 1971, the landed value of fish caught by the B.C. fleet was $58,588,000 (wholesale value $117,165.000) and of this catch, Vancouver Island fishermen accounted for $12,872,000 in landed value and Victoria $4,095,000.

In 1969, the fish products industry was sixth in the top 10 manufacturing industries in the province.

'Paternalistic Nonsense'

Ban Sparks Fireworks In Oak Bay

New federal regulations regarding fireworks are "a lot of paternalistic nonsense," Oak Bay council agreed Monday night.

So council decided to write to the federal government expressing agreement with the ban on the sale of firecrackers, but opposition to the regulations about other fireworks.

Ald. Brian Smith, who brought the matter before council, said the regulations will prevent him from using his own backyard for a fireworks display for his own children.

"This is the same government that seems to think that criminals in jail for serious crimes should be out on leave and parole and is not interested in protecting us in that area.

"Now it is going to protect us in this area of innocent fireworks," said Smith.

He predicted that the price of fireworks, which will be on sale only to people with certificates of competency, will double. "They already cost three times what they are worth," he said.

Ald. John Goult said the legislation smacks of Big Brother.

"I find it a little pathetic," he said.

Ald. Norman Pinlott felt that children deprived of fireworks are liable to get into trouble in other ways.

In other business, council gave first three readings to a bylaw which will set a minimum lot size of 12,000 square feet in certain areas around Newport and some parts of Beach drive.

The idea of the bylaw, Smith said after the meeting, is to prevent large lots being carved up by developers. Present minimum lot size in the areas concerned now ranges from 7,500 to 11,000 square feet.

Saanich To Continue New-Apartment Study

Saanich council Monday night authorized its planners to continue studies of permitting new apartment development in the Gordon Head area.

Council made the decision after hearing a preliminary study by municipal planner Tom Loney of existing and proposed medium-density apartments in an area surrounded by Gordon Head Road, McKenzie Avenue, Finnerty Road and Arbutus Road.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said he hoped council's planning committee and the Advisory Planning Commission would hear "genuine community opinion, not just that of a hard-line minority."

"I hope we will hear from people who perhaps never before were in this council chamber," he added.

Council also authorized Curtis and Ald. Leslie Passmore to meet with the administration and student council of Lansdowne junior high school to discuss complaints of a few residents that students are rowdy and cause congestion on a narrow walkway that runs from Taylor to the school grounds.

Two residents appeared before council urging that the walkway be closed. They mentioned that their position is supported by recommendations from the police department.

The municipality's planning department, however, disagreed and said the walkway was an important part of pedestrian systems in that area.

Ald. Alan Newberry agreed that the lane should stay and he urged council and the offended residents to obtain the co-operation of the students—"to close the lane would invite chaos."

Esquimalt Advised To Wait for Funds

A "wait-and-see" attitude on methods of financing a proposed five-year capital projects program in Esquimalt was urged in a report to Esquimalt council Monday night.

Municipal treasurer Peter Cairns, in the report, said he was strongly recommending the delay in action by council because some high-priority items could possibly receive federal or provincial assistance later this year.

Council, which referred the matter to comittee for discussion Monday night, had met behind closed doors last March to consider a five-year program of a capital nature.

Council, after deciding on a program of three levels of priority, then instructed Cairns to offer suggestions on how the projects could be funded.

Some thought was given at that time to a December referendum and the possibility received brief consideration Monday night.

One top-priority item mentioned as a potential candidate for federal assistance was enlargement and improvement to storm and sanitary sewers.

Cairns suggested that a portion of the $225,000 program could be accomplished by using the municipality's labor force during the next five years at a cost of about $25,000 a year.

The balance of the program, he said, could be funded by debenture issues "or hopefully undertaken as a federal low-cost loan project which may be announced later this year."

Cairns said after the meeting that the federal government earlier this year had announced that a low-cost loan program would come into effect Dec. 1.

Council dealt with a second high-priority item — enlargement of storm drainage capacity in Esquimalt — by approving amendments to the 1972 budget which will provide funds for the project.

Allocation for drainage systems which most urgently need improvements and Esquimalt's share for sewer projects was $77,300.

And council authorized Cairns to prepare a bylaw for a short-term $80,000 loan for the lowering and widening of the Tilicum-Craigflower intersection.

The project, which the provincial highways department is currently working on, was the third top-priority item mentioned in the five-year program.

The municipality's share for the project is $80,000 and the short-term loan was mentioned in Cairns' report as a method of financing the municipality's share.

In other business, council listened to a committee report which said planning and zoning committee is studying whether Esquimalt has the power to require parking space fees to be included in apartment rents.

Council later approved a planning and zoning recommendation that parking unit requirements for apartment buildings be increased from 135 to 150 per cent of dwelling units.

Committee chairman Ald. Terry Prentice said later that the moves are an effort to get tenants' and visitors' cars off the streets to avoid traffic problems.

Council referred an architectural firm's report of methods of beautifying Esquimalt Road to planning and zoning committee for study.

Nude Man Bagged in Lot

There aren't exactly eight million stories in this naked city of Victoria but here is one that strips away everything but the bare facts.

Leaving out only the name of the central character to protect the innocent, the story began shortly after 8 p.m. Saturday when a man from Zellers' store in the Hillside Plaza phoned police to report a man in front of the health spa at the plaza "clad only in a garbage bag."

A police report said a constable found a caretaker "had been taking a bath in the health spa. He heard noises outside near his car and ran outside to see what it was. The back door had closed, leaving him standing outside without any clothes on."

The constable provided assistance by helping take the rear door off its hinges and letting the careless caretaker back in. The officer ended his report with "all in order" but he never said what happened to the garbage bag.

First Crash in 68 Years

An 89-year-old Saanich man and his wife were receiving intensive-care treatment Monday night at Royal Jubilee Hospital after the man's first accident in 68 years of driving.

Oak Bay police and hospital officials said the man, Tom Dalzell of 5991 West Saanich, suffered a broken collarbone and lesser injuries and is in fairly good condition while his wife, believed to be in her 80s, suffered broken ribs and other serious injuries. She is in fair condition.

Police said cars driven by Dalzell and Frederick Manson, 19, of 1871 Townley, were involved in a head-on sideswipe at about 2:30 p.m. at Dunlevy and Burdick. Manson was slightly hurt.

Dalzell's B.C. driver's licence number is 1926 and police said it is probably one of the oldest still being used. It was issued in 1904 when Dalzell began driving and police quoted him as saying he had never had an accident and hoped to drive again.

City Symphony Season-Opener Strikes High Note

By ERITH SMITH
Colonist Reporter

Victoria's Symphony Orchestra aimed at giving its supporters a very special season-opener Monday night to show that symphony is for everyone. The orchestra, and its society, succeeded admirably.

The Royal Theatre, and the audience, were dressed for the occasion. Not all the human dressing was traditional-formal. The "everyone" angle included a healthy sprinkling of the younger generation.

Throughout, there was a feeling of intent to share and to enjoy. This was especially noticeable when the orchestra struck up O Canada and The Queen at the opening.

Whether or not inspired by the sudden new spurt of Canadianism brought on by Team Canada and hockey, the audience sang both of these as they've seldom been sung in a Victoria theatre for years.

The program was certainly for everyone. Many in the audience were symphony and classical music buffs who are thoroughly at home with every composer and each of his works.

For the rest of us, Tchaikovsky provided a hugely rewarding experience. From delicate strains of melody to crashing, passionate chords he ranged his way, carrying us with him through his Romeo and Juliet, Piano Concerto in B Flat Minor, Symphony No. 6 in B Minor — the Pathetique.

It would have been difficult to find a better soloist to open the series than Montreal-born Ronald Turini.

For one thing, he's a Canadian. For another, he ranks among the world's finest pianists. Certainly his talent gave Victoria perhaps the most stirring performance of the concerto to be heard here.

Those of the audience in a position to watch his hands in action witnessed a dazzling combination of strength, dexterity and gentleness without which, true enough, no one could attain the concert pianist ranks; but which here seemed to possess an added quality of kinship with the music.

As hinted above, I am one of the unfortunates who cannot, by title, say who composed what. I could, however, listen to these works of Tchaikovsky and suddenly realize I was hearing a long-familiar, lovely melody line.

It might come in the piano concerto, or in a symphony from strings, wood or brass. Or the familiar bit might be a series of crashing chords from the whole orchestra.

The orchestra's new season has brought with it a number of changes in personnel, including the new concertmaster, Derek Collier.

The change, even in a first concert, has brought with it no noticeable diminution of quality. There seemed to be strength and purity of tone in all sections that retained balance from the slimmest pianissimo to the stoutest fortissimo.

Maestro Laszlo Gati had only one regret: That there was no special room in which members of the audience might pay their respects to the guest artists.

"However," he said, "any of you who wish may come down here (indicating the front of the orchestra), and Mr. Turini, Tchaikovsky and I will meet you there.

"You will be able to get two autographs, anyway."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sure there are thousands, if not millions of people in your reading audience who are fat, know it, hate it, would love to lose weight but have no will power. This is the way I was until I got sick of myself and devised my own personal technique for staying away from ruinous, rich foods (which I dearly love), and eating half portions instead of reaching for seconds — even thirds.

I had a friend take several snapshots of me in panties and bra — front, back, side-view, every angle imaginable to reveal my true dimensions. I carried these pictures with me and looked at them before every meal. It was enough to spoil my appetite.

I then recorded my true weight in red paint on a big placard. As my weight went down I crossed out the old number and wrote in the new.

It was a tremendous incentive. I do not keep candy, cookies, sweet rolls, cake or other tempting goodies in the house. Instead I stock the fridge with fruit, carrots and celery. And I've learned that water can quench my thirst. The pounds came off!

Now that I have a new body I intend to keep it by remembering the fat one that made me feel inferior and ashamed to the point I hated myself. — Thin

Dear Thin: A great many people do not realize that excessive eating is closely akin to alcoholism. My double congratulations to you for being able to do it on your own. Few people can.

☐

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing for the benefit of that nut who wanted his eight-month-old nephew to be the best man at his wedding because he was his closest male blood relative.

Just yesterday I ran across an article that outlined in detail the duties of the best man. Here they are:

Help the groom dress. Hand him the bride's ring. Make the first toast to the bride and groom has his honeymoon after she has danced the first dance with the groom, the second dance with her father, and the third dance with her father-in-law. Make sure the groom has his honeymoon tickets and reservation. Give the clergyman a "token of appreciation." Send the bride's parents a thank-you telegram for the reception — in the groom's name, of course.

It's true that kids are awfully precocious these days but I doubt very much that any eight-month-old could handle the aforementioned responsibilities. Tell the kook, will you, Ann? — Muskegon

Dear Musk: I don't think it will do any good. Any guy who would want a baby in the wedding party (and as his best man yet) is not about to listen to you OR me. So lots of luck to him.

Special Desserts Set Festive Mood

Colonist-Copley Service

Pretty desserts with melt-in-the-mouth taste appeal can help set the mood. Such desserts are the three featured today.

Flannets aux Yams is an adaption of European cuisine and native Louisiana ingredients. In the English manner, the flannets (little pies) would be served with tea. The French would feature them as dessert with cafe brulot or with the Cajun favorite, care noir. Louisiana Yams Imperial are another version of a dessert made with yams.

Orange Swirls are crisp meringues filled with a velvety orange cream. Fresh orange sections make a colorful garnish.

FLORIDA ORANGE SWIRLS

Meringue:

3 egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar

Beat egg whites until foamy; add cream of tartar and salt; beat until stiff, but not dry. Gradually add sugar, beating until very stiff. Cover baking sheet with heavy brown paper or aluminum foil. With spoon or pastry bag, pile meringue into 6 rounds about 3 inches in diameter on covered baking sheet. Make a 2-inch depression in center of each. Bake in 275 degrees F. oven, 1 hour. Cool.

Orange Filling:

3 egg yolks
2 tablespoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons grated orange rind
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
6 orange sections

Beat egg yolks in top of double boiler. Add sugar, salt and undiluted orange concentrate. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat; add orange rind and chill. Fold in whipped cream. Spoon into meringues. Chill 12 to 24 hours. To serve, garnish with orange sections.

Yield: six servings.

FLANNETS AU XYAMS

(Makes 16 tarts)

(Nine ounces) mince meat
1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
4 medium yams, cooked, peeled and mashed
2 eggs, separated
¼ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ cup granulated sugar
16 baked 3-inch tart shells (Note)
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Sprinkle mince meat with warm water. Soften gelatin in cold water. Mix together mincemeat, yams, egg yolks, brown sugar, salt, and milk in medium saucepan. Cook and stir constantly over low heat until mixture comes to a boil; cook 1 minute longer. Remove from heat and stir in gelatin until dissolved; cool. Chill mixture until slightly thickened.

Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until soft peaks form, add granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating until stiff. Fold into yam mixture. Fill tart shells with yam mixture; chill until firm (Note). To serve, garnish tarts with whipped cream.

Note: Use pastry recipe for 9-inch double crust pie. Cut pastry into 2½ inch circles. Moisten edges of circles with ice water and fit into 3-inch muffin pans or custard cups. Use 1 circle on bottom and overlap 5 around sides of pan. Prick with fork. Bake in 425-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes or until tarts are light brown. Cool.

Surge of Vegetarianism Worries Health Officers

Colonist - Newsday Service

LONDON — Soaring beef prices in Britain (prime steak today costs $2.50 a pound) has created thousands of new vegetarians.

Ronald Ashley, secretary of the British Vegetarian Society, says: "Each week now we are getting 500 inquiries instead of the usual 150."

Most of this sudden interest is traced directly to rising meat prices as beef-hungry Europe, where prices are already 20 per cent higher than in Britain, outbids the British at their own cattle sales.

But the vegetarian binge already has created some health hazards, because of a lack of protein in vegetarians' diets. A 23-year-old stenographer in Sittingbourne, Kent, was rushed to the hospital in an advanced state of emaciation. She died a few days later and at the inquest the coroner noted, "although basically fit, she refused to eat meat or food contaminated with chemicals."

Several babies of new and enthusiastic vegetarians have also been admitted to British hospitals suffering from malnutrition caused by being confined by their parents to a diet of fruit juices and vegetable puree.

Today it is estimated that there are nearly 250,000 vegetarians in Britain trying to beat spiralling meat prices by substituting nuts, fruits, vegetables, potatoes, rice, whole meal bread and seaweed.

This last especially has become a fashionable food with the vegetarians. Frank MacIntosh, a retired civil servant who has run a thriving seaweed processing plant in Northern Ireland for the past 10 years, is now handling 30 tons of the stuff a week.

Carrageen, or Irish moss, a seaweed, is popular with vegetarians as a dessert. It is also used for flavoring soups and stews. Laver, another variety of seaweed, can be fried or rolled into "oatmeal."

Health ministry officials in London are concerned about the growing interest in vegetarianism, "particularly the huge amount of misinformation that has been circulated," said one official. "Some people are cutting out all forms of meat from their diets and, in their ignorance, not replacing the vital protein."

The government's concern is heightened by a startling report from the Social Nutrition Research Unit in London, which has found that 11 per cent of all children in England and Wales between the important ages of 10 and 12 "have extremely poor over-all dietary standards." It is feared the vegetarian fad will worsen what is already a bad situation.

Not content with going off meat themselves, many of the thousands of new British vegetarians are also trying to woo their pets off as well. Ronald Lightfowler, a former secretary of the vegetarian society's big London branch, who stopped giving his dog meat, reported, "he started making raids on the kitchen and when we were out for walks he would suddenly dive into garbage cans looking for scraps of meat."

One prize-winning vegetarian cat in London was made to live on a diet of hard-boiled eggs and vegetable juices. In the same street, a prize-winning Alsatian dog was made to live on cheese, vegetables and boiled soybeans—until the day he caught the cat, and had his first meat in months.

Nazi Book Protested

FRANKFURT (AP) — Demonstrators tried to close down a publisher's stall that allegedly was promoting pro-Nazi books, but police beat them off. Their main protest was directed at a book called Peterson, a Peculiar Bunch, which allegedly glorifies the actions of an SS unit in the Warsaw ghetto during the Second World War.

Exiles Coming

Vancouver Island's first group of Ugandan exiles could be in Victoria this week, immigration officials said Monday. About 32 are expected to start.

Erma Bombeck

A mother write last week and said, "My son is so shy and uncommunicative I probably won't know he is going through puberty until he has passed it."

Boys are like that. If my son came home and found me unconscious on the kitchen floor, he'd yell in my unconscious ear, "What's for snack?"

Actually, there is only one surefire, telltale, infallible way of telling whether or not your son has discovered that girls need more padding on a softball team than boys do.

I call it the Shower Syndrome.

For four or five years, the only contact my sons had with water was a sponge in the back of the church filled with holy water. I had the only kids on the block who could take a shower and not get their hair, trousers or shoes wet.

I nagged them to death about it.

"Did you take a bath?"

"I went swimming."

"Did you wash your hands?"

"I washed the one that was dirty. See?"

"Why don't you take a shower?"

"Where are we going?"

Then, for no apparent reason, we heard the water running . . . and running. And running. And running.

"What is he doing in the shower this long?" asked my husband, "Washing away his sins?"

"He has just discovered girls."

"When is he going to discover that we only have a 30-gallon hot water tank and he emptied that to wash his hair?"

"Cleanliness is next to Godliness," I quoted.

"Billy Graham isn't that religious."

"Look," I said, "I know a body left in water three days is not attractive, and you know it, but the point is, he doesn't know it."

If you can't hear the water running, there are still other clues to your son's discovery of the opposite sex. He will use a can of deodorant a day . . . for each arm . . . each time he takes a shower. He will use mouthwash like it runs free out of the tap. As for shampoo, I never thought I would see the day when I would hide two tablespoons of shampoon the the tea canister so I could wash my hair over the weekend.

As my husband observed the other day as he stepped from his cold shower, brushed his teeth with baking soda, squirted hair spray under each arm and gargled with a cup of coffee, "I think I liked 'em better when they were dirty."

Seascapes to Forests

Artist 'Spreads Sails'

Dorothy Wrotnowski

An exhibition of paintings by the well-known watercolor artist Stephanie Steel will open in the Leaf Hill Galleries, 47 Bastion Square on Thursday.

Water and boat scenes are still favorite subjects for this artist, although she has been using stronger colors on some of them.

She stayed around the Miracle Beach and Cumberland areas on several occasions so that there are paintings of these places included in this year's exhibition.

Although boats and water remain of prime interest to Stephanie she has developed an increased interest in trees. And up-Island she had plenty of opportunity to get the feeling of forest scenes.

Old fences have become of major importance to this versatile artist." I'm absolutely fascinated by old fences," she says.

On a visit to the Okanagan, especially around the Kelowna area, she found many old fences to study.

On the Island Stephanie says there are some fine old fences around Cobble Hill area. Out Sooke way she has also discovered old fences that interest her as well as great trees.

As time goes by, more and more interest is being shown in Stephanie's paintings. Several have been hung in the Harrison Galleries in Vancouver.

Painting isn't her only artistic outlet. She is a potter and has the Effigy Kiln on her own property at Deep Cove. She says pottery for her is a therapy but at times she finds it almost takes over. This year she cancelled a trip to Yucatan to study pottery, feeling that her painting was more important.

Small pottery owls, turtles, frogs, etc., find a lucrative outlet in Vancouver's Gastown and other places. But her pottery isn't all small. At present she is making a 14-inch water pot.

Stephanie is also keen on cooking, especially trying out new dishes. She thinks it's fun as well as healthy to eat natural foods. That is one of the reasons she grows her own vegetables without the help or hindrance of sprays.

I was surprised that Stephanie had three Maglio plum trees on her Deep Cove property. Then I remembered that this property had once belonged to the late George Holt when he retired here from Nelson. The plum was developed by Carmen Maglio of Nelson.

Stephanie had a chance this last summer to really try out something new on a camping trip — new for her but an old campfire recipe for ash cakes.

These cakes are simple, just corn meal and molasses. To bake, a fire is built over a flat rock and then let burn down to coals. The coals are raked off, the flat rock rubbed over with salt pork, then the cakes are put on the hot rock and covered with the hot coals. When done the cakes are plunged into boiling water (to remove ashes).

They were delicious eaten with wild huckleberry jam, says Stephanie. Of course, she picked the huckleberries herself.

Next spring Stephanie plans a trip east — to the Atlantic seaboard with headquarters at Halifax. She will also spend some time with her brother-in-law and sister, Jeremy and Dalla Brown, who live on a 50-acre old farm in the Ottawa Valley.

Abortion Protesters Stage Hospital Vigil

About 200 people held a silent, hour-long vigil outside Victoria General Hospital Sunday afternoon to protest the hospital's decision to start doing therapeutic abortions Oct. 13.

The demonstrators paraded around the hospital entrance carrying placards that read Give Life a Chance, Abortion Is the Ultimate Violence, and Abortion: a Return to Human Sacrifice.

A petition was passed around asking that amendments to the criminal code governing abortion be repealed, so that abortion would be against the law as it was in 1968 before the amendments were adopted.

In the past therapeutic abortions were not allowed at the 96-year-old hospital when it was run by the Sisters of St. Ann and called St. Joseph's.

However, earlier this year the hospital was changed from a denominational, Roman Catholic hospital to a publicly-owned hospital under the management of the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society, and renamed Victoria General.

It is planned that most abortions will be performed on Friday mornings, with patients being discharged in the afternoon, a system similar to that of Royal Jubilee Hospital, where therapeutic abortions are performed on Saturdays.

John Murray, acting executive director of Victoria General said the hospital board had decided to allow abortions because the directors felf that "they did not have the moral right to refuse the use of a public acute general hospital for any legitimate medical procedure performed by a qualified physician."

The purpose of Sunday's vigil at Victoria General was "to bring attention to the fact that we are concerned citizens who wish to protect human life in all stages, from conception to old age," said Mrs. Rosette Newberry, one of the demonstrators.

Some of the participants are members of a local group which is hoping to affiliate with the Vancouver branch of the Alliance for Life Association, a nation-wide anti-abortion organization, said Mrs. Mary Moreau.

"Several people are interested," she said, "but there's no formal group yet."

Vigils protesting abortions were held in other cities across Canada Sunday afternoon. In Toronto about 1,000 people paraded silently for an hour outside Toronto General Hospital.

Dr. Heather Morris, president of the Alliance for Life Association, said the demonstration there was organized as a protest against all hospital abortions and Toronto General was chosen only as a symbol.

The group says there were 31,000 abortions done in Canadian hospitals last year.

Dr. Morris said the purpose of the vigil was to reawaken in Canadians the value and dignity of life.

"No healthy baby is unwanted," she said. "There are thousands of couples who want to adopt babies."

Earlier Sunday, the Canadian Women's Coalition to Repeal the Abortion Laws announced it will attempt to make abortion an election issue.

Lorna Grant, the group's executive secretary, said demonstrations and rallies are planned across the country Oct. 21, a week before the federal election.

'Paper Pussy Cat' Legislation Hit

TORONTO (CP) — Magazine editor Doris Anderson says legislation brought out by the federal government on behalf of women cannot properly be described as "paper tiger" laws.

"I prefer to call it paper pussy cat legislation," she told a symposium on the future of the female executive last week.

Mrs. Anderson, editor of Chatelaine, said there has been "an awful lot of talk in Ottawa about what's going to be done for women.

"I just want to know when they're going to push the button to get going."

She said the Liberal party has made a point of asking people "to help us find women, but has managed to come up with only one woman candidate in Ontario for the Oct. 30 federal election." The woman is Aideen Nicholson, running in Toronto-Trinity.

"I don't think they're trying very hard," Mrs. Anderson said.

Ethel McLellan of the Ontario Civil Service Commission, who also appeared on the panel at York University, supported Mrs. Anderson's view that women are a long way from the executive suite.

She said civil service pensions up to last year contained provisions discriminatory to women.

Mrs. McLellan said that before it was amended, the pension plan allowed a man to pass 50 per cent of his pension on to his widow, but women were not allowed to pass any portion on to their husband if they died.

Florence Bird, former chairman of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women, said the position of women executives at present is "a very melancholy picture."

Injured by Policeman's Bullet

Youth Granted $875,000

DETROIT (UPI) — Albert Wilson, 18, was awarded $875,000 by a Wayne County Circuit Court jury Monday, the largest single injury claim ever won in Michigan, his attorneys said.

Wilson, a senior at the city's Cody high school, was paralysed from the waist down by a bullet from a policeman's gun during Detroit's July, 1967, riot.

George Bedrosian, Wilson's attorney, said the shooting occurred while Wilson, then 13, was in the I and J Five and Dime store on July 24, two blocks from the point where the riot began.

Wilson testified at the four-day trial that he had gone into the store to warn a friend that police were coming. While kneeling behind a partition he said he saw a policeman fire a rifle and then felt pain in his left side. Wilson also lost a kidney due to the gunshot.

"I don't know what to say. I told the truth and justice was done," he said after the six-member jury announced its verdict.

Wilson's attorneys had asked for $1.7 million in the suit, which did not name any individual policeman since it was never established who had fired the shot, Bedrosian said.

In addition to the $875,000, Wilson will receive 6-per-cent annual interest on the amount from the date of filing in April, 1969.

Wilson stands to receive "well in excess" of half a million dollars after all legal fees, if the verdict still stands after any appeals, his attorney said.

Attorneys for the city argued that police were not aware of any shooting at the scene and fired no shots there.

Judge Rules on Morals

Public Barred from Trial

Members of the public, except for the press and two expert psychiatric witnesses, were excluded from the trial of a 30-year-old Highlands district man which began Monday in Victoria County Court.

Herriott pleaded not guilty to a four-count charge involving the commission of certain sexual acts with juveniles, and is being tried before Drake and a jury of 11 men and one woman.

Drake made the exclusion order under a section of the Criminal Code which allows a judge to exclude "all or any members of the public from the court room" when he "is of opinion that it is in the interest of public morals, maintenance of order or the proper administration of justice" to do so.

On the opening day of another jury trial, this one in B.C. Supreme Court, a witness testified he saw one car going about 60 miles an hour down Fort Street "neither braking or accelerating" just before it hit the rear of another car at the junction of Fort and Oak Bay.

The witness, Brian William Murphy, was testifying at the trial of Wayne Richard Trueman, 25, of 340 Island Highway, charged with criminal negligence causing death in connection with the accident March 5 in which Ronald Leonard Morris, 21, of 2720 Foul Bay died.

Murphy said he was driving along Pandora and was about to pull away across the intersection when the light changed green when he realized the car coming down Fort was not going to stop.

He didn't start up, but saw the car, a Dodge Challenger, hit the rear of the other which was apparently stopped for the red light.

Albert Zala, of 933 Wilmer, testified he was stopped beside and slightly behind the car which was hit and saw the collision. He said the Challenger hit the other car twice; the second time being a glancing blow which drove the other car sideways as well as forward.

Constable Douglas Richardson of the Victoria police said that when he stood beside the Challenger a few minutes after the accident, he could smell liquor coming from the car.

The trial continues this morning before Mr. Justice Peter Seaton and a jury of 10 men and two women. Brian Smith is crown counsel, assisted by David Skillings; Harold Turnham is defence counsel.

In the Herriott trial one of the two juveniles named in the charge against Herriott took the witness stand and told of about 20 visits he made to Herriott's home at Mark Lane over a period of more than a year ending last April.

He said that on most of the visits he was alone, but on a couple a friend was with him. Sometimes during the visits marijuana was smoked and sometimes certain acts were committed, he said.

A number of exhibits were entered into the trial including salve and vaseline and a chained, locked suitcase which Branson said would be shown to contain a number of photographs and magazines.

Hospital Owner Will Talk

R. J. Shepherd of Vancouver, owner of Victoria's Sandringham Private Hospital, says he's willing to come to Victoria to discuss the two-year-old hospital strike with Labor Minister William King, but not before the end of this month.

"I told the minister on the phone an hour ago that he'll have to come to Vancouver if he wants to discuss the situation within the next two weeks," Shepherd said Monday night in an interview from Vancouver.

"After that, I'm going to be in Victoria for a short time and I can meet him there," he added.

Shepherd's comments came in reply to a letter by King asking him to come to Victoria to discuss a possible settlement of the strike by 28 women against the private hospital.

The women, mostly nurses' aides, went on strike, two years ago after making an unsuccessful attempt to establish a first contract with the hospital owners.

The women are demanding a wage scale ranging from $1.50 to $2 an hour plus job security and fringe benefits.

Regular picketing took place during the first year of the strike, but has been infrequent during the second year. Many of the women have found other jobs, but say they would go back to work at the hospital if the strike were settled.

Shepherd called the present situation intolerable, adding that he would be prepared to pay higher wages if he could charge more money for welfare patients.

"As long as I can't earn more money, I can't pay more money," he said.

King wasn't available for comment following Monday's telephone conversation with Shepherd, but the minister said earlier because the hospital is in Victoria, he felt the talks should also be held in Victoria.

Sweeps Winner Plans Travel

There was no additional confirmation Monday of Milo Havlasek's $120,000 win in Saturday's Irish Sweepstakes.

But the provincial highways engineer and his family didn't seem to be worried about it.

Eleanora Havlasek told the Colonist from her Gordon Head home that they had rechecked the first telegram announcing that her husband had a ticket on Negus, the horse which later won the Cambridgeshire Handicap in a photo finish at Newmarket, England.

The telegram stated that if their horse won there would be a "substantial" prize coming to them and they would receive it in about a month, Mrs. Havlasek said.

Meanwhile, the family was holding off making plans to do any splurging, just to travel some more when vacations allowed—a popular pastime already with the Havlaseks.

Galleries To Open

The public galleries in the Legislature will be open as usual for visitors for the opening ceremonies of the Oct. 17 sitting.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said Monday the seats in the galleries would be available on a first come, first served basis during the special sitting of the Legislature.

Seats on the floor of the Legislature might have to be limited to a few dignitaries as ceremonies were being kept to a minimum in the session, which was being confined to specific items of business.

Tax Pact Will Be Drafted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Canadian and United States representatives will meet in Washington next month to begin drafting a third revision of the 30-year-old tax treaty between the two countries, the U.S. Treasury Department said Monday.

The present bilateral treaty was signed in 1942 and has been modified twice since then, in 1956.

The treasury department said the upcoming negotiations, beginning in late November, "will take into account recent substantial reform of Canadian tax law as well as changes made in the United States law in recent years."

Filling Bid Opposed

The B.C. Fish and Wildlife Branch is objecting to a pollution control permit sought by a Langford car wrecker who would fill in what some authorities say is waterfowl territory.

A spokesman for the branch said Monday that the application for a permit is from Langford Auto Wreckers Ltd. for a site between Leigh and Spencer Roads on Goldstream Ave. It is near Langford Lake.

"This is used by waterfowl during spring and fall migrations and we cannot support the idea of permitting car bodies to encroach on it," said the spokesman, adding that the Pollution Control Branch will also be asked to order the removal of any car bodies now in the area.

The branch has not made any counts of birds using the site but it has learned from nearby residents that it is a popular area.

The spokesman said the Fish and Wildlife Branch has already filed its objection with the Pollution Control Branch, which often resolves such disputes by arranging a meeting between the applicant and biologists.

Wildlife Expert Switches

The B.C. Fish and Wildlife Branch is losing its assistant chief wildlife biologist to a consulting firm that specializes in environment problems.

Keith Mundy is leaving the branch, for which he has worked for the past 9½ years, at the end of this month to join P. W. Beak Consultants Ltd., a Canadian firm that has a United States subsidiary.

Mundy has been a wildlife biologist in Prince George and Victoria. He'll be a senior biologist with the Beak firm and will work in Vancouver.

The consulting firm has been involved in the design of several major pulp mills in Canada and the U.S. It traditionally has dealt with aquatic problems but recently has branched out into terrestial bioforms.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Tulip Madness

In this column a few days ago I tried to recapture some of the frenzy and madness that swept across Holland in the 17th century — the tulip mania of 1634-37 — in which almost every person in the entire country became a speculator, buying and selling futures in hybrid tulip bulbs. This is not hard to understand by anyone who has lived through a Calgary oil boom or a Florida land boom.

The only peculiar thing about Holland's tulip madness is the way the same pattern keeps repeating itself in almost every geeneration — tulips, gold, oil, electronics, uranium, or in the case of Ivan Krueger, matches! A good example of this speculative frenzy is what happened to the solid citizens of Timmins, Ontario, as recently as July, 1963, when Texas Gulf Sulphur hit gold-bearing lode.

Some thing of the same excitement swept through the fulb-growing districts of Holland shortly after the First World War when a plant explorer discovered a new wild tulip growing in the mountains of Samarkan in Central Asia.

The name of the discover escapes me, but the flower was named Tulipa fosteriana, honoring Sir Michael Foster, a physician of Shelford, Cambridge, and an amateur botanist who has done some notable research on tulips and irises.

Foster's tulip was a fantastic flower, and I can well imagine the mounting excitement among the plant breeders of Holland when the first bulbs were grown under cultivation. The leaves alone were new and different — enormous things, green and leathery.

Then, when the plump flower buds opened, there was a blossom a good eight inches across, far bigger than any previously known tulip, blooming in a dazzling scarlet shade with a high gloss to the petals, almost like patent leather, or what the modern miss would call "the wet look."

A terrific garden flower in its own right, Foster's tulip from the fabled land of Samarkand was even more valued as a potential parent to a whole new race of tulips. To improve this already superb wildflower, the first steps were to isolate the best individuals to use as parents.

Hundreds of the wild bulbs were imported, planted, and brought into bloom, their significant differences noted, and the best of them grown on to multiply for the market. The original Foster's tulip can be bought today under the name Red Emperor, a vivid scarlet giant with nine-inch flowers blooming on 18-inch stems. Fifteen years ago I paid $10 for three of these bulbs; today they sell for about 15 cents per bulb.

The next step was to breed Red Emperor and other selected Foster tulips with the best of the existing tulips in the Cottage, Darwin and Mendel classes. The offspring from these matings are reaching us in ever-increasing numbers.

There is, for instance, Fosteriana princeps, which is identical in every way with Red Emperor except that, instead of an 18-inch stem, the flowers are only eight inches tall, ideal for potted bulbs or windswept rock gardens.

White Emperor, known in Europe as Purissima, is a white sport with a yellow base, lasting longer in water than any other known tulip. Orange Emperor is a particlarly vivid flower for spring bedding. Tender Beauty, 20 inches tall, has immense flowers in a lovely blend of pink and white.

One which has created quite a stir is Holland's Glory, which has a Darwin tulip for one parent. It is the Darwin blood that fashions the strong 22-inch stems, while the width and shape of the petals are inherited from Fosteriana. The color is scarlet with just a touch of orange.

Probably the most striking of the Foster hybrids is Oriental Splendour, yellow on the inside, red on the outside, and with a yellow, red and black centre, making a very large flower on 20-inch stems. Even the leaves are highly ornamental — mottled with brown stripes.

Screaming at TV

I went over to Strybaum's house the other night about dinnertime and walked into the livingroom. There was Strybaum screaming at the television set.

I looked shocked and Ada, his wife, pulled me over to the corner. "He's been doing that every night," Ada said. "It's either Cronkite or Chancellor — it doesn't matter. Ever since the election campaign started he's done nothing but yell at the set. I'm starting to worry about him."

President Nixon came on the set, speaking at a fund-raising dinner somewhere, and said, "And I promise that there will be no tax raises in the next four years if I am re-elected president of the United States."

"Liar!" Strybaum yelled. "You know damn well you're going to have to raise taxes. What do you take me for? Some kind of blithering idiot?"

"Strybaum," I said, "don't take it so personally. It's an election year."

McGovern came on the screen and said, "and I promise if I am elected I will see that the government gives financial aid to Catholic schools."

"Horsefeathers!" Strybaum shouted, (though I must be honest and admit he didn't say 'feathers'.) "You can't give money to Catholic schools. It's unconstitutional and you know it, you bum!"

Ada said, "Adolph, even if he can't do it, let him say he can. He needs the votes."

Strybaum said, "I'm sick and tired of sitting here night after night and watching these jokers lie through their teeth."

Attorney General Kleindienst came on with his big grin and said, "I am happy to report that the crime rate is down throughout the country, thanks to the Nixon administration's strong law enforcement programs."

"Bulldozer!" Strybaum yelled. "You can't walk from your office to your car without getting mugged! What kind of manure are you handing out to us?"

"Strybaum," I pleaded, "let the man think it if he wants to. According to his statistics crime is going down. He has to make the president look good."

"We shouldn't have to put up with it," Strybaum said. "They think they can go on the tube any time they want to and expect us to swallow any malarkey they hand out. Well, I've had it, and I'm going to let them know how I feel."

Sargent Shriver appeared on the screen. "And I want to tell you, my fellow Americans, I am sick and tired of going into a supermarket and paying 37 cents for a quart of milk so the dairy interests can fatten the Republican campaign chest."

"When was the last time you went to a supermarket, Sarge?" Strybaum shouted. "When was the last time any Kennedy was in a supermarket?"

"It's hopeless," Ada said to me. "He's determined not to let anyone get away with anything while he's watching TV.

"Strybaum," I asked, "what good does it do to yell at your set? They can't hear you."

"They may not hear me. But if everyone in this country yells at his set at the same time, they'll hear us," he replied. "Besides, it makes me feel good. Why don't you try it?"

To placate him I said I would. John Mitchell came on the screen and said, "I know nothing about the Watergate bugging case and I had nothing to do with it."

"You're lying, John!" I yelled, "and Martha knows it, I felt terrible. too!"

Patsy Awards

JAMES BACON

Went out to Magic Mountain and caught some G-rated entertainment—Pat Boone and Family and the Patsy Awards. Couldn't help but think that while Warren Beatty has been fooling around all these years, Pat fathered an act. It's not every father who can produce four pretty daughters who all sing on key. Of course, his wife Shirley, who is Red Foley's daughter, must rate an assist. Loved the Patsy Awards because for the first time in the history of Hollywood, an admitted rat carried off the top acting award. That, of course, would be Ben the rat who beat out three horses, one goose, eight dogs, one eagle, two cats, one raccoon, a cougar, a duck and four chimpanzees.

★ ★ ★

And now for some X-rated entertainment. When Charlie Varrick hits the screens, moviegoers will get a look at an authentic, legal house of ill fame. Director Don Siegel, shooting up in Sparks, Nev., contracted with Nevada vice lord Joe Conforti to use his world renowned Mustang Ranch for a day. Some 20 or 30 of the regular prostitutes will appear in the scene, taking sort of a busman's holiday because they will be playing sporting ladies. The girls really wanted to do it, proving that there is some ham in all of us. The movie is about a small-time bank robber, Walter Matthau, who inadvertently knocks off a Mafia depository. Joe Don Baker, a Mafia hit man, holes up in the sporting house while trying to get a line on Matthau. The state of Nevada has a local option law on houses of prostitution, much like Oklahoma with beer. The Mustang Ranch is 100 per cent legal and its girls, of all races, range from attractive to super-beautiful. Prices for entertaining gentlemen range from $10 to $1,000. Siegel's rental contract also calls for a loss of business incurred during shooting.

★ ★ ★

A green-eyed Israeli beauty by name of Nurit Zeevi twice in one week turned down dates with Elvis Presley and Warren Beatty. She hit down with a traveling show called From Israel with Love, which is now touring the country. Nurit met Elvis in Las Vegas and he promptly invited her to have dinner with him. "Sorry," she said. "I have to go back to Los Angeles for a show." "Do you realize I am asking you for a date?" said Elvis. "Sorry," said Nurit. Back in Beverly Hills, she was staying at the Beverly-Wilshire when that hotel's most famous guest stopped her in the lobby. "No, thanks." was her response to Warren. If it's any consolation to Elvis and Warren, Nurit is a sergeant in the Israeli army. Sergeants always are stubborn.

Supply and Demand

It's strange that so resolutely capitalistic a country as the U.S. fails to reckon with the law of supply and demand in areas outside of normal business.

The eternal and inescapable fact is that whenever and wherever there is an effective demand, there will spring up a supply to meet it. This is even more inexorable than Ricardo's "iron law" of wages or Adam Smith's "invisible hand." It is built into all social organizations.

When people wanted to drink during Prohibition, bootlegging arose to meet the demand, and no laws, prosecution or penalties could stop it. Today, when people want to take drugs, smuggling has become a multi-million-dollar business; and the higher the risk, the greater the profit.

No nation has ever been able to eradicate prostitution, if enough men sought such dismal comfort; and the military forces, with all their power of repression, have had to bow reluctantly to this realistic condition at every army depot and naval station.

Likewise, so long as enough emotionally immature Americans care to patronize pornographic movies, producers will provide them and exhibitors will show them, no matter how many crackdowns the police try to make or how many fines are exacted from these traffickers in trash.

Obviously, if the supply appears only in response to the demand, we can begin to cope with these problems at the source, by social, medical and psychiatric manipulation of the demand, rather than by futile legalistic and moralistic assaults upon the suppliers.

If we can find ways to diminish the demand, or to take the profit out of the process, then the supply will automatically shrivel. Drug addiction, for instance, is not only a cultural phenomenon but also a personality deficiency; if we understood better the types of dependent personalities who are likely to take to drugs, the reasons why, and the preventive measures necessary to fortify their low self-esteem, we might appreciably reduce the ranks of potential drug-takers to a minimum.

Similarly, if we stopped looking upon sexual aberrations as an "evil" and regarded them as manifestations of infantile sexuality and blockage of the normal functions somewhere early along the way, we could begin to treat and educate for a healthy sexuality which has no need for the fantasy-stimulation of pornographic films or books.

A moralistic and punitive approach is bound not only to fail, but to exacerbate the situation it tries to control; only a sociological and medio-psychiatric approach is capable of any permanent and widespread reduction in the demand for drugs that delude but do not deliver the need for autonomy, and for sexuality that simulates but does not satisfy the craving for physical intimacy.

Bruce Lowther

All in the Family didn't come first in the U.S. ratings for the first full week of the new season — for two reasons.

Marcus Welby was first, thanks to the fact it had a low-audience NBC Reports program as competition, and the movie Goldfinger was second because everyone wanted to see it. The Bunkers were third and pulled the following show, Bridget Loves Bernie, into sixth place.

Bridget was the only newcomer in the top 10. Bonanza was fourth, Flip Wilson eighth and Ironside ninth with movies in the other positions. The indication is a season of little change in viewing.

Speaking of ratings, ABC's evening news has passed NBC for the first time. Cronkite on CBS leads with 28 per cent of the audience while ABC has 23 and NBC 22. Where is Chet Huntley now that they need him?

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's answer — What was the connection between the early TV series Broken Arrow and the recent comedy I Dream of Jeannie? Trivia nuts must have known Michael Ansara, one of the stars of Broken Arrow, is the husband of Jeannie co-star Barbara Eden. That's the kind of role I'd like.

Today's question — Speaking of connections, see if you can figure out one between the old Dick Van Dyke comedy series and the trashy comedy My Mother the Car of a few years ago. Actually, it's easy; the answer is due Wednesday.

Tuesday Highlights

C-7:30 p.m.—French Chief Julia Child, first shown Sunday evenings, will also appear at this time on PBS this season. The same goes at 8 p.m. for the second run of the generation-gap program Family Game, which tries to do something about the problem—9.

C-8:30—Two more new PBS series are Dateline America, a public-affairs report, followed at 9 p.m. by a weekly media review called Behind the Lines. Then at 9:30, Black Journal starts a new season—9.

C-10:00—Tuesday Night inspects the French Foreign Legion—2, 6.

C-10:00—A Nixon program replaces Julie Andrews this week only—4.

CABLE 10—7:00 p.m., Island Hobbyist; 7:30, Cyril Large and Chess for Beginners; 8:00, Victoria Outdoorsman, hunting and fishing with Al Playfair; 8:30, Project Travel; 9:00, the Helen Biernes program Outlook.

Tuesday Movies

9:30 a.m.—Deep Waters (soggy 1948 seaside soaper), Dana Andrews, Jean Peters. Anyone who watches will be in them—4.

C-12:00 noon—Take Me to Town (1953 soaper, not much better), Ann Sheridan, Sterling Hayden. I always wondered why Mr. Hayden didn't act as The Lone Ranger; after all, you've heard of Sterling's Silver—13.

12:45—He Rides Tall (deadly dull 1964 western), Tony Young, Dan Duryea. I don't care how tall he rides, your interest will be short—6, 8.

● C-4:00 p.m.—East of Eden (still good 1955 Steinbeck drama, part one, James Dean, Julie Harris, Raymond Massey. Part two in 24 hours and both show how good Dean was—5.

C-4:00—Daughter of the Mind (1969 psychic suspense, not bad), Ray Milland, Gene Tiereney. Only if you like every chiller—7.

C-7:00—Run, Simon, Run (1970 U.S. Indian drama, mostly a bore) .See Burt Reynolds before Cosmopolitan folded his centre—12.

C-7:30—Lady of Burlesque (1943 strippers' suspense), Barbara Stanwyck. Corny but fun all the way—13.

C-8:30—Playmates (new romanticomedy), Connie Stevens, Doug McClure, Barbara Feldon, Alan Alda. I was sad when I saw this film—4.

C-9:30—Footsteps (new suspense), Richard Crenna, Clu Gulagher, Joanna Pettet. Might be fairish at best—7.

11:30—Stratton Story (1949 baseball drama), James Stewart, June Allyson. There has never been a great baseball film but this is all right—7, 12.

C-12:00—The Rolling Man (new father-sons drama), Dennis Weaver, Don Stroud, Jimmy Dean. An ex-con seeks his two missing boys—6, 8.

C-12:30 a.m.—Zorikan the Barbarian (1960 dubbed drivel). Having trouble getting to sleep? This will do it in 10 minutes or less—13.

Tuesday Radio

8:00 p.m.—CFL football, Winnipeg at B.C.—CJVI (900).

8:00—CBC Tuesday Night features the fine Sonny Terry and Brownie McGhee talking about and singing blues. Also author Herman Wouk will be interviewed—CBU (690).

INTRODUCING
"DUTCH AUCTIONS"
Occasionally we have a few good but hard-to-sell boats. When this happens, ELDER BOSUN says "Hold a Dutch Auction". The starting price reflects the fair market value. It is reduced each week by $50. This continues until someone buys the boat or we give it away. This week's Dutch Auction begins with a 26' Thunderbird, in really good shape with jib, Genoa, main, cruising gear and motor which although a collector's item, is still working. Starting price is $4,000. It will be reduced to $3,950, as of 8 a.m. Sat. 23 and $3,900 on Sat. 30 and so on. If this isn't your boat look for next week's auction

MARINE DIVISION
Remember — our policy is to serve your needs — and do it to the best of our ability. Browse around, take a good look at the row upon row of boats — inboard and outboard — trailers — outboards (new and used) — even dinghies, brand new and otherwise.
Certainly we deal in motorcycles — and golf cars — and trailers — and brokerage etc., but we're just a dept. store trying to meet all your requirements in the recreational, leisure field — and we expect to expand further! In the last little while we have even added two wholesale distribution divisions!
We're not as perfect as we'd like to be, but we do try each and every day to be a bit better — and a nicer place for you to do business with.
Our staff is ever expanding and if we do find that an employee isn't doing his job — (which is just making you happy) whether it's service or sales, we make the necessary adjustments.
Pearson World of Pleasure Ltd. is probably the largest small boat dealer on the Island. There are literally dozens of boats, trailers and outboards — we think you'll be happy with the deal, the personnel and the service.

THE ACES

World Champions

ON BRIDGE

IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Today's hands were played in the recent Summer National Tournament sponsored by the American Contract Bridge League.

See if you can lead as well or better than the contestants.

Question No. 1: You are South, no vulnerability, and hold:

♥Q10
♦AQ98642
♣862

What do you lead after this bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	4♥
Pass	Pass	Pass

Answer: Lead the singleton spade and you'll get the ruff — gut declarer will ruff — but declarer will diamond ace and then the singleton spade and you're a genius. The entire hand:

NORTH
♥97
♦1075
♣J97

WEST
♠J10543
♦K3
♣AQ104

♦J
♣K53

SOUTH
♠7
♥Q10
♦AQ98642
♣862

In a Swiss Team match Mrs. William Walker reported the successful defense by her partner, Susie Takeshita of Oakland. She opened the diamond ace to "look at dummy" and then shifted to a spade. North played three rounds of spades to promote a trump trick for Susie. An original spade lead loses, for when the third spade is led declarer simply discards the singleton diamond and claims the balance.

Question No. 2: You are South, all vulnerable, and hold:

♠KQ7
♥83
♦98742
♣1054

What do you lead after this bidding:

East	South	West	North
1NT	Pass	3NT	All Pass

Answer: A diamond lead loses the hand. The spade king is the winner. The entire hand:

NORTH
♠J9842
♥A974
♦10
♣Q92

WEST
♠65
♥J65
♦AQ53

SOUTH

♣1054

In a Swiss Team match, Betsey Wolff, wife of Ace Bobby Wolff, found the killing lead of the spade king. Declarer ducked two rounds in hopes of cutting communications but the long spades were in the hand holding the heart ace. The lead is not as unusual as it appears. Since Betsey had little chance of establishing diamonds and less chance of obtaining the lead to cash them, she elected to "hit" her partner's suit. A good lesson to remember for the future.

He said he would leave London immediately and return to Kinshasa on the express orders of Zaire President Mobutu.

British leaders had hoped to discuss with him the possibility of Zaire mediation with Uganda over the question of the Asians being expelled from that country.

Nguza said he had been kept waiting for nearly two hours for his hotel room to be made ready.

'Fortress' Security In U.K.

LONDON (UPI) — Police, acting on information that Arab Black September extremists planned to kill or kidnap a top Israeli official, placed a strong guard around London airport and the Israeli Embassy Monday.

Pioneer Pilots Mark Dawn of U.S. Jet Age

EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI) — Pioneer jet pilots gathered Monday at this Mojave Desert base to mark the 30th anniversary of the first significant jet airplane flight in the United States, conducted in wartime secrecy Oct. 2, 1942.

As part of the anniversary observance, members of the Jet Pioneers Association of America took part in dedication of an engine from an Airacomet. The engine is mounted on a pole set in concrete in front of air force headquarters here next to a full-sized model of the jet, which was never mass-produced.

Moscow, Egypt To Talk

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The Soviet Union was reported Monday to have ended an airlife of supplies to Syria after five days. The report, by sources in Tel Aviv, followed increasing speculation in the Middle East that Moscow was headed for some form of reconciliation with Egypt.

Reports that Cairo and Moscow would reach at least a limited understanding began circulating among diplomats in Egypt and London after it was announced that Egyptian Premier Aziz Sidky would begin an official visit to Moscow on Oct. 16.

Some sources said that the Sidky's talks with the Kremlin might even lead to a summit meeting between Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev.

A military source in the Israeli capital said the Soviets had ended their airlift to Syria after about 25 flights.

WHO COULD ASK FOR ANYTHING MORE?

The new 1973 Meteor is one beautiful car. Completely restyled, both inside and out, it brings you classic good looks, at a price that represents real value.

Inside, you'll find a distinctive level of luxury. It's whisper quiet, spacious and extremely comfortable. With its deeply foam padded seats, rich fabric and vinyl appointments, deep cut-pile carpeting and power ventilation system that changes the air inside even when the car is stopped.

The exterior is a total picture of elegant design. Beginning in the boldly attractive grille, sweeping smoothly back over the formal hood and extending into the full body of the car.

As for Meteor's list of standard features . . . it's impressive! With its 351 cubic inch V-8. Its Select-Shift automatic transmission, power steering and power front disc brakes. Its new wiper arm mounted windshield washer jets. Its inside hood latch release and automatic parking brake release.

With Meteor's many features, its quality workmanship and its superb level of comfort, who could ask for anything more?

And indeed, the majority of people who buy Meteors, do shop around and compare before they buy Meteor. They're the kind of people who want to know exactly what they're getting in terms of price, style, comfort and performance. And that's why after shopping and comparing Meteor to the competition, they come back to Meteor. In their opinion, it gives them all the things they ask for.

See the new Meteor at your Mercury dealers. And prove to yourself . . . as many others already have . . . that Meteor offers more value all around. What more could you ask for?

IWA Convention 'Fun' Hasn't Started Yet

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

VANCOUVER — Along about 3:30 p.m. Monday someone uttered some angry words about the cost of bushworkers' boots.

After five hours of listening, he knew at last that he was at the annual Western Canada regional convention of the International Woodworkers of America.

"I had thought I was at a convention of the Conservative party," the 62-year-old Portland-based secretary-treasurer of the IWA told delegates.

This is probably the most unusual rating ever given the first day of an IWA convention, considering that the union has long been known for its fine art of political bloodletting.

But that's the kind of day the first day of the five-day session was — nothing more controversial than a suggestion from the floor that a picture of a boot in an IWA publication should have included the regional officers "on the toe of that boot."

However, veterans of the union's in-fighting, warn that no one should be lulled into a feeling of security by the "sweetness and light" atmosphere of the firsst day.

"Just don't go to sleep," one Victoria delegate said in an interview. "The fun hasn't started."

The "fun" could be an attempt later to actually put regional president Jack Moore and his officers on the toe of the boot. No one has produced an opposition slate at this stage, but there has been talk again — as there always is when elections roll around every two years — of sweeping Moore and his men out of office.

Danes Back Market

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Danes dispelled fears of a major hitch in Common Market expansion Monday by voting nearly 2 to 1 in favor of joining the European Economic Community.

Not all opponents of market membership took the defeat calmly. Bands of young demonstrators roamed the streets in Copenhagen and burned flags on the steps of parliament.

Anonymous telephone bomb threats were made against the premier's home and Copenhagen's radio and television centres. No bombs were found.

Sigurd Oemann, whose Socialist People's party spearheaded the anti-EEC campaign, said Denmark faced "increased political polarization" because of the vote.

The final tally was 1,950,000 for and 1,124,000 against, or a margin of 57 per cent of the total electorate to 32.9. The voter turnout of 89.9 per cent was an all-time record for this small Scandinavian nation.

Danish farmers voted solidly, as expected, for the Common Market, which will help their exports. Anti-market forces did not gain a majority even in their supposed stronghold, metropolitan Copenhagen.

The firm surge toward the EEC proved groundless the predictions that Denmark's poll would be affected by the narrow referendum victory for market opponents last week in Norway.

Premier Jens Otto Krag's government, which negotiated Denmark's entry into the market, preached economic hardship, stern austerity policies and devaluation of the kroner if the vote went against joining. The Danish referendum was binding, whereas last week's Norwegian vote was advisory, with the final decision to be made by parliament.

Voting day was the eighth day of a suspension of currency trading, decreed to protect the kroner after the Norwegian vote.

In an unprecedented move, police guarded polling stations, parliament and Copenhagen's radio and television centres.

When the voting trend became evident Monday night, the Danish National Bank announced that currency trading will resume this morning.

Heath Told: Resign

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI) — The chairman of the opposition Labor Party Monday demanded that Prime Minister Edward Heath dissolve Parliament and order a general election or popular referendum to determine whether Britain will join the Common Market Jan. 1 as scheduled.

Anthony Wedgwood Benn, addressing the open session of the party's convention here, said the terms of Britain's entry into the European Economic Community negotiated by Heath were unacceptable to his party and demanded that the people have the chance to express their feelings in a plebiscite.

"We will not accept Heath's terms of entry or the legislation he has driven through Parliament, which would strip the people of this country of their basic rights without their consent," Wedgwood Benn said.

"We must demand a general election and dissolution of Parliament before midnight Dec. 31," he declared.

UIC Deficit More Than Half Billion

MONTREAL (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission deficit is about $544 million; Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey said Monday.

Mackasey said in an interview he intends to defend the government's handling of unemployment insurance as a major part of the Liberals' campaign for re-election Oct. 30.

"I put a bit of a ban on information from the department because reporters won't take an objective look at the whole question of unemployment insurance. I would rather have the whole thing explained properly," he said.

He told a reporter he did not know the deficit "to the exact dollar" but he offered a file headed Costs To Date which, he said would give "an idea of how much the deficit is."

The section outlines that the plan paid out $1,164 million for the first seven months of the year — $544 million over the same period last year.

"It is also the approximate amount we are in the red," Mackasey said.

That Time of Year

Many people you meet these days are coughing and wheezing, snorting and sneezing, running at the eyes and using facial tissue by the ream.

But there is no epidemic of flu according to Dr. A. A. Larsen, director of epidemiology for the B.C. health branch and Victoria area senior health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Whitbread's office finds out what is going on from reports of school nurses in the area on the absentee rate and the cause of it.

Latest reports show that there are numbers of children away with colds but there is no known 'flu' epidemic.

It's just that time of year again.

Larsen's advice is that anyone contemplating 'flu' vaccine shots should have them before Nov. 1.

$95 Million

Barrett Attacks Surplus

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

B.C. will have an anticipated surplus of $95 million for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1973 and Premier Dave Barrett had some harsh words about it Monday.

"The money is there and the fact that the previous government didn't spend it is proof enough why it should have been thrown out of office," Barrett said in an interview after cabinet met Monday afternoon.

"Tell me why is it that the pensioners in this province have had to suffer while the government played tiddlywinks to get a surplus?" the premier asked newsmen.

The surplus was "taxes collected from the ordinary people of B.C. which has not been spent on the ordinary people of B.C."

Barrett said before cabinet that the surplus was expected to be $70 million but after the meeting he said there would be about $25 million more.

The confusion arose because the cost to the province of promised NDP pension boosts — about $25 million — had been deducted from the total surplus of about $95 million. Federal help is expected for the scheme which has a total cost of about $40 million.

The money left in the treasury by the former Social Credit government is about the same as in recent years. In 1971, it was $98 million and in 1970, about $95 million.

Barrett described the surplus estimate as a "very conservative" figure but said it would pay for the pension increases for about 100,000 people in B.C. and education spending reform announced earlier by Education Minister Eileen Dailly.

On the pension boost to $200 a month, the premier said he hoped the first cheques would be received by pensioners before Christmas.

And he was adament that his government would not be an "order-in-council ruler" and said the pension increases would be discussed in the Legislature sitting called for Oct. 17.

If people wanted to vote against the pension increase they could.

Before he vacated the premier's office after 20 years, W. A. C. Bennett said revenue was increasing at a rate of 15 per cent over the previous year.

Barrett, who is also finance minister in the NDP government, was told by deputy finance minister Gerald Bryson Monday that the revenue would probably even out at

Secret Agent Killed

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrilla gunmen killed a British secret agent from ambush Monday and gunned down a man in a Belfast club, raising Northern Ireland's death toll to 590 in three years of sectarian violence.

The British army said the unidentified agent was killed by three gunmen of the Irish Republican Army who poured automatic rifle fire into the delivery truck he was driving in a Roman Catholic sector of Belfast. A woman agent in the truck was unhurt.

A spokesman said it was the first death among about 50 plain-clothes operators working in critical sectors of the city.

Police said the second killing was done by three armed men who walked into a club in the Falls area, a Catholic district. They lined the people against a wall, fired several shots, and "as a result a man died," a police spokesman said.

The shootings followed a weekend in which at least seven persons lost their lives and more than 45 were injured.

Transit Train Crashes

FREMONT, Calif. (UPI) A sleek new Bay Area Rapid Transit district train Monday smashed into a sand barrier at 30 miles an hour, then dropped nosedown to a parking lot below, after failing to stop at the end of the line.

Five persons were hurt none seriously in the first accident on the $1.4 billion transit system which went into partial operation three weeks ago.

The first car of the two-car train plowed through the sand embankment at the end of track, then plunged through a chain link fence and plowed its nose into an asphalt parking lot 10 feet below.

The $300,000 car ended up at a 20 degree angle, with its front end in the lot and the back end at track level. The second car remained on the track when the vehicles uncoupled.

The train attendant and four of six passengers in the first car suffered minor injuries. The seven passengers in the second car were unhurt.

Russia's Treasures in Jeopardy

By MURRY SEEGER
Colonist-Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — The doors creak open and bang shut. Snow, mud and water collect in the entrance halls. Alternating hot, cold, dry, damp air wafts through the corridors and galleries.

Thousands of individuals school children, workers on their days off, country people visiting the big city and foreign tourists — tramp across the old wooden parquet floors.

The Russians call it an "excursion explosion" a rapidly rising flood of visitors to museums, churches, palaces and galleries, most of which date from the pre-revolutionary era of royalty and state religion.

Now, 50 years after Lenin declared "art belongs to the people," the Russian people are taking great interest in the nation's cultural treasures.

But the museums, galleries, palaces and churches are not ready for the crowds.

In one museum, the Hermitage in Leningrad, it's simply a matter of too many feet. About 3 million persons a year pass through it, with 480,000 in June alone. The museum has only 4,000 slippers to be put over street shoes to save the lacquered floors. "The most important question for us is the footwear of visitors," complained Boris Piotrovsky, director.

In their hard drive to become the world's largest economic and military power, the Soviet leaders have invested little to preserve and protect their country's cultural heritage.

The combined forces of age and overuse have put some of the nation's greatest treasures in jeopardy.

On Leningrader, for instance, said earlier this year that to halt the deterioration of the Hermitage and Winter Palace, the country's most famous art collection and museum, "radical measures are urgently needed."

N. I. Mokhov, deputy minister of culture, admitted that government officials have "repeatedly discussed" the issues of protecting the collections and buildings, improving displays and public service.

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces tried to stampede a herd of water buffalo through a South Vietnamese military camp on the upper coast at dusk Monday, but the animals refused to charge through the barbed wire perimeter, military sources said today.

Victorian Tells Convention:

Freeways Skirting Needs of Majority

WINNIPEG (CP) — The freeway system of highways often skirts around the actual transportation needs of most of the people, a convention was told Monday.

Norman Worsley, a traffic consultant with a Victoria firm, said studies have shown that a high percentage of highway traffic is short-distance local travel.

"There is much less traffic going from one major centre to another than most people would judge."

But the emphasis on freeways, with towns passed by, meant that "most small communities are being short-changed."

Worsley, speaking to the Roads and Transportation Association of Canada, said many communities want tourists to come downtown.

He said freeways often generate traffic, with a result that businesses build up around the bypasses and the original purpose is thwarted.

Instead of freeways, which become clogged with people who go out of their way to use them, a grid system of arterial routes should be developed.

Worsley said in an interview the American freeway system is a poor model for Canada to follow, and has accelerated the depletion of small town population.

"The American interstate freeway system is based on the wrong premise. They have ripped the countryside apart."

Another speaker told the convention that when the United States government offered to pay about 90 per cent of costs of building freeways, some cities were in effect forced to build them.

Tom Genties, special assistant to Saskatchewan's highways minister, said the effect of this was to distract attention from local transit problems that might have been a better long-term investment.

Leaky Enriched Evolution Theory

LONDON (Reuter) — Mankind's knowledge of human evolution has been immensely enriched by the African discoveries of Dr. Louis Leakey, internationally famed anthropologist and archeologist who died here Sunday at the age of 69.

Leakey claimed to have discovered remains of the oldest known ancestor of man, dating back 20 million years and linking man with the ape.

A British citizen born in Kenya, where he spent most of his life, Leakey was spurred in his work throughout four decades by the belief that the earliest origins of man lie in Africa rather than Asia.

Though not everyone accepts all his conclusions, scientific circles throughout the world have shown intense interest in the series of discoveries made in East Africa from 1959 onward by Leakey, his second wife Mary and two of his sons.

The slim scientist had travelled widely in Europe and North America explaining the significance of the discoveries.

Mounties Enter Mackenzie Clash

Picket Line Patrolled

MACKENZIE (CP) — RCMP Monday began regular patrols of a picket line set up by striking Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada after reports that two cars crossing the picket line were stoned.

Carl Axelsen, an employee of H. A. Simons International Ltd., engineering consultants to strike-bound B.C. Forest Products Ltd., said pickets hammered on the roof of his car and threw rocks at it.

"There were two cars stopped in the road," he said. "I went around them and rocks were thrown at my car. Pebbles were thrown at the windshield, nicking it.

"They (pickets) hammered on the roof and trunk and dented the car when they threw a big rock."

P. V. Frith, works products manager for BCFP, said the canopty window on another man's truck was broken by a rock thrown when he drove through the picket line.

An RCMP spokesman said police had decided to make regular patrols of the line "to make sure there is no harassment."

About 300 members of the PPWC last week struck the BCFP stud mill and sawmill located in an industrial park. The walkout erupted over a contract dispute.

At one point, a total of about 600 men, including employees of other firms located in the industrial park, were off the job. But all but BCFP operations returned to normal by the end of the week after the other firms agreed that no materials would be supplied to the company.

About 350 members of the International Woodworkers of America employed at a Finlay Forest Industries sawmill in the park have not been affected by the dispute.

Meantime, all but about 25 of the 150 construction trade unionists building a new BCFP pulp mill at the site Monday ignored the BCFP picket line. Only a small number of construction workers actually had to cross the line to get to their jobs since most are housed within the industrial park.

However, president Jim Kinnaird of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council said the men would not cross the picket lines today.

Kinnaird, who met with PPWC officials Monday to discuss the Mackenzie situation, said the building trades members had crossed the picket lines on the instructions of their officers who believed the construction site was not involved in the dispute. Mackenzie is north of Prince George.

East Berlin At Any Time

BERLIN, Germany (UPI) — West Berliners may visit East Berlin at any time starting Tuesday, the West Berlin senate announced Monday.

According to an agreement worked out between West Berlin and the East German government, residents of the western half of the city can get special visit cards at any one of five West Berlin offices, a senate spokesman said.

Suit Pressed Against B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A suit against the provincial attorney-general, challenging a recent amendment to the British Columbia Social Assistance Act, will go ahead, a spokesman for the Vancouver Community Legal Assistance Society said Monday.

David Mossop said the suit, on behalf of four children who are claiming they and their mother have been denied welfare by the government, is expected to be heard in late November or December.

"We think it's an important issue and should be tried in court," Mossop said.

The writ was filed before the Aug. 30 provincial election and there was some question as to whether or not to proceed with it after the Social Credit government was defeated by the New Democratic Party.

Mossop said he hopes the change in government will make a difference but said the client has decided to go ahead with legal action anyway.

The children, Deanna Turner, 3, Laura, 7, Melanie, 8, Stephen, 4, and Mary Turner, their mother, claim that a recent amendment to the social assistance act giving the rehabilitation minister "absolute discretion in welfare matters" is ultra vires, or beyond the government's authority.

Is He Backing Out of Pact? ★★★

Bhutto's Volte Face Surprises Indians

By K. K. DUGGAL from New Delhi

What is President Bhutto of Pakistan up to? Is he backing out of the Simla pact which was supposed to usher in a durable peace in the subcontinent? The Indians are baffled by the president's volte face on Bangladesh.

At Simla Bhutto clearly indicated that he would recognise Bangladesh in August. But he has failed to keep his word and blocked Dacca's entry to the United Nations with the help of China.

Now Bhutto says Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, prime minister of Bangladesh, would have to meet him before he recognises. In an interview with the editor of a Bombay weekly he said that the sheikh must go through the formality of talks and that — even if the talks fail he would recognise Bangladesh.

Sheikh Mujib has reiterated that he would have no talks with Bhutto before recognition.

The Indians suspect that Bhutto is hedging on recognition at the istance of Peking which is willing to oblige him with its veto as long as Pakistan plays its game.

Thanks to Bhutto's frequent shifts, troop withdrawals from areas occupied by India and Pakistan during the December war have been twice put off. Under the Simla agreement the troops of either country were to withdraw to the international border by September 3, 30 days after ratification of the agreement. A new deadline of September 15 has also expired.

Suspicion is growing that Pakistan is dragging its feet on the delineation of the line of control in Jammu and Kashmir although Indian spokesmen have taken the line that delineation is an ardous, time-consuming process. New Delhi is keen to work out the line in the Simla spirit so as to give no pretext to Pakistan to abrogate the pact.

India has decided to give Bhutto a last chance to prove his bona fides. Bhutto has not yet exhausted New Delhi's patience. He has repeatedly stated that he wants durale peace in the subcontinent and stands by bilateralism enshrined in the Simla agreement. And New Delhi wants to pin him down on this.

New Delhi has brushed aside mounting public disillusionment with Bhutto reflected in the press in the hope that the Pakistan president will eventually come round to appreciating the advantages of detente.

It believes Bhutto's shifting stands on Bangladesh, the trial of war criminals and repatriation of prisoners show domestic strains. It appreciates that Bhutto is the only Pakistani leader who can thwart a military takeover and has a good chance of giving his country a democratic set-up.

It is no secret that Bhutto has trouble at home. The army is ever watchful for a chance to overthrow the civilian president and revive the military dictatorship which held power for over a decade.

Talk of a return by Field Marshal Ayub Khan to active politics shows that pro-military elements are still active. Bhutto has been busy denouncing Ayub Khan as the man responsible for the bifurcation of Pakistan.

Some of Bhutto's own party, the Pakistan People's Party, have called the Simla agreement as a "sell-out" to India.

Sind, Bhutto's home state, has recently had bloody language riots. Punjab, the sword-arm of Pakistan from where most of the army comes, is bitter about the Simla deal. The 90,000 prisoners of war are not yet home. The Punjabis are furious that Bhutto has done little to get them back.

The Punjabis hate the Sindhis. Their animosity is traditional. A Punjabi proverb says: "If you see a snake and Sindhi, kill the Sindhi first." Bhutto is a Sindhi.

Meanwhile, some Indian politicians are ready to attack Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi for having been taken for a ride by Bhutto. The rightwing parties have already accused her of losing at the conference table what the defence forces gained on the battlefield. Mrs. Gandhi, they say, should not have agreed to return a large chunk of conquered territory to Pakistan without settling Kashmir.

The Jana Sangh, which called the Simla pact a "sell-out", is making capital out of Pakistan's dilatory tactics. It projects Bhutto as the proverbial chameleon who changes colours too fast.

It says India was foolish to repose trust in a man who once talked of a thousand years of war. It points out that Bhutto sill talks about implementing UN resolutions on the POWs and the pull-out of Indian troops from Bangladesh, despite Sheikh Mujibur Rahman's repeated declarations that not a single Indian soldier is left in his country.

Yeti Persists for Hundreds of Years

By WILLIAM DRUMMOND
from Katmandu, Nepal

There are restaurants named for him, as well as travel agencies and even Royal Nepal Airlines' new Boeing 727 jetliner.

Because of his religious importance, the governments of Tibet, Bhutan and Nepal have special laws protecting him.

Who is she?

The Yeti — Sherpa for "all-devouring creature" — or as we know him, the Abominable Snowman.

His legend has cast its shadow for hundreds of years over mountainous central Asia from Mongolia to the Caucasus.

A drawing of the hairy, ape-like creature appeared in an 18th-Century book of illustrations of Tibetan fauna published in Peking.

Chinese writers claim that before the revolution these creatures were hunted like animals and even tamed and kept as slaves.

On the other side of the Sino-Soviet split, however, Russian explorers dismiss the Yeti as a charming fairy tale.

In fact, except for the much-photographed mysterious giant footprints in the snow, virtually no reliable evidence of the creatures' existence has been found.

It was only a question of time before modern man would gather all his technological devices to determine once and for all whether the Yeti exists.

And now it appears that time has arrived.

Under the co-direction of Jeffery A. McNeely, 28, a University of California at Los Angeles zoology graduate and former keeper at the Los Angeles Zoo, an expedition is being assembled in Katmandu that will explore the Yeti's most likely habitat.

The five-man team will spend about 12 months, beginning in October, doing a thorough ecological survey of the Arun Valley in northeastern Nepal, a practically virgin area, which because of its remoteness has been undisturbed by mountaineers or settlers.

The valley lies between two massive mountains, Everest and Kanchenjunga, at elevations of 8,000 to 14,000 feet.

The expedition's prospectus points out: The Arun Valley is said by Sherpas to be the habitat of several large mammals unknown to science, including the famous Yeti.

The group will have a much better chance, said Lt. Col. James Roberts, a former British army officer with long experience exploring the Himalayas. For one thing, they will be in the country for more than a year, sitting and quietly watching.

He also cited these reasons:

- The other expeditions were ecological blitzkriegs that went into the countryside with dozens of people making noise and scaring away the animals.
- There are many things to be explained about this beast, and a small party is the best way to get to the bottom of it.
- Furthermore, none of the other Yeti-finding attempts was in possession of the new paraphernalia that the present venture has.

These gadgets include night vision devices, apparatus for remote photography, chemical lures, radio tracking equipment and even dart guns for shooting anesthetics to temporarily paralyze any animal subject.

The last serious attempt to search for the Yeti was Sir Edmund Hillary's expedition in 1960.

It ended with success. Hillary managed to take back for analysis what was reputed by Sherpas to be the skull of a Yeti.

The examination determined that it belonged to a bear.

Hillary's disappointing experience made a nonbeliever of him, but his method of looking for the creature, as Col. Roberts pointed out, was destined for failure.

Since the restriction was lifted, there have been four exploration parties primarily seeking the Yeti, including Hillary's. But most explorations have been undertaken by adventurers and not scientists.

McNeely will have no shortage of scientific talent on his expedition, made up mainly of former Peace Corps personnel from Bangkok.

The $40,000 needed to pay for the project is being supplied by a Bangkok-based group called the Association for the Conservation of Wildlife.

These tracks, spotted many times since, have been explained by skeptics as animal tracks enlarged by the melting effect of the sun.

There is no shortage of testimonials from the Sherpas about sightings of the Yeti.

Hunters have reported seeing the hairy beast rush down a hill with fangs bared and hands raised for the attack.

There is no problem determining sex of the Yeti, say the Sherpas, because the female has pendulous breasts.

The male is described as relatively shy, while the female is said to be the more aggressive.

"GIVE US THIS DAY, OUR DAILY BREAD" . . . as we pause next Monday to give thanks my bread become a daily reminder of the many blessings that are ours.

Bread has always seemed to be a part of the Thanksgiving tradition, as it is a mainstay in our day-to-day living. Just as the celebration for grapes that make wine, or the storing of meat or fish in the larder, so is the larder, so is the reaping of the grain for bread associated with harvest time, a time of thanksgiving. Bread serves as the symbol of all foods, and man's dependence upon the land, the sun, the rain, the seasons and the Creator. Woodward's joins with the rest of Canada and many countries of the world in observing the 'Day of Bread' on Tuesday, Oct. 3.

Singer Edie's Ribs Hurt After Operatic Debut

SEATTLE (AP) — From pops to ops, "My ribs hurt," Edie Adams said Friday following her operatic debut in Offenbach's La Perichole.

For Miss Adams, 43-year-old stage and nightclub songstress turned diva, the generally favorable reviews were a mixed blessing. It hurt when she smiled.

"I feel like I've done 143 pushups," she said following her performance here. There were three performances left.

"Whatever they (the reviewers) say is right," she said, fingering a newspaper. "You just don't take your voice out of a pocket and compared yourself to Joan Sutherland."

The physical energy required of her opening night performance of the light, comic opera surprised her, Miss Adams said in an interview.

It's like the Olympics. By the third act of the two-hour set I was really holding on," she said.

The audience "came expecting a freak show, I think," she said. "And they found out I could sing a little. Now that I know that I can, I hope to do some more."

But her operatic career probably would be pre-empted by a possible television series now under negotiations and a seven-year contract to advertise cigars, she said.

"But I'm not doing it for a living," Miss Adams said. "Opera is so much bigger than life."

Alberta Censor May Be Cut

EDMONTON (CP) — Classification of films likely will it's become an over-riding replace censorship in Alberta, the chairman of a special legislative committee studying censorship said Monday.

Ernie Jamison, Progressive Conservative MLA for St. Albert, said more than 150 briefs have been received by the committee which will hold public hearings Oct. 11 and 12 in Edmonton and Calgary before making recommendations to the legislature.

Jamison said he thinks Alberta should follow Quebec's example of inviting critics and media representatives to view questionable films before a classification is made. He also expressed concern over the violence in films and on television.

Kias Missing Big Bird

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Big Bird, Oscar the Grouch and other inhabitants of television's Sesame Street have a lot of friends that miss them in the Barrie area.

A spokesman for station CKVR said the U.S. program was dropped in July because of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission ruling that allows the broadcast of only 40-percent foreign material.

PORT HARDY — A two-day law symposium ended here at the weekend after hearing calls for a more comprehensive approach to law enforcement on northern Vancouver Island, and sharp criticism of the Alert Bay RCMP detachment.

Delegates to the symposium, sponsored by the Nanaimo County Bar Association, called for courtroom workers, probation officers, court stenographers and juvenile and family court facilities in rural areas, as well as industry involvement with parolees.

University of B.C. law students Stu Wells and Joanne McFadyen presented a brief after working on a summer project in Alert Bay training court workers — private individuals who do minor court work and advise and assist people arrested when there is no lawyer readily available.

Wells said Alert Bay is in need of courtroom workers not only because of the lack of lawyers but also because of

Lewis Hi With Ro

PARKSVILLE — "When you throw a stone into a pack of dogs and one yelps, you know you've hit something."

These were Tommy Douglas' remarks about the recent protests from corporate bosses regarding NDP Leader David Lewis' corporate welfare bum attack.

Douglas, addressing the NDP Thanksgiving dinner in the Parksville Legion Hall, said that while heads of corporations were denying Lewis' accusations, Statistics Canada revealed Saturday that the actual figures are even worse than Lewis had suggested.

The official government department released figures showing that in 1970, seven thousand companies who made a combined profit of $220 million paid no taxes at all, while the average corporation was taxed at a rate of 25 per cent — although the rate is supposed to be 50 per cent.

The former NDP Federal Leader pointed out that the mining industry paid taxes at a rate of only 10 per cent and oil and gas industry at less than 7 per cent.

These figures, Douglas said, are from the period prior to Turner's Budget of May, 1972, which included a $500 million handout to corporations with such things as depreciation al-

Silver Hordes Are Losing Their Glitter

—Ian McKain

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Correspondent

(First of Three Parts)

The B.C. commercial fishing industry is not sick, it just has a "damn bad cold."

The quip came from Victorian Michael Gunn, who has given up a teaching career to chase the silver hordes of salmon along the Canadian west coast in his troller Virago.

It was one of many answers to claims that the fishing industry is ailing, forcing men to sell their boats and get back to dry land and a steady job.

How Far?

Yes, the industry is in a depression but just how far it is sinking and how fast is a matter of opinion.

If you talk to Doug Bell in Vancouver, who is manager of the federal government's fishing boat buy-back committee, there seems to be little doubt.

Fishing is a sick industry and Bell says there aren't too many in it who can survive without a winter job or going on unemployment insurance.

"There simply aren't enough fish to go round. This is still a pretty sick industry and it is a good time for anyone who is thinking of retiring to sell his boat," he said.

Two Runs

Fishermen throughout B.C. found a ready run of spring salmon and a miserable run of coho and pinks.

Poundage dropped noticeably but because the demand was still there from the fish packers, prices rocketed to the highest in memory for some old salts.

A "disastrous season" for many became "so so" after the deals were worked out with the packers. For the energetic or plain lucky this season was the best but this was far from the feeling among the "hard core trollers fleet" at Victoria's Fishermen's Wharf in the past few days.

Tuna Helped

"Tuna were a lucky break for a lot of fishermen this season," he explained as he reflectd on the days since the salmon season began April 15.

He told of a "peculiar" season in which winds played havoc with small fishing boats and "even the weather forecasts were only 50 per cent reliable."

Not all fishing boats can switch to tuna as easily as Townsend. Trolling speeds are much faster than for salmon, burning more gas, and distances are much greater.

More fishermen seemed to be casting their eyes toward the relatively new industry of landing black cod, crabs and abalone, according to Townsend and others.

Freeze On

One thing is clear. Fishermen admit there are too many boats competing for too few fish and this is where the buy-back scheme comes in.

Bell explains that the buy-back committee is attempting to reduce the B.C. fleet by freezing licences and its efforts are at the request of fishermen.

With fewer boats, fishermen might be able to bump up the percentage of those who earn more than $10,000 a year.

According to Homer Stevens, president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, only 6 per cent top $10,000 and he knows of no fishermen in the $50,000 a year bracket.

Big Gross

But some boat owners, known as highliners in the industry because they are the best, haul in cash around $60,000 gross for their efforts each season.

And some young fishermen, like Al Meadows 24, of 4960 Georgia Park Terrace, put in the hours and the effort and make more than $15,000 in their first season as a boat owner but they are few.

To date 231 boats have been bought by the buy-back committee out of a total of 6,450 licensed vessels in the B.C. fleet.

The buy-back committee gives two free appraisals for fishermen interested in selling their boats and according to Bell the prices offered are right in the middle of the market.

Boats are sold at auctions and must be used outside the fishing industry in B.C. say the conditions of sale. Most are bought by United States interests.

Bargains Out

There is no bargaining by the buy-back committee and Bell said this handicaps operations as bargaining is a big, part of sales on the open market.

He claims the committee is trying not to become an inflationary factor as some of the buy-back critics charge and he adds he knows fishermen use the appraisals to set a base price and then try and sell their vessel on the open market.

Time Unknown

The committee has a current budget of $2 million but its life is indefinite. No one knows how long it will take to reduce the salmon fleet to a workable size.

The cash for the committee comes directly from the fishermen in the form of 90 per cent of the salmon boat licences, which range from $100 to $200.

Bell says the effect of chopping the fleet by 231 boats has not been substantial but it has been noticeable as other fishermen find they have more room to move in.

The Breakdown…

Of the 6,500 licensed fishing boats in B.C. in 1971, 1,652 were based on Vancouver Island.

Victoria has the largest portion of the Island fleet with 412, followed by Nanaimo with 384, Ucluelet-Bamfield 248, Campbell River 180, Alert Bay-Port Hardy 137, and Tofino 67.

By far the largest number of boats in the B.C. fleet operate from Lower Mainland ports — more than 50 per cent in 1971.

In 1971, the landed value of fish caught by the B.C. fleet was $58,588,000 (wholesale value $117,165,000) and of this catch, Vancouver Island fishermen accounted for $12,872,000 in landed value and Victoria $4,095,000.

In 1969 the fish products industry was sixth in the top 10 manufacturing industries in the province with earnings at $92,421,000.

Leading manufacturing industry was sawmills and planing mills with earnings of $858,482,000 and other lumber activities were second and third.

'Racist Cops' Charge Hits Alert Bay Police

By JEAN SORENSEN
Colonist Correspondent

PORT HARDY — A two-day law symposium ended here at the weekend after hearing calls for a more comprehensive approach to law enforcement on northern Vancouver Island, and sharp criticism of the Alert Bay RCMP detachment.

Delegates to the symposium, sponsored by the Nanaimo County Bar Association, called for courtroom workers, probation officers, court stenographers and juvenile and family court facilities in rural areas, as well as industry involvement with parolees.

University of B.C. law students Stu Wells and Joanne McFadyen presented a brief after working on a summer project in Alert Bay training court workers — private individuals who do minor court work and advise and assist people arrested when there is no lawyer readily available.

Wells said Alert Bay is in need of courtroom workers not only because of the lack of lawyers but also because of animosity between Indians and "overzealous" RCMP.

The Indian reserve is heavily policed, he said, and "the police drive by every five minutes." More than 90 of an average 100 court cases involve Indians, he said.

There was "almost a racial prejudice" on the part of the RCMP, Wells told the symposium.

Wells said the project, financed through grants from the Opportunities for Youth program and the First Citizen Fund, occasionally was in conflict with the RCMP, who told the students they were "screwing up the system," by introducing court workers to the court process.

The Alert Bay RCMP detachment was criticized throughout the symposium and at one point, Bill Wilson, of the B.C. organization of Non-status Indians, told a Part Hardy man in the audience:

"Why don't you accept it at face value? You have racist cops in Alert Bay."

Gilbert Popovich, an Alert Bay taxi-driver, said he knew of cases in which the RCMP told an accused to plead guilty in exchange for easy treatment.

In one case three persons were charged with possession of stolen property, he said, two pleaded guilty and received a year in jail. The third held out for trial by judge and had the case thrown out at the preliminary hearing.

Basil Ambers, on the local family court committee, said "there is one law for the Indian and one for the white." He told of RCMP arresting drunk Indians outside a pub while non-Indians "so drunk they were staggering" were not arrested.

Renee Taylor, a young welfare aide at Alert Bay, said the Alert Bay RCMP once refused help for an Indian injured on a nearby island. The Indian eventually was picked up by water taxi. The situation would have been different, she said, if the man had been a non-Indian.

Miss Taylor criticized the posting of rookie policemen to places like Alert Bay because "these officers don't know the values of the Indian people."

Panelist Neil McDiarmid, director of criminal law for the attorney-general's department, told the symposium later that there likely will be changes in policy on the posting of rookie constables.

Directives already have been sent to detachments advising that legal matters on reservations are to be dealt with in the same way as other problems, McDiarmid said.

Frank Maczko, director of the Legal Aid Society of B.C., told the symposium that rural areas will have to rely on such persons as the courtroom worker to solve justice problems.

"It has to start at the source," Maczko said. "If it doesn't start there then it isn't going to start. It is a simple fact that no legal aid system can have a resident lawyer in every community."

Ambers, representing the Alert Bay family court committee, said facilities for family and juvenile problems are badly lacking.

"We need a probation officer, not one that travels from Campbell River," Ambers said. The committee placed two children on probation, he said, but "what is the use of probation if you don't have a probation officer in the area?"

Cost Cited

Phil Vecquray, personnel supervisor for Canadian Forest Products at Beaver Cove, told the symposium that corporations can help rehabilitate parolees. He said his company has been dealing with parolees since 1967 and has had up to 10 working at one time.

"It's costing you and me as taxpayers $10,000 to $14,000 per man per year to keep them in prison," he said. "Prisons offer too little in the way of job training and rehabilitation."

Industry could be involved in providing instructors or give on-the-job training to parolees, Vecquray said, suggesting a tax incentive could be added based on the number of parolees a company trains per year.

'Archie' There

Pat Thompson of Campbell River, a lawyer with a part-time office in Port Hardy and in charge of legal aid for northern Vancouver Island, defended work done by RCMP and judges, describing himself as the Archie Bunker of the symposium.

Ad hoc judges who are working "for a fraction of what they could be making at their own practice" are not given enough recognition, Thompson said.

The system of travelling judges has the same judge sit in larger centres as well as rural areas, he said, and "the problem is to get across to the public that they have just as much justice as anyone else."

Lewis Hit Mark With Rock—MP

ROAD TO OTTAWA 72

PARKSVILLE — "When you throw a stone into a pack of dogs and one yelps, you know you've hit something."

These were Tommy Douglas' remarks about the recent protests from corporate bosses regarding NDP Leader David Lewis' corporate welfare bum attack.

Douglas, addressing the NDP Thanksgiving dinner in the Parksville Legion Hall, said that while heads of corporations were denying Lewis' accusations, Statistics Canada revealed Saturday that the actual figures are even worse than Lewis had suggested.

The official government department released figures showing that in 1970, seven thousand companies who made a combined profit of $220 million paid no taxes at all, while the average corporation was taxed at a rate of 25 per cent — although the rate is supposed to be 50 per cent.

The former NDP Federal Leader pointed out that the mining industry paid taxes at a rate of only 10 per cent and oil and gas industry at less than 7 per cent.

These figures, Douglas said, are from the period prior to Turner's Budget of May, 1972, which included a $500 million handout to corporations with such things as depreciation allowances and a frozen tax rate of 40 per cent. Meanwhile, he pointed out, the small businessmen of Parksville, Nanaimo, and Duncan will pay at a rate exceeding 50 per cent.

Douglas said that such corporate welfare plans had to end, and the way to ensure that is to put more muscle into the New Democratic position by electing enough New Democrats to force the government to alter its present tax system.

The Pearson years, Douglas said, which were a time of government minority and a strong opposition, saw more progressive legislation passed than in any 10 year period of Canadian history. With the Trudeau majority that policy has ceased. "It looks like the era of charisma, kissing and cussing is coming to an end," concluded Douglas.

Campus 'Grooming' Decried

She told delegates to the B.C. regional conference of the Canadian Federation of University women that girls are deliberately programmed to believe that their main objective in life is to catch a husband and then settle down into perpetual secure dependence as a wife and mother.

Boys on the other hand, are taught to see themselves as policemen, cowboys and doctors, Mrs. Wallace said.

"Right from kindergarten through elementary school our text books depict women almost exclusively as homemakers whose activities are limited to sewing, cooking and cleaning," she said. "John and father, however, build dog houses, repair bicycles and go fishing while the girls stay home with mother."

In our first grade text, only one story out of 29 shows a mother working outside the home and she is described as having to work "because Margaret and Bob and their mother lived all by themselves," Mrs. Wallace said.

The view that men who work outside the home are to be admired, while women who do so are to be pitied because of their supposed inferior economic status permeates the few stories which show women working outside the home, she said.

As a result of this conditioning, women simply do not see themselves as successful in business or the professions.

Ney Welcomes Complex

The regional district board announced the complex, costing $2 million dollars, would contain an indoor pool, a performing arts centre and an ice surface.

Ney said the city could not have afforded to go it alone on construction of the facility.

"As it is, a rough guess puts the cost at about 1.5 mills for the city taxpayers. But again, this is only a guess and I hope that a formula can be worked out that will be satisfactory to all taxpayers concerned," he added.

At the moment, recreation is costing about $21 per capita in the city of Nanaimo for facilities which are being used by the population of the entire surrounding area.

"The regional district has taken the first step and we welcome it. We can't expect the city taxpayers to bear the whole load any further," the mayor said.

"Money spent on recreation is probably better spent than any other tax money. The sooner we get the complex, the better."

He said he feels such an expenditure would be useful as a tool for prevention of the spread of drug abuse among young people. "It will cost us money, but the return will be worth it," he said.

Clumsy Car Parking Led Woman to Court

NANAIMO — Fines totalling more than $400 were levied in provincial court here Monday against a young woman who admitted three offences related to driving.

Police told court they had been called to a downtown parking lot Saturday morning. They found that a car, driven by Christine Marie Thomas, 19, of Westholme had been backed onto a parked vehicle.

Studio in Duncan Boutique

Art Work Recalls Wyeth

DUNCAN — Paintings by Florence Squire in most cases create an immediate relationship between subject and beholder.

This is not because her subjects are familiar but because they carry simple messages of humanity. They all have an earthy reality which seems to be timeless. Her art is not pretentious — in short one can live with those paintings Mrs. Squire produces in her small studio which occupies one corner in her Red Poppy Boutique at the Four Ways Auto Court on Koksilah Road.

Little wonder that the painter, who came here with her husband, Walter, from the U.S. earlier this year was awarded a first prize in the Easter Arts Fair of the Cowichan Valley Regional Arts Council.

A comment that some of her paintings somehow remind one of her famous fellow American Andrew Wyath flatters her. Similar to Wyath, Mrs. Squire is able to see beauty in daily insignificant things as well as in the obvious.

A small girl peering through the half opened door of a large barn, a bare maple tree reflecting its many empty branches in the calm water of a river or a lonely church in the country are the types of subject Mrs. Squire finds appealing enough to be put on canvass. It is not just the cuteness of a child she wants to capture but his or her absorption which reflects the ageless world of children.

Her artistic ability did not come overnight. Although she majored in art at San Diego High School the depression spelled a temporary end to her wish to become a full time artist. She taught music instead. In later years she studied art at Whitworth College at Spokane where she also worked at a parochial boarding academy. She also took summer courses at the Nebraska University.

The Red Poppy Boutique also reflects Mrs. Squire's liking for earthy, simple things. There are about 10 different crafts represented and all blend in well with her oils and those attractive acrylic-college flower paintings.

New Asians Reach Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — The third flight of Asians from Kampala arrived at Canadian Forces Base Longue Pointe Monday night, bringing to 246 the number of Ugandan refugees who have come to Canada. An immigration department spokesman said there were 24 children, including a child under three years, among the 48 people in the flight.

Guiding Family

Daughter, mother and grandmother — Donna Powell, Mrs. Dorothy Powell and Mrs. Dora Bonsall represent three generations of Girl Guides in Cowichan Valley. Guides are one of dozen agencies benefiting from this year's Cowichan United Appeal. Door-to-door canvas for annual drive began Monday. Campaign goal this year is $44,000. Guides require funds for maintenance of Duncan Guide Hall. Mrs. Powell said each Guide company is self-sufficient, but needs help to keep hall — a Duncan landmark — going. It was built in 1920s, and is still used each day of every week. Prior to joining United Appeal, Guides used mail campaign for funds.

Xanadu Gets Feet Wet

The cruise ship Xanadu sprang a leak and developed a list in Victoria harbor Saturday, but its owner of only a week was not worried "at any stage."

The owner, Donald Ferguson of Coral Gables, Fla., said the leak was a "minor mystery," but nothing that would delay the extensive refit for the cruise ship Pacific Star which he bought last week and renamed Xanadu. The ship had been on an Alaska cruise run, based in Victoria.

The Xanadu sank four or five inches deeper into the water at the bowline, according to one source, as water flooded a compartment on the lower deck.

Shore-operated water pumps were called in shortly after noon Saturday from Seaspan International and most of the water had been cleared by 8 p.m.

The Xanadu, destined for South American cruises, had earlier last week been in Yarrows Shipyard for engine refit and was towed to the Inner Harbor Friday minus several of its engines.

This complicated the search for the leak as the ship did not have its own electrical power generators operating.

Saturday night, Ferguson said from his Victoria motel room that no one knew the cause of the leak and it would take several days to find.

However, one of the shore crew working on the pumps said the trouble was a one-way valve "that didn't do its job."

About 8 p.m. he said the water hoses were too big for the little water remaining and it was just a matter of cleaning up.

Ferguson's firm owns two other cruise ships and said the Xanadu was the smallest but a "very lovely ship."

SPCA Charges Cruelty

DUNCAN—Leonard Forster of Duncan has been convicted on eight counts of causing unnecessary suffering to animals involving seven horses. One of the horses suffered from a painful eye injury the court was told during a trial several months ago.

One of two veterinarians who gave evidence at that trial said in reference to one of the horses which subsequently had to be killed, "I have never seen anything that had such a complete lack of fat," and referring to the other horses he added "there wasn't very much to separate them. They were all in exactly the same situation."

Court was told, although Forster did not own the horses he was one of the people in care and control of them. The charges against Forster were laid by the local branch of the SPCA in May but the incidents leading to the charges occured last winter.

Provincial court judge Lance Heard Friday afternoon imposed a two-year suspended sentence with the provision that Forster will not be allowed to have any livestock during that period. Don Young of Duncan was crown counsel and defence lawyer was Elouise Wilson of Victoria.

Filling Bid Opposed

The B.C. Fish and Wildlife Branch is objecting to a pollution control permit sought by a Langford car wrecker who would fill in what some authorities say is waterfowl territory.

A spokesman for the branch said Monday that the application for a permit is from Langford Auto Wreckers Ltd. for a site between Leigh and Spencer Roads on Goldstream Ave. It is near Langford Lake.

"This is used by waterfowl during spring and fall migrations and we cannot support the idea of permitting car bodies to encroach on it," said the spokesman, adding that the Pollution Control Branch will also be asked to order the removal of any car bodies now in the area.

The branch has not made any counts of birds using the site but it has learned from nearby residents that it is a popular area.

The spokesman said the Fish and Wildlife Branch has already filed its objection with the Pollution Control Branch, which often resolves such disputes by arranging a meeting between the applicant and biologists.

Wildlife Expert Switches

The B.C. Fish and Wildlife Branch is losing its assistant chief wildlife biologist to a consulting firm that specializes in environment problems.

Keith Mundy is leaving the branch, for which he has worked for the past 9½ years, at the end of this month to join P. W. Beak Consultants Ltd., a Canadian firm that has a United States subsidiary.

Mundy has been a wildlife biologist in Prince George and Victoria. He'll be a senior biologist with the Beak firm and will work in Vancouver.

The consulting firm has been involved in the design of several major pulp mills in Canada and the U.S. It traditionally has dealt with aquatic problems but recently has branched out into terrestial bioforms.

Car Overturns, Skids, Crashes

A car, out of control on Esquimalt Road, overturned and skidded into on-coming traffic at about 7 p.m. Saturday. There were no injuries when the car, driven east near Alston by James Andres, 784 Lavender was in collision with one driven by Donald Shackley, of El Cajon, California. About $900 worth of damage was caused to the two cars.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Heath Told: Resign

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI) — The chairman of the opposition Labor Party Monday demanded that Prime Minister Edward Heath dissolve Parliament and order a general election or popular referendum to determine whether Britain will join the Common Market Jan. 1 as scheduled.

Anthony Wedgwood Benn, addressing the open session of the party's convention here, said the terms of Britain's entry into the European Economic Community negotiated by Heath were unacceptable to his party and demanded that the people have the chance to express their feelings in a plebiscite.

"We will not accept Heath's terms of entry or the legislation he has driven through Parliament, which would strip the people of this country of their basic rights without their consent," Wedgwood Benn said.

"We must demand a general election and dissolution of Parliament before midnight Dec. 31," he declared.

UIC Deficit More Than Half Billion

MONTREAL (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission deficit is about $544 million, Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey said Monday.

Mackasey said in an interview he intends to defend the government's handling of unemployment insurance as a major part of the Liberals' campaign for re-election Oct. 30.

"I put a bit of a ban on information from the department because reporters won't take an objective look at the whole question of unemployment insurance. I would rather have the whole thing explained properly," he said.

He told a reporter he did not know the deficit "to the exact dollar" but he offered a file headed Costs To Date which, he said would give "an idea of how much the deficit is."

The section outlines that the plan paid out $1,164 million for the first seven months of the year — $544 million over the same period last year.

"It is also the approximate amount we are in the red," Mackasey said.

IWA Convention 'Fun' Hasn't Started Yet

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

VANCOUVER — Along about 3:30 p.m. Monday someone uttered some angry words about the cost of bushworkers' boots.

After five hours of listening, he knew at last that he was at the annual Western Canada regional convention of the International Woodworkers of America.

"I had thought I was at a convention of the Conservative party," the 62-year-old Portland-based secretary-treasurer of the IWA told delegates.

This is probably the most unusual rating ever given the first day of an IWA convention, considering that the union has long been known for its fine art of political blood-letting.

But that's the kind of day the first day of the five-day session was — nothing more controversial than a suggestion from the floor that a picture of a boot in an IWA publication should have included the regional officers "on the toe of that boot."

However, veterans of the union's in-fighting warn that no one should be lulled into a feeling of security by the "sweetness and light" atmosphere of the first day.

"Just don't go to sleep," one Victoria delegate said in an interview. "The fun hasn't started."

The "fun" could be an attempt later to actually put regional president Jack Moore and his officers on the toe of the boot. No one has produced an opposition slate at this stage, but there has been talk again — as there always is when elections roll around every two years — of sweeping Moore and his men out of office.

$95 Million

Barrett Attacks Surplus

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

B.C. will have an anticipated surplus of $95 million for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1973 and Premier Dave Barrett had some harsh words about it Monday.

"The money is there and the fact that the previous government didn't spend it is proof enough why it should have been thrown out of office," Barrett said in an interview after cabinet met Monday afternoon.

"Tell me why is it that the pensioners in this province have had to suffer while the government played tiddlywinks to get a surplus?" the premier asked newsmen.

The surplus was "taxes collected from the ordinary people of B.C. which has not been spent on the ordinary people of B.C."

Barrett said before cabinet that the surplus was expected to be $70 million but after the meeting he said there would be about $25 million more.

The confusion arose because the cost to the province of promised NDP pension boosts — about $25 million — had been deducted from the total surplus of about $95 million. Federal help is expected for the scheme which has a total cost of about $40 million.

The money left in the treasury by the former Social Credit government is about the same as in recent years. In 1971, it was $98 million and in 1970, about $95 million.

Barrett described the surplus estimate as a "very conservative" figure but said it would pay for the pension increases for about 100,000 people in B.C. and education spending reform announced earlier by Education Minister Eileen Dailly.

On the pension boost to $200 a month, the premier said he hoped the first cheques would be received by pensioners before Christmas.

And he was adamant that his government would not be an "order-in-council ruler" and said the pension increases would be discussed in the Legislature sitting called for Oct. 17.

If people wanted to vote against the pension increase they could.

Before he vacated the premier's office after 20 years, W. A. C. Bennett said revenue was increasing at a rate of 15 per cent over the previous year.

Barrett, who is also finance minister in the NDP government, was told by deputy finance minister Gerald Bryson Monday that the revenue would probably even out at

Danes Back Market

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Danes dispelled fears of a major hitch in Common Market expansion Monday by voting nearly 2 to 1 in favor of joining the European Economic Community.

Not all opponents of market membership took the defeat calmly. Bands of young demonstrators roamed the streets in Copenhagen and burned flags on the steps of parliament.

Anonymous telephone bomb threats were made against the premier's home and Copenhagen's radio and television centres. No bombs were found.

Sigurd Oemann, whose Socialist People's party spearheaded the anti-EEC campaign, said Denmark faced "increased political polarization" because of the vote.

The final tally was 1,950,000 for and 1,124,000 against, or a margin of 57 per cent of the total electorate to 32.9. The voter turnout of 89.9 per cent was an all-time record for this small Scandinavian nation.

Danish farmers voted solidly, as expected, for the Common Market, which will help their exports. Anti-market forces did not gain a majority even in their supposed stronghold, metropolitan Copenhagen.

The firm surge toward the EEC proved groundless the predictions that Denmark's poll would be affected by the narrow referendum victory for market opponents last week in Norway.

Premier Jens Otto Krag's government, which negotiated Denmark's entry into the market, preached economic hardship, stern austerity policies and devaluation of the kroner if the vote went against joining. The Danish referendum was binding, whereas last week's Norwegian vote was advisory, with the final decision to be made by parliament.

Voting day was the eighth day of a suspension of currency trading, decreed to protect the kroner after the Norwegian vote.

In an unprecedented move, police guarded polling stations, parliament and Copenhagen's radio and television centres.

When the voting trend became evident Monday night, the Danish National Bank announced that currency trading will resume this morning.

That Time of Year

Many people you meet these days are coughing and wheezing, snorting and sneezing, running at the eyes and using facial tissue by the ream.

But there is no epidemic of flu according to Dr. A. A. Larsen, director of epidemiology for the B.C. health branch, and Victoria area senior health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Whitbread's office finds out what is going on from reports of school nurses in the area on the absentee rate and the cause of it.

Latest reports show that there are numbers of children away with colds but there is no known 'flu' epidemic.

It's just that time of year again.

Secret Agent Killed

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrilla gunmen killed a British secret agent from ambush Monday and gunned down a man in a Belfast club, raising Northern Ireland's death toll to 590 in three years of sectarian violence.

The British army said the unidentified agent was killed by three gunmen of the Irish Republican Army who poured automatic rifle fire into the delivery truck he was driving in a Roman Catholic sector of Belfast. A woman agent in the truck was unhurt.

A spokesman said it was the first death among about 50 plain-clothes operators working in critical sectors of the city.

Police said the second killing was done by three armed men who walked into a club in the Falls area, a Catholic district. They lined the people against a wall, fired several shots, and "as a result a man died," a police spokesman said.

The shootings followed a weekend in which at least seven persons lost their lives and more than 45 were injured.

Transit Train Crashes

FREMONT, Calif. (UPI) A sleek new Bay Area Rapid Transit district train Monday smashed into a sand barrier at 30 miles an hour, then dropped nosedown to a parking lot below, after failing to stop at the end of the line.

Five persons were hurt none seriously in the first accident on the $1.4 billion transit system which went into partial operation three weeks ago.

The first car of the two-car train plowed through the sand embankment at the end of track, then plunged through a chain link fence and plowed its nose into an asphalt parking lot 10 feet below.

The $300,000 car ended up at a 20 degree angle, with its front end in the lot and the back end at track level. The second car remained on the track when the vehicles uncoupled.

The train attendant and four of six passengers in the first car suffered minor injuries. The seven passengers in the second car were unhurt.

Russia's Treasures in Jeopardy

MOSCOW — The doors creak open and bang shut. Snow, mud and water collect in the entrance halls. Alternating hot, cold, dry, damp air wafts through the corridors and galleries.

Thousands of individuals — school children, workers on their days off, country people visiting the big city and foreign tourists — tramp across the old wooden parquet floors.

The Russians call it an "excursion explosion" -- a rapidly rising flood of visitors to museums, churches, palaces and galleries, most of which date from the pre-revolutionary era of royalty and state religion.

Now, 50 years after Lenin declared "art belongs to the people," the Russian people are taking great interest in the nation's cultural treasures.

But the museums, galleries, palaces and churches are not ready for the crowds.

In one museum, the Hermitage in Leningrad, it's simply a matter of too many feet. About three million persons a year pass through it, with 480,000 in June alone. The museum has only 4,000 slippers to be put over street shoes to save the lacquered floors. "The most important question for us is the footwear of visitors," complained Boris Piotrovsky, director.

In their hard drive to become the world's largest economic and military power, the Soviet leaders have invested little to preserve and protect their country's cultural heritage.

The combined forces of age and overuse have put some of the nation's greatest treasures in jeopardy.

One Leningrader, for instance, said earlier this year that to halt the deterioration of the Hermitage and Winter Palace, the country's most famous art collection and museum, "radical measures are urgently needed."

N. I. Mokhov, deputy minister of culture, admitted that government officials have "repeatedly discussed" the issues of protecting the collections and buildings, improving displays and public service.

B.C. Fishermen Claim Ailing Industry Not Sick—Just Has 'Damn Bad Cold'

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Correspondent
(First of Three Parts)

The B.C. commercial fishing industry is not sick, it just has a "damn bad cold."

The quip came from Victorian Michael Gunn, who has given up a teaching career to chase the silver hordes of salmon along the Canadian west coast in his troller Virago.

It was one of many answers to claims that the fishing industry is ailing, forcing men to sell their boats and get back to dry land and a steady job.

The remark is significant because it sums up the feeling of many fishermen in Victoria and in other ports on Vancouver Island.

Yes, the industry is in a depression but just how far it is sinking and how fast is a matter of opinion.

If you talk to Doug Bell in Vancouver, who is manager of the federal government's fishing boat buy-back committee, there seems to be little doubt.

Fishing is a sick industry and Bell says there aren't too many in it who can survive without a winter job or going on unemployment insurance.

"There simply aren't enough fish to go round. This is still a pretty sick industry and it is a good time for anyone who is thinking of retiring to sell his boat," he said.

The results of the season so far haven't helped many fishermen pad their bank accounts, particularly those hounding salmon.

First of Three

Poundage dropped noticeably but because the demand was still there from the fish packers, prices rocketed to the highest in memory for some old salts.

A "disastrous season" for many became "so so" after the deals were worked out with the packers. For the energetic or plain lucky this season was the best but this was far from the feeling among the "hard core trollers fleet" at Victoria's Fishermen's Wharf in the past few days.

"Tuna were a lucky break for a lot of fishermen this season," he explained as he reflected on the days since the salmon season began April 15.

He told of a "peculiar" season in which winds played havoc with small fishing boats and "even the weather forecasts were only 50 per cent reliable."

Not all fishing boats can switch to tuna as easily as Townsend. Trolling speeds are much faster than for salmon, burning more gas, and distances are much greater.

More fishermen seemed to be casting their eyes toward the relatively new industry of landing black cod, crabs and abalone, according to Townsend and others.

One thing is clear. Fishermen admit there are too many boats competing for too few fish and this is where the buy-back scheme comes in.

Bell explains that the buy-back committee is attempting to reduce the B.C. fleet by freezing licences and its efforts are at the request of fishermen.

With fewer boats, fishermen might be able to bump up the percentage of those who earn more than $10,000 a year.

According to Homer Stevens, president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, only 6 per cent top $10,000 and he knows of no fishermen in the $50,000 a year bracket.

But some boat owners, known as highliners in the industry because they are the best, haul in cash around $60,000 gross for their efforts each season.

And some young fishermen, like Al Meadows 24, of 4960 Georgia Park Terrace, put in the hours and the effort and make more than $15,000 in their first season as a boat owner—but they are few.

To date 231 boats have been bought by the buy-back committee out of a total of 6,450 licensed vessels in the B.C. fleet.

The buy-back committee gives two free appraisals for fishermen interested in selling their boats and according to Bell the prices offered are right in the middle of the market.

Boats are sold at auctions and must be used outside the fishing industry in B.C. say the conditions of sale. Most are bought by United States interests.

Bell says his appraisers are good men who know the business and he counts more on experience than any academic degree.

There is no bargaining by the buy-back committee and Bell said this handicaps operations as bargaining is a big part of sales on the open market.

He claims the committee is trying not to become an inflationary factor as some of the buy-back critics charge and he adds he knows fishermen use the appraisals to set a base price and then try and sell their vessel on the open market.

The committee has a current budget of $2 million but its life is indefinite. No one knows how long it will take to reduce the salmon fleet to a workable size.

The cash for the committee comes directly from the fishermen in the form of 90 per cent of the salmon boat licences, which range from $100 to $200.

Bell says the effect of chopping the fleet by 231 boats has not been substantial but it has been noticeable as other fishermen find they have more room to move in.

Victoria Swells Fleet

Of the 6,500 licensed fishing boats in B.C. in 1971, 1,652 were based on Vancouver Island.

Victoria has the largest portion of the Island fleet with 412, followed by Nanaimo with 384, Ucluelet-Bamfield 248, Campbell River 180, Alert-Bay-Port Hardy 137, and Tofino 67.

By far the largest number of boats in the B.C. fleet operate from Lower Mainland ports — more than 50 per cent in 1971.

The biggest fishing fleet ouside the Lower Mainland is at Prince Rupert where about 750 boats are based.

In 1971, the landed value of fish caught by the B.C. fleet was $58,588,000 (wholesale value $117,165.000) and of this catch, Vancouver Island fishermen accounted for $12,872,000 in landed value and Victoria $4,095,000.

In 1969, the fish products industry was sixth in the top 10 manufacturing industries in the province.

'Paternalistic Nonsense'

Ban Sparks Fireworks In Oak Bay

New federal regulations regarding fireworks are "a lot of paternalistic nonsense," Oak Bay council agreed Monday night.

So council decided to write to the federal government expressing agreement with the ban on the sale of firecrackers, but opposition to the regulations about other fireworks.

Ald. Brian Smith, who brought the matter before council, said the regulations will prevent him from using his own backyard for a fireworks display for his own children.

"This is the same government that seems to think that criminals in jail for serious crimes should be out on leave and parole and is not interested in protecting us in that area.

"Now it is going to protect us in this area of innocent fireworks," said Smith.

He predicted that the price of fireworks, which will be on sale only to people with certificates of competency, will double. "They already cost three times what they are worth," he said.

Ald. John Goult said the legislation smacks of Big Brother.

"I find it a little pathetic," he said.

Ald. Norman Pimlott felt that children deprived of fireworks are liable to get into trouble in other ways.

In other business, council gave first three readings to a bylaw which will set a minimum lot size of 12,000 square feet in certain areas around Newport and some parts of Beach drive.

The idea of the bylaw, Smith said after the meeting, is to prevent large lots being carved up by developers. Present minimum lot size in the areas concerned now ranges from 7,500 to 11,000 square feet.

Saanich To Continue New-Apartment Study

Saanich council Monday night authorized its planners to continue studies of permitting new apartment development in the Gordon Head area.

Council made the decision after hearing a preliminary study by municipal planner Tom Loney of existing and proposed medium-density apartments in an area surrounded by Gordon Head Road, McKenzie Avenue, Finnerty Road and Arbutus Road.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said he hoped council's planning committee and the Advisory Planning Commission would hear "genuine community opinion, not just that of a hard-line minority."

"I hope we will hear from people who perhaps never before were in this council chamber," he added.

Council also authorized Curtis and Ald. Leslie Passmore to meet with the administration and student council of Lansdowne junior high school to discuss complaints of a few residents that students are rowdy and cause congestion on a narrow walkway that runs from Taylor to the school grounds.

Two residents appeared before council urging that the walkway be closed. They mentioned that their position is supported by recommendations from the police department.

The municipality's planning department, however, disagreed and said the walkway was an important part of pedestrian systems in that area.

Ald. Alan Newberry agreed that the lane should stay and he urged council and the offended residents to obtain the co-operation of the students—"to close the lane would invite chaos."

Esquimalt Advised To Wait for Funds

A "wait-and-see" attitude on methods of financing a proposed five-year capital projects program in Esquimalt was urged in a report to Esquimalt council Monday night.

Municipal treasurer Peter Cairns, in the report, said he was strongly recommending the delay in action by council because some high-priority items could possibly receive federal or provincial assistance later this year.

Council, which referred the matter to comittee for discussion Monday night, had met behind closed doors last March to consider a five-year program of a capital nature.

Council, after deciding on a program of three levels of priority, then instructed Cairns to offer suggestions on how the projects could be funded.

Some thought was given at that time to a December referendum and the possibility received brief consideration Monday night.

One top-priority item mentioned as a potential candidate for federal assistance was enlargement and improvement to storm and sanitary sewers.

Cairns suggested that a portion of the $225,000 program could be accomplished by using the municipality's labor force during the next five years at a cost of about $25,000 a year.

The balance of the program, he said, could be funded by debenture issues "or hopefully undertaken as a federal low-cost loan project which may be announced later this year."

Cairns said after the meeting that the federal government earlier this year had announced that a low-cost loan program woul come into effect Dec. 1.

Council dealt with a second high-priority item — enlargement of storm drainage capacity in Esquimalt — by approving amendments to the 1972 budget which will provide funds for the project.

Allocation for drainage systems which most urgently need improvements and Esquimalt's share for sewer projects was $77,300.

And council authorized Cairns to prepare a bylaw for a short-term $80,000 loan for the lowering and widening of the Tilicum-Craigflower intersection.

The project, which the provincial highways department is currently working on, was the third top-priority item mentioned in the five-year program.

The municipality's share for the project is $80,000 and the short-term loan was mentioned in Cairns' report as a method of financing the municipality's share.

In other business, council listened to a committee report which said planning and zoning committee is studying whether Esquimalt has the power to require parking space fees to be included in apartment rents.

Council later approved a planning and zoning recommendation that parking unit requirements for apartment buildings be increased from 135 to 150 per cent of dwelling units.

Committee chairman Ald. Terry Prentice said later that the moves are an effort to get tennants' and visitors' cars off the streets to avoid traffic problems.

Nude Man Bagged in Lot

There aren't exactly eight million stories in this naked city of Victoria but here is one that strips away everything but the bare facts.

Leaving out only the name of the central character to protect the innocent, the story began shortly after 8 p.m. Saturday when a man from Zellers' store in the Hillside Plaza phoned police to report a man in front of the health spa at the plaza "clad only in a garbage bag."

A police report said a constable found a caretaker "had been taking a bath in the health spa. He heard noises outside near his car and ran outside to see what it was. The back door had closed, leaving him standing outside without any clothes on."

The constable provided assistance by helping take the rear door off its hinges and letting the careless caretaker back in. The officer ended his report with "all in order" but he never said what happened to the garbage bag.

First Crash in 68 Years

An 89-year-old Saanich man and his wife were receiving intensive-care treatment Monday night at Royal Jubilee Hospital after the man's first accident in 68 years of driving.

Oak Bay police and hospital officials said the man, Tom Dalzell of 5991 West Saanich, suffered a broken collarbone and lesser injuries and is in fairly good condition while his wife, believed to be in her 80s, suffered broken ribs and other serious injuries. She is in fair condition.

Police said cars driven by Dalzell and Frederick Manson, 19, of 1871 Townley, were involved in a head-on sideswipe at about 2:30 p.m. at Dunlevy and Burdick. Manson was slightly hurt.

Dalzell's B.C. driver's licence number is 1926 and police said it is probably one of the oldest still being used. It was issued in 1904 when Dalzell began driving and police quoted him as saying he had never had an accident and hoped to drive again.

City Symphony Season-Opener Strikes High Note

By ERITH SMITH
Colonist Reporter

Victoria's Symphony Orchestra aimed at giving its supporters a very special season-opener Monday night to show that symphony is for everyone. The orchestra, and its society, succeeded admirably.

The Royal Theatre, and the audience, were dressed for the occasion. Not all the human dressing was traditional-formal. The "everyone" angle included a healthy sprinkling of the younger generation.

Throughout, there was a feeling of intent to share and to enjoy. This was especially noticeable when the orchestra struck up O Canada and The Queen at the opening.

Whether or not inspired by the sudden new spurt of Canadianism brought on by Team Canada and hockey, the audience sang both of these as they've seldom been sung in a Victoria theatre for years.

The program was certainly for everyone. Many in the audience were symphony and classical music buffs who are thoroughly at home with every composer and each of his works.

For the rest of us, Tchaikovsky provided a hugely rewarding experience. From delicate strains of melody to crashing, passionate chords he ranged his way, carrying us with him through his Romeo and Juliet, Piano Concerto in B Flat Minor, Symphony No. 6 in B Minor — the Pathetique.

It would have been difficult to find a better soloist to open the series than Montreal-born Ronald Turini.

For one thing, he's a Canadian. For another, he ranks among the world's finest pianists. Certainly his talent gave Victoria perhaps the most stirring performance of the concerto to be heard here.

Those of the audience in a position to watch his hands in action witnessed a dazzling combination of strength, dexterity and gentleness without which, true enough, no one could attain the concert pianist ranks; but which here seemed to possess an added quality of kinship with the music.

As hinted above, I am one of the unfortunates who cannot, by title, say who composed what. I could, however, listen to these works of Tchaikovsky and suddenly realize I was hearing a long-familiar, lovely melody line.

It might come in the piano concerto, or in a symphony from strings, wood or brass. Or the familiar bit might be a series of crashing chords from the whole orchestra.

The orchestra's new season has brought with it a number of changes in personnel, including the new concertmaster, Derek Collier.

The change, even in a first concert, has brought with it no noticeable diminution of quality. There seemed to be strength and purity of tone in all sections that retained balance from the slimmest pianissimo to the stoutest fortissimo.

Maestro Laszlo Gati had only one regret: That there was no special room in which members of the audience might pay their respects to the guest artists.

"However," he said, "any of you who wish may come down here (indicating the front of the orchestra), and Mr. Turini, Tchaikovsky and I will meet you there.

"You will be able to get two autographs, anyway."

Hamburg Gassed

HAMBURG, Germany (UPI) — Poison gases from Europe's largest copper works drifted through evening rush hour traffic Tuesday, causing nausea among pedestrians.

Police put out a city-wide alarm, but a fire department spokesman said the seeping gases — sulphur-dioxide and sulphur-trioxide—never presented a serious danger. Hamburg hospitals reported treating persons for nausea and inflamation of the throat, but no one was reported in serious condition.
